

Kansas Hay Market Report

Hay trade slow. Demand moderate for dairy, stock cow and grinding alfalfa, for alfalfa pellets and grass hay. Hot, dry weather experienced over the last week was interrupted with scattered thunderstorms moving across the state over the weekend bringing along with it cooler temps. Cattle continue to move off grass. Some areas are extremely dry and short on forage for grazing and for haying. Dry land corn harvest has begun and some feedlots have started feeding high moisture corn. If you have hay for sale or pasture to rent or need hay or grazing, use the services of the Hay and Pasture Exchange www.kfb.org/hayandpasture/default.htm

Deere 3Q profit up 47% on strong U.S. farm sales

(AP) Deere & Co. said Wednesday its third-quarter profit grew 47 percent because American and Canadian farmers bought enough of the company's large equipment to offset a sharp downturn in Europe, but Deere kept its forecast for the year conservative.

The company reported $617 million net income, or $1.44 per share, in the quarter that ended July 31. That's up from $420 million, or 99 cents per share, a year ago.

Deere says global revenue spiked 16 percent to $6.84 billion.

Agricultural equipment sales in the U.S. and Canadian markets increased 19 percent in the quarter. Sales in other markets rose 16 percent, but that figure masks the European weakness.

"While we have benefited from positive conditions in the U.S. farm sector, particularly in terms of demand for large equipment, European markets are down sharply," Deere's chairman and CEO Samuel Allen said in a statement.

Overall, Deere's agricultural and turf equipment sales grew 12 percent to $5.2 billion from last year's $4.7 billion.

Demand for construction and forestry equipment has improved from last year, but Deere said it remains well below normal. Quarterly sales for that division jumped 59 percent to just over $1 billion from $632 million a year ago.

The quarterly results from the maker of iconic green-and-yellow farm and construction equipment easily beat Wall Street expectations. On average, analysts expected earnings per share of $1.24 on $6.52 billion revenue.

Analysts praised Deere's performance, but were soured by the company's expectations going forward. Deere stock declined 96 cents, or 1.4 percent, to $66.27 in early trading Wednesday.

Sterne Agee analyst Lawrence De Maria said in a research note that Deere's guidance appeared conservative after the past two quarters of solid results.

"We believe the underlying fundamentals for ag are exceptional, and anticipate continued strong operating performance and another solid year in 2011," De Maria said.

Jeffries & Co. analyst Stephen Volkman said in a research note that Deere delivered a strong performance, but investors may be disappointed with the company's fourth-quarter forecast.

The company said it now expects its sales to grow about 12 percent in fiscal 2010. That prediction is in line with the 11 percent to 13 percent range Deere offered in May.

Deere also said it expects fourth-quarter net income to increase about 32 percent over last year to $375 million.

Deere said it expects U.S. farm income this year to total $85.7 billion. That's up from the company's previous forecast of $81.5 billion. The amount of money farmers have is a key indicator of how much equipment Deere will sell.

Deere, based in Moline, Illinois, is the world's largest maker of agricultural equipment, but it also makes construction, forestry and landscaping equipment.

Ashley Lorence, 11-year Mankato Eager Beaver member, was the champion senior swine showman and earned the title of Jewell County 4-H Princess.

Profitability seminars to feature Curt Pate cattle handling demos

A live cattle-handling demonstration by renowned horseman and Montana rancher Curt Pate will highlight three Kansas Livestock Association (KLA) Cow-Calf Profitability Seminars sponsored by Intervet/Schering-Plough Animal Health. Other seminar topics will include respiratory health, preconditioning calves and live cowherd evaluation.

As a stockmanship instructor, Pate has conducted horse and cattle-handling demonstrations for more than 15 years. He was a technical advisor for the 1998 movie "The Horse Whisperer" and currently serves as an instructor for the National Cattleman's Beef Association Stockmanship & Stewardship Tour. During each seminar, Pate will discuss the five principles of cattle behavior that should be considered when gathering, penning, processing and hauling cattle. He also will explain the critical role proper handling plays in increasing consumers' confidence in beef.

The first seminar will be held August 31 at the Fort Scott Livestock Market. In addition to Pate's live cattle-handling demonstration, Intervet/Schering-Plough Beef Cattle Technical Services Manager Dr. Mark Spire will provide information on how to best maintain respiratory health in cattle. Bud Mareth, with Land O Lakes/Purina Feed, also will be on hand to discuss the value of preconditioning calves.

The final two 2010 cow-calf profitability seminars will be held September 1 at Cloud County Community College in Concordia and September 2 at the Barton County Fairgrounds in Great Bend. At each of these events, Kansas State University Extension Livestock Specialist Sandy Johnson will join Pate and Spire on the program. Johnson will discuss how to sharpen skills with a live evaluation of cow weight and body condition scoring.

Each seminar is free and will begin with registration at 3:30 p.m. A complimentary beef meal will conclude the evening. Reservations are requested by August 26 by e-mailing jenni@kla.org or calling KLA at (785) 273-5115. Those wanting to attend can find more information and a registration form at www.kla.org/calendar. KLA is a trade organization representing the business interests of independent beef producers at the state and national levels. Members of the association are involved in all segments of the livestock industry, including cow-calf production, backgrounding, cattle feeding, swine, dairy and sheep.

Judge Mark Flory selected this Hampshire market hog owned by Andrew Haynes to win the market hog show at the Geary County Free Fair. Haynes was also selected as reserve champion swine showman.

The grand champion market hog at the Riley County Fair was shown by Georgia Hill of the College Hill 4-H Club. She was also named reserve champion junior showman.

“Speak for Wheat” spokespersons enjoy northern anniversary trip

By Bill Spiegel

In 1985, Sharon Davis, serving as the Kansas Wheat Commission's nutrition educator, developed the "Speak for Wheat" spokesperson program, which allowed volunteers from throughout Kansas to share information about wheat production, wheat food preparation and nutrition to audiences of all ages. Through the years, nearly 90 Kansans - men and women, farmers and non-farmers - have served as Speak for Wheat spokespersons, including Cindy Falk, the Kansas Wheat Commission's current nutrition educator.

In this, its 25th year, Falk developed an educational Speak for Wheat Anniversary Tour to Des Moines and Minneapolis. The three-day tour took place in mid-July and featured a host of educational and informative stops for 25 spokespersons. In Carlisle, Iowa, the group met Steve Curran, plant manager of the General Mills flour mill. A K-State graduate, Curran said more than 1.3 million pounds of wheat are ground into flour each year at the plant; about 20% of that is used in the company's dry cookie mixes. Also in Iowa, the group toured the headquarters of Meredith Corporation, publisher of Better Homes and Gardens, Midwest Living and Successful Farming magazines. Loren Kruse, editor of Successful Farming and a K-State graduate, thanked the spokespersons for their time and service in advocating for agriculture.

"I admire you all for giving back to the agriculture industry. It is more important than ever. Be engaged in the battle," said Kruse, another K-State graduate.

The advocacy theme also was championed by Dan Dye, president of Cargill's Horizon Milling, in Minneapolis. Dye, who greeted the group at the Cargill headquarters, challenged the spokespersons to be more proactive in telling the story of agriculture, together as an industry.

"Mr. Dye said that all of us in agriculture need to tell consumers what we are doing on our farms," Falk said. A stop at the Saint Agnes Baking Co. in St. Paul brought the group face-to-face with Dan "Klecko" McGleno, who founded the Saint Paul Bread Club and runs the bakery's wholesale and retail businesses. The bakery balances the quality and tradition of Old World baking, with the reality of running a successful business in a competitive market. "Klecko's passion for making bread and his positive personality resonated with the spokespersons," Falk said. "He has tremendous pride in his product, and for the industry. He co-founded the Saint Paul Bread Club to teach others the art and technique of home bread baking."

Kim Ode, a feature writer for the Minneapolis Star Tribune, helped Klecko establish the Saint Paul Bread Club. Ode also addressed the group. A baker herself, she built her own wood-fired brick bread oven in her backyard and wrote a book entitled "Baking with the St. Paul Bread Club."

The group also toured Turtle Bread Company, so named because "great bread takes time to create," according to owner Harvey McClain. Head baker Solveig Tofte was selected to represent Team USA at the World Cup of Bread in Paris in 2008.

A lunch stop at Lucia's in Minneapolis was also a featured stop. In addition, spokespersons learned of a new Horizon Milling product called GrainWise wheat aleurone, a naturally concentrated source of essential vitamins and minerals found in whole grains and developed for the school food service industry. The Horizon Milling flour mill in Wichita makes GrainWise.

A stop at General Mills' headquarters in Golden Valley, Minn. included a tour of the Betty Crocker Kitchens. The tour was a diverse educational opportunity that included presentations from leaders of Fortune 500 companies, scientists, marketing experts, bread bakers and bakery owners.

"It was the trip of a lifetime and what a great opportunity to see the test kitchens at Better Homes and Gardens and Betty Crocker test kitchens," says Julene DeRouchey, Wamego. Jean Ann Trout, Satanta, said the trip enabled her to network with other Speak for Wheat spokespersons from across Kansas.

"Ideas gained from this trip will be very helpful in promoting wheat," Trout says. "The Kansas Wheat spokespersons are very professional and I am proud to be a member of this group."

Rural development and the next generation topic of August 28 meeting near Soldier

Rural development and how to engage the next generation in farming, ranching, and rural communities will be the topic for the keynote speaker at a special presentation during the Kansas Rural Center's summer board meeting on August 28. Weldon Sleight, dean of the Nebraska College of Technical Agriculture at Curtis, Nebraska, will be the afternoon speaker starting at 1:30 p.m. at Red Rock Guest Ranch near Soldier.

Sleight will also speak at 7 p.m. the same night, focusing his second presentation of the day on Beef Cattle Profitability, Production and Management from research at the University of Nebraska's Sandhills Laboratory. He will also share his experiences and ideas on bringing the next generation into farming and ranching during that presentation.

Dr. Sleight has been instrumental in bringing entrepreneurship into the curriculum at the Nebraska College of Technical Agriculture, a part of the University of Nebraska, with the development of the "100 Beef Cow Ownership Advantage Program," "100 Acre Farm Program," and the NCTA Business Builder Program. Each of these programs is designed to provide NCTA students with an early entry into agriculture or business enterprise as a partner/owner that will lead to eventual ranch, farm or rural business ownership. For example, The "100 Cow Herd Upon Graduation Program" combines several existing beginning farmer programs with training programs at the college, and aims to give graduates an opportunity to build enough income so they can eventually take over or start a farm or ranch, as well as build cattle numbers in the state. "My passion," states Sleight, "is to help communities engage their youth before they leave for college or other endeavors with the intent that they return home to be partners/employees in farms, ranches, and rural mainstreet businesses."

Sleight's afternoon presentation will follow the Kansas Rural Center board's morning business meeting. Both the 1:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. presentations are open to the public and should be of special interest to rural and economic development officials, FFA sponsors, and anyone interested in revitalizing rural communities through investing in our agricultural base.

Supper reservations can also be made for a 6 p.m. supper prior to the evening presentation for $10 per person. Contact KRC at 785-873-3431 or ddysart@rainbowtel.net for more information on supper reservations. Also, check KRC's website at www.kansasruralcenter.org for updates.

Directions to Red Rock Guest Ranch at 4340 270th Road, Soldier, Ks.: Follow Highway 16 west from Holton 12 miles to Highway 62. Turn north and go 5 miles to Soldier. Turn east and go 1.5 miles to the ranch.

The Kansas Rural Center is a private, non-profit advocacy and education organization promoting sustainable agriculture and a local and regional food system.

The grand champion steer at the Riley County Fair was exhibited by Kobie Camerlinck, Riley Rascals 4-H.

Bayer agrees to terminate all uses of aldicarb in U.S.

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and Bayer CropScience, the manufacturer, have reached an agreement to end use of the pesticide aldicarb in the United States. A new risk assessment conducted by EPA based on recently submitted toxicity data indicates that aldicarb, an N-methyl carbamate insecticide, no longer meets the agency's rigorous food safety standards and may pose unacceptable dietary risks, especially to infants and young children. To address the most significant risks, Bayer has agreed first to end aldicarb use on citrus and potatoes and will adopt risk mitigation measures for other uses to protect groundwater resources.

New measures to protect shallow drinking water wells in vulnerable areas of the southeastern U.S. coastal plain and lower application rates will be immediately added to product labels for use on cotton, soybeans, and peanuts. The company will voluntarily phase out production of aldicarb by December 31, 2014. All remaining aldicarb uses will end no later than August 2018.

Additionally, EPA plans to revoke the tolerances (legal pesticide residues allowed in food) associated with these commodities. EPA did this to ensure the U.S. has the safest food supply possible. Based upon current toxicological studies, aldicarb at levels higher than those typically found in food has the potential to cause various effects such as sweating, nausea, dizziness and blurred vision, abdominal pain, vomiting, and diarrhea.

Aldicarb is registered for use as a systemic insecticide and nematicide on agricultural crops, and is formulated and marketed solely as a granular pesticide under the trade name Temik. During the phase-out, the pesticide will continue to be registered for use on cotton, dry beans, peanuts, soybeans, sugar beets, and sweet potatoes. Aldicarb products are not intended for sale to homeowners or for use in residential settings. A restricted use pesticide, aldicarb may be applied only by trained, certified pesticide applicators.

The memorandum of agreement and the agency's updated dietary risk assessment and supporting materials will be available in the aldicarb reregistration docket, EPA-HQ-OPP-2005-0163, and in the aldicarb Special Review docket, EPA-HQ-OPP-2006-0197, at regulations.gov.

The U.S. has a safe and abundant food supply, and children and others should continue to eat a variety of foods, as recommended by the federal government and nutritional experts.
