Fink Beef Genetics reports on bull sale

Cattlemen and women from Kansas and fifteen states attended and appraised the offering of Angus and Charolais bulls at the Fink Beef Genetics sale facility north of Randolph on October 26, 2011.

There were 145 head of 2010 fall yearling Angus bulls that averaged $4,174. The top selling Angus bull was Lot 111, Barretts 0966 of 4004 GN, a son of Garretts Nationwide 8001, going for $8,000 to Cline Cattle Company, Frankfort. Lot 9, Finks 0559 of 6523 NW, a fall 2010 son of New Worth, brought $7,500 from Eric Freeman, Indiana. Shan Hullman, Kansas, selected Lot 80, a fall 2010 son of Net Present Value, for $6,500.

In the Charolais division, 109 head of Charolais fall yearling bulls averaged $3,952. Lot 253, Fink 0153 of 2550 NS, topped the sale going for $19,500 to a group of four breeders consisting of Aschermann Charolais, Missouri; Greg Myers, Kentucky; Mike Roster, South Dakota; and Morris Orr, Alabama. Selling for $18,000 was lot 160, MF 035 of 6868 BG, to Dale Funk, Nebraska, and Sonderman Charolais, Iowa. Two bulls sold for $6000 each, Lot 252, a son of New Standard, went to Shan Hullman, Kansas, and the other, Lot 208, Fink 0104 of 523 2250, to Silver Spur Ranch, Wyoming.

Jim Birdwell, Oklahoma, served as auctioneer.

Kansas Hay Market Report

Hay trade moderate. Demand very strong for dairy, stock cow and grinding alfalfa, moderate to strong for alfalfa pellets and grass hay. Moisture across most of Kansas was welcome, not a drought buster but every drop helps. Transportation of hay from Northern States continues to be the biggest challenge. Dairies are using the very best alfalfa to supplement the hay they have on hand. If you have hay for sale or pasture to rent or need hay or grazing, use the services of the Hay and Pasture Exchange: www.kfb.org/hayandpasture/default.htm

Southwest Kansas

I would encourage every home owner, renter, farmer or rancher to register to attend an emergency planning meeting on November 16 at 6:00 p.m. at the Shawnee County Farm Bureau office.

Do you have a plan of what you will do with your family, horses and other livestock in case of an emergency? The emergencies covered at this meeting will include a flood, tornado, fire, severe storms, electricity outages, drought, or foreign animal disease. If you do not have such a plan at this time, you need to attend. The whole family or all employees are welcome to attend.

You will get a free 96

Letter to the Editor

page book that will take you step by step on setting up a plan for your situation in all of these disasters, including the phone numbers needed and plans you need to put into place in a disaster.

You will receive a free meal provided by Patricia Hamilton, Farm Bureau Insurance Agent. You will also get to hear from presenters from the K-State Research, Shawnee County Extension office, Shawnee County Veterinarian, Shawnee County Farm Service Agency, Shawnee County Sheriff's Office Animal Control, Kansas Department of Health and Environment, Shawnee County Natural Resource Conservation Service, Shawnee County Emergency Management, Shawnee County Farm Bureau, and the Topeka Police Animal Control.

The program and meal will be no longer than two hours. I think that you will find these two hours very well spent for family and animal safety. There will be a time to get all of your questions answered by each of the experts.

Please call in your reservations to Joanne at 785-232-0062 for meal and materials needed.

Hope to see you on November 16.

Sincerely Yours,
 Leroy Russell

USDA proposes improvements to help deliver disaster assistance more quickly to producers

WASHINGTON – U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Farm Service Agency (FSA) administrator Bruce Nelson has announced that USDA is accepting comments on a proposed rule to streamline the process for its Secretarial Disaster Designation, allowing farmers and ranchers devastated by natural disaster to obtain assistance faster. The improvements outlined in the proposed rule aim to cut the time to make a disaster designation by as much as 70 percent. Designating disaster counties is a key step to authorizing disaster assistance for some of the programs administered by USDA. Disaster assistance provides support to American producers as part of the farm safety net. USDA believes that a strong farm safety net is important to the vitality of American agriculture. "America's farmers and rural communities are vitally important to our nation's economy, producing the food, feed, fiber and fuel that continue to help us grow," said Nelson. "Therefore, it's crucial that we help farmers remain productive through difficult times. When disaster strikes, this proposal will help us provide assistance more quickly, streamlining processes from six steps to two. That's the kind of improvement we need to make."

A natural disaster designation makes all qualified farm operators in the designated areas eligible for a variety of assistance from USDA, including low interest emergency (EM) loans and the Supplemental Revenue Assistance Program (SURE). The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to designate disaster counties to make disaster assistance programs available to farmers and ranchers. Currently, designations require a state governor or Indian tribal council to initiate disaster designation through a formal request of the Secretary. The process has been in place for more than two decades and regulations have not been substantively revised since 1988. Streamlining the process from six steps to two will enable USDA to help those in need in an expedited manner, allowing farmers and ranchers devastated by natural disaster to obtain emergency loans faster than before. Additionally, the proposed rule can help to ensure all eligible disaster counties receive a designation.

The proposed rule for

Secretarial Disaster Designations:

Streamlines the USDA Secretarial designation process from a six-step process to a two-step process. Expedites and simplifies the disaster designation process for severe drought occurrences by using the U.S. Drought Monitor as a tool to automatically trigger disaster areas with no further documentation. Removes the requirement that a request for a disaster designation be initiated by a state governor or Indian tribal council.

Huelskamp calls for new Farm Bill title to address over-regulation

Note: This rule still allows a state governor or Indian tribal council to request a Secretarial Disaster Designation.

The proposed rule, which is contained in the Federal Register dated Nov. 14, 2011, at www.regulations.gov, has a 60-day comment period. Comments on the proposed rule must be submitted no later than Jan. 13, 2012, to be considered.

For information about FSA and its programs, visit a local FSA county office or go to www.fsa.usda.gov.

Rep. Tim Huelskamp, a fifth-generation farmer, announced this morning that he will introduce legislation to add a Regulatory Title to the Farm Bill. The Freeing Agriculture to Reap More (FARM) Act will prohibit job-killing overregulation of agriculture.

"We need to free up America's farmers and ranchers so they can do their jobs," Huelskamp said. "The economic impact of overregulation is so devastating that Congress must target it in the next Farm Bill. Overregulation negatively impacts all agriculture, so it is time Congress address the costs bureaucrats impose through excessive rules, red tape, and requirements."

"At the 70 in-person town hall meetings I have hosted across the First District of Kansas — one of the largest agriculture districts in the country — time and again I have heard the same concern from farmers: Washington will be the death of them. They are not looking for more handouts from Washington, but rather need Washington to let them operate in the safe and responsible, yet productive, ways they have done for generations. The FARM Act allows our family farms to continue the family tradition without fear of expensive and unnecessary overregulation."

The FARM Act will perform the following functions:

- Prohibit regulation of emissions of greenhouse gases under the Clean Air Act.
- Clarify and expand current exemptions for farmers from federal commercial drivers license requirements.

• Prohibit regulation of farm dust.

• Permit the continued operation of sweep augers in grain bins.

• Allow farmers to haul adequate diesel fuel to the field to complete the job for the day.

• Prohibit the EPA from redefining the terms "navigable waters" and "waters of the United States" so as to impose additional regulations on water.

• Prohibit the creation of a livestock emissions tax.

• Increase the threshold for inspection and reporting requirements for animal dealers

• Prohibit funding for the White House Rural Council.

• Delay derivatives regulations of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act until a cumulative analysis can be performed.

• Amend regulations on farm transport that affect transportation of commodities and supplies by and for agricultural purposes.

• Prohibit the Department of Labor from imposing proposed burdensome regulations relating to youth farm employment.

Wheat planted into failed sorghum needs higher nitrogen rates

Research in Kansas has shown that wheat planted directly into grain sorghum stubble often yields less than wheat planted directly into soybean or corn stubble - unless higher nitrogen rates are used, said Dorivar Ruiz Diaz, K-State Research and Extension nutrient management specialist. When planting wheat into sorghum fields, producers are advised to use an additional 30 pounds per acre of nitrogen over the recommended rate based on soil test and expected yield, Ruiz Diaz said. If the wheat is planted no-till, an extra 20 pounds per acre of nitrogen is recommended on top of that.

This year, producers may have planted wheat into fields of grain sorghum that failed because of some combination of drought and heat. In this situation, it would still be a good idea to use a higher nitrogen rate for the wheat, the K-State agronomist said.

"Even though failed sorghum residue likely contains more nitrogen than normal, resulting in a lower carbon to nitrogen ratio than normal, this residue can still cause nitrogen immobilization in the fall," he explained. The amount of nitrogen left in the soil may be higher than normal if the sorghum crop failed, but there's no way to know for sure without taking a profile nitrate soil test, Ruiz Diaz said. If there's no time to do so before planting the wheat, then it's best to assume there will be little or no extra nitrogen in the soil, especially if the plants remained alive, he said.

LIVE GUN AUCTION NOVEMBER 19, 2011

K-State to host 2011-2012 lease workshops for agricultural tenants and landlords

Kansas State University will host workshops in 10 locations around the state over the next three months to address the intricacies of leasing agricultural land.

The workshops are designed to aid both landlords and tenants as they work to arrive at an equitable arrangement for Kansas farmland.

"Price volatility in recent years, particularly in the grain markets, has led to difficulties for landlords and tenants to determine and negotiate appropriate rental arrangements," said Kevin Dhuyvetter, K-State Research and Extension agricultural economist. "These day-long workshops are offered to help landlords and tenants manage the risk associated with rental agreements."

Presentations include: Introduction to Rental Arrangements; Ethics of Leasing; Using Excel Spreadsheets; and Using KSU Lease.xls (spreadsheet tool).

Workshop dates and Kansas locations are:

- Nov. 30 — Hutchinson
- Dec. 1 — Canton
- Dec. 12 — Syracuse
- Dec. 13 — Garden City
- Jan. 10 — Iola
- Jan. 17 — Manhattan

- Jan. 18 — Oakley
 - Feb. 7 — Scandia
 - Feb. 7 — Green (abbreviated program)
- More information, including how to register for each location, is available on the K-State Extension agricultural economics website: www.agmanager.info or by contacting Rich Llewelyn at 785-532-1504 or rwl@ksu.edu.

KDWP offers landowners cash for public fishing access

Kansas landowners can make as much as $150 per acre on their farm ponds and $1,500 per mile on streams for allowing angler access eight months out of the year. Kansas Department of Wildlife, Parks and Tourism (KDWP) fisheries biologists are preparing for the 2012 fishing season by conducting fall lake samplings, stocking fish, and working with landowners to enroll their waters in the Fishing Impoundments and Stream Habitats (FISH) program.

The FISH program solicits willing Kansas landowners to allow public access to their ponds, streams, and rivers from March 1 to Oct. 31, providing supplemental income for landowners while increasing public fishing opportunities. The FISH program offers to lease ponds for $75 to $150 per acre, depending on location and boating access availability. Some areas of the state lack public fishing opportunities, so this year, sign-up bonuses are available.

Kansas' streams also provide great fishing opportunities, and the FISH program leases these for public access, as well. Stream lease amounts vary depending on fisheries quality but range from $500 to $1,500 per mile for fishing access. A new initiative of FISH is to garner public access for paddle sports like canoeing and kayaking, and landowners who also allow paddle sports could receive annual leases of $1,500 to $2,250 per mile. Funding is limited, and longer stretches of stream are preferred. Interested landowners should discuss joining with up- and downstream neighbors to increase chances of enrollment.

Kansas' navigable rivers — the Kansas, Missouri, and Arkansas — are public waters. However, the public must have access to use these resources. To increase this access, FISH leases access sites. Big river access site lease rates range from $1,500 to $2,000 per year, depending on location.

These partnerships provide the public with many high-quality angling opportunities. Landowners receive additional income from their land, some liability protection, and increased law enforcement patrols. Some landowners also receive supplemental fish stockings and habitat improvements. KDWP wants to significantly increase enrollment in 2012, so landowner incentives to participate are greater than ever before.

The FISH program provides the opportunity for willing landowners to partner with KDWP to help expand fishing opportunities in Kansas. Landowners are compensated; landowner rights are protected; property is respected; fishing resources are wisely used; and the future conservation of the state's natural resources is supported. Enrolling in the FISH program is a win for all involved.

Anyone who owns a pond, stream reach, or big river access and is interested in joining KDWP to preserve this great outdoors heritage should consider enrolling in this program. Details — including program contact form, rates, sign-on bonus maps, program rules, and detailed benefits for landowners and anglers — may be found online at FISH.KSoutdoors.com.

Murphy Tractor & Equipment Co., Inc. adds to sales staff

Murphy Tractor & Equipment Co., Inc. has promoted one of their service technicians, Chris Crum, to compact equipment sales manager as of late October. As part of his new position, he will be responsible for compact track loader, skid steer and compact excavator sales in the northeastern Kansas area.

Chris has worked for Murphy Tractor for almost five years as a service technician at the Wichita location before being promoted to compact equipment sales manager. He graduated from Butler County Community College with an associate's degree in agribusiness before attending a career partnership program at Southeast Community College in Milford, Neb., where he earned an associate of applied science degree in John Deere construction & forestry technology. "The addition of Chris will bring great exposure to our customers to the updated D-Series product line John Deere offers. Chris's energy will quickly be seen as a problem solver and will result in increased awareness of what Murphy Tractor and John Deere represents," said Mike Curry, Topeka branch manager.

Sankeys Justified 101 won reserve grand champion bull at the 2011 Northern International Livestock Exposition (NILE) Roll of Victory (ROV) Angus Show, Oct. 21 in Billings, Mont. Chris & Sharon Sankey, Council Grove, own the January 2011 son of Sankeys Lazer 609 of 6N. He first won junior calf champion. Travis Pembroke, Fairview, Okla., evaluated the 88 entries.

Headed into winter dormancy, wheat crop is in good shape

Planting of the 2012 wheat crop is all but finished in Kansas and by most accounts, the crop is off to a good start, according to members of the Kansas Wheat Commission and directors of the Kansas Association of Wheat Growers, who met in Salina for a joint board meeting Nov. 8.

Palco farmer Mike McClellan says wheat planted early has received adequate late fall moisture and appears to have recovered from exceedingly dry conditions at planting. Later planted wheat is starting to green up nicely, says McClellan, who serves on the KWC.

In west central and southwest Kansas, commissioner Jason Ochs says rains have been timely, allowing later-planted wheat to look very good. However, fall rain showers have eluded KAWG director Jay Cook, who farms in Finney and Lane counties. In Finney County, much of the planted wheat has yet to emerge. "In Lane County, the wheat has come up but we have spotty stands," says Cook. "We're kind of in a bad area."

Many farmers had to replant wheat after a late September rain caused emergence problems, says Gary Millershaski, KAWG vice president from Lakin. Wheat in Kearny County looks fair to good; wheat acreage in the region is up about 10%, Millershaski adds. In neighboring Scott County, KWC chairman Rich Randall says wheat north of Scott City is excellent. However, areas of Logan, Gove and Wichita counties received too much rain and got buried; much of that had to be replanted. Farmers planted more wheat this year than the last few years, Randall says.

Scott Van Allen, commissioner from Sumner County, says much of wheat in south central Kansas was planted into dust, but two days of slow, steady rain in late September put that wheat in excellent shape. "Wheat acres in this area are up significantly," Van Allen says. "All the corn and soybeans that failed this summer have been planted to wheat. I'm optimistic about the crop in this area."

Justin Knopf says drought-stricken fall crops in Saline County were destroyed and planted into wheat. However, until rain showers this week, the region had not yet received enough moisture to overcome the lack of subsoil moisture. "The wheat looks average," says Knopf, a KAWG director who farms near Salina. "There is poor root development and until this rain, we've seen some signs of stress."

Michael Jordan, KAWG's secretary-treasurer from Beloit, says wheat acreage is stable in north central Kansas. Wheat planted in late September is in good condition, but that planted into row crops after fall harvest is just beginning to grow.

Jay Armstrong, Kansas Wheat Commission secretary-treasurer from Muscotah, says most of the wheat in eastern Kansas was planted in mid-September and should be further along. Dryness has slowed its development.

In its Nov. 7 Crop Progress report, Kansas Agricultural Statistics Service says 87% of the crop has emerged and rates it as 45% good to excellent and 43% fair. Rain and snow showers fell throughout much of Kansas Nov. 7-8, providing much-needed moisture to the young wheat crop, which will soon be going into dormancy for the winter.

The drought monitor still shows that much of the HRW Belt is very dry, but that doesn't concern traders too much right now. Other than that the news is bleak. Export sales are poor and the fact that wheat is cheaper than corn in most of the United States isn't improving domestic demand. This market is in desperate need of a good export sales week in both the wheat and the corn.

On the charts, the market isn't extremely oversold, which is bothersome, and the July KW won't uncover solid support until we reach the $7.00 area. One could make the case that if the market can hold near $7.00 then we may have scored a long term bottom, but I think we will have to have some sort of positive fundamental news for that to happen.

The 195 million bushels of ending stocks that USDA estimated in the report is definitely plenty, so there is little fundamental reason for the soybeans to move higher unless demand improves. For the week the January beans lost 45½ cents.

On the charts, the market is oversold and the October low did hold Friday, which could be a reason for a short covering bounce if we had some kind of spark to trigger buying interest. It will be very important that the $11.65 area holds in the January contract on Monday, otherwise failure of the support will suggest that a move down to $11.00 is warranted.

Cash cattle traded at $125 and up last week, but the December live cattle lost about $3.50. That is good news for hedgers, but not for speculators thinking the strong cash trade would support the market.

Choice beef went above $190 and the choice select spread is still wide, which means the fundamentals are still very bullish. The charts, however, are telling us to be cautious. The February LC keep stalling out around the $126 area and are now back below the 50-day moving average. I look for there to be strong support at $121, but if that fails, look out.

Beef Quality Assurance training scheduled in Wichita

TOPEKA, Kan. — The Kansas Beef Council (KBC) and the Beef Cattle Institute at Kansas State University (BCI) are hosting a Beef Quality Assurance (BQA) training and certification workshop November 30, 2011, in Wichita. There is no charge to attend the workshop which will be conducted in Osage Room 207 at the Century II/Hyatt complex located at 400 West Waterman Street. In addition to BQA training and certification, participants also will study animal welfare assessment tools, animal husbandry best management practices and proper downed animal care, plus receive humane euthanasia training.

"The goal is to further train producers to improve their ability to increase consumer confidence in beef products," said Dan Thomson, DVM, Assistant Dean of Outreach, Associate Professor-Jones Professor of Production Medicine and director of BCI.

Beef consumers are more aware than ever about the quality and safety of the food products they purchase and have growing interest in how animals are raised. The BQA program is the cornerstone of the beef industry's quality and safety efforts. The standard goal of BQA is to deliver a healthy, safe and wholesome beef product to consumers. BQA includes hazard analysis and planning; proper vaccine handling; administration of vaccines at the proper injection site; management documentation and recordkeeping; and proper cattle handling and care.

The beef checkoff-funded event begins with a complimentary lunch at 11:30 a.m. and will conclude by 3:00 p.m. Lunch is sponsored by Allflex USA/DeStrom Fearing and MWI Veterinary Supply. Attendees are asked to pre-register by November 25 by calling the KBC office at (785) 273-5225 or by emailing kbc@kansasbeef.org. If calling after business hours reservations can be left in a voice message.

Murphy Tractor & Equipment Co., Inc. welcomes Lance Green

Murphy Tractor & Equipment Company has recently added Lance Green to their Kansas City, Mo., location as a compact equipment sales manager. He will be responsible for compact track loaders, skid steer and compact excavator sales in the northern Kansas City metro area.

Before joining Murphy Tractor, Lance worked for his family business, then moved to the sales industry shortly after. He grew up in Richmond, Mo., and graduated from Missouri State University, where he studied both business and psychology. "Lance is well-rounded and he brings experience from the other side of the fence. He understands the business from the perspective of a customer, a governmental entity and that of the supporting dealer," says branch manager Greg Knipp.

GIPSA rule modified and split

Recently USDA submitted modified sections of the proposed GIPSA livestock marketing rule as Final and Interim Rules for review by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). The Final Rule contains provisions required by the 2008 Farm Bill — the sections related to suspension of delivery of birds, additional capital investment criteria, breach of contract and arbitration — in addition to a section on swine and poultry sample contracts. The separate Interim Rule contains a modified version of the section on poultry tour- nament systems and is open for additional public comment. According to information posted on the OMB website, USDA is no longer pursuing several provisions from the original proposal, including the sections that prohibit packer-to-packer sales, prohibit a packer buyer from buying for more than one packer and require packers to maintain records. The remaining provisions from the original proposed rule remain under consideration, meaning USDA will not be submitting, at least not anytime soon, the sections that prohibit undue preferences or the section that changes the definition of competitive injury.

Sell Or Buy

We sold 1519 cattle November 8. There was good demand for steer and heifer calves at steady prices. Feeder steers and heifers sold on a steady market. Cows and bulls were steady. There was a barn full of buyers for the special cow sale, and there was good demand for those offered.
