Schwieterman Market Outlook

A marketing commentary by Bret Crofts

Friday is the December supply and demand report, but December reports are typically very dull and don't have many changes. Unfortunately we will have to wait until the January report before we see any major adjustments to the supply and demand tables.

Last week's news from the outside markets was somewhat friendly, or at least it wasn't as bad. The debt situation in Europe is still unresolved, but an announcement by our Federal Reserve and several other central banks this week that basically indicated the Fed would be available for the world's liquidity needs certainly lifted some spirits and the drop in the U.S. unemployment rate is encouraging even though it implied that a lot of people quit looking for work. The Dow Jones gained over 800 points for the week due to that friendly news and gold was up about $60 due to the prospects of increased liquidity and more potential for inflation.

Unfortunately the strength in the outside markets didn't spill over into the corn market. The March corn did gain 5 cents for the week, but there was an awful lot of bear spreading Thursday and Friday which is not a good sign. Export sales were poor again at 280,600 MT for the old crop and analysts have had a field day with just how poor sales have been recently. Apparently sales over the last several weeks have been the worst in over 30 years for this time of year. The cumulative sales pace is now below last year and traders are talking about a lower export estimate in the January report. I will point out that sales have been slow in the fall the last few years and then picked up after the first of the year and that may happen again this year. The problem, however, is that traders are going to want to see the sales materialize before they try to buy corn and most likely speculators are going to be willing sellers until better export demand shows up.

On the chart, the $5.88 area is critical support in the March corn. Failure at that level would do major chart damage and suggest that we are in for a move below the $5.00 level. It is hard to imagine that much pressure in the corn with ending stocks as tight as they are and basis as strong as it is, but right now the onus is on the bulls to prove there is a reason to be concerned about supplies and that won't happen without better demand.

The wheat market performed pretty well last week. We have had two consecutive weeks of solid export sales with this week's total at 503,000 MT. Like the corn, what the wheat market needs more than anything is big demand numbers. It didn't hurt that traders were moving out of the long corn, short wheat spreads either. In reality it will take more than just two weeks of good sales to keep the wheat market moving higher and the wheat won't be able to post consistent gains without strength in the corn.

The soybeans also performed fairly well last week gaining about 30 cents. The trade was very choppy, but at least it was choppy/higher. Several technical indicators are giving buy signals and short traders are covering their positions. Export sales came in at 489,600 MT, which is down from recent weeks, but still better than what we need to see each week. Chinese buying has been more active, which is a big help and if it continues at the recent pace, USDA will have to increase the export estimate, and that would change the complexion of the supply and demand tables dramatically. A cautious way to approach reownership in the soybeans would be to buy the $12.00 - $13.00 bull call spread and sell the $11.00 put.

Cattle futures were higher last week even though cash trade wasn't quite as strong as last week and the beef market was lower. There was still a lot of trade at the $124 area and with the December futures at less than $122, I really expected bigger gains in the live cattle futures. The December LC only picked up 80 cents for the week and the January feeders gained about $2.00. I still like the fundamental outlook of the cattle market. Supplies are too tight and demand is too strong, which is a great combination for prices.

Kniebel recognized as RAA Outstanding Junior Member

Cassandra Kniebel of White City received the Outstanding Junior Member Award from the Red Angus Association of America (RAAA) at the Red Angus National Convention in Durham, N.C., Sept. 15-16. Dawn Bernhard, RAAA junior programs coordinator, presented the award.

"Cassie possesses a can-do spirit," said Bernhard who worked closely with Kniebel when she served on the Junior Red Angus (JRA) board the past two years. "She excels in her scholastics and extracurricular activities, exhibits integrity, honesty and high moral ethics in all aspects of her life, and brings excellence, enthusiasm and energy to all her JRA endeavors."

Kniebel served as first vice president and the fundraising director of the JRA. She played an integral role in planning and organizing the 2011 JRA Roundup that toured in Missouri and Kansas.

Kniebel also contributed her artistic talent to the JRA by creating a 3-D project of an original print by C.J. Brown entitled "The Reds At Lick Creek" that was auctioned off at the 2011 Red Angus National Convention.

In June 2011, Cassie was the undergraduate recipient of the Roy A. Wallace Memorial Scholarship granted by the Beef Improvement Federation.

Kniebel is a junior majoring in Animal Science and Agribusiness at Kansas State University in Manhattan. She also maintains an active role in her family's Red Angus operation.

"Cassie is a true ambassador and advocate for Red Angus and the beef industry," said Bernhard.

Washington County FFA Nursery and Landscape team places second nationally

The Washington County FFA Nursery and Landscape Team consisting of Amanda Bryant, Korey Welch, Ashley Stewart and JoLynn Hennerberg finished as the second place Team in the nation at the National Nursery and Landscape Career Development Event in Indianapolis, Indiana. For the past five years of this competition, Kansas has had the either the first or second place team in the nation in this event (Wash. County - 2nd 2007, Linn - 1st 2008, Wash. County - 1st 2009, Wash. County - 2nd 2010).

The team members all placed in the top one-third individually. JoLynn Hennerberg led the way by placing as the seventh high individual in the overall competition and received a $1000 scholarship. Ashley Stewart placed 11th Individually, Amanda Bryant placed 13th and Korey Welch landed in the High Silver Division, just out of the Gold.

The National FFA Nursery Landscape CDE is a competitive activity in which FFA members test their knowledge and skills in nursery practices and landscaping. Contestants must complete a general knowledge exam testing horticultural principles including plant anatomy, production, marketing, turf, landscape design and maintenance. Each participant must also complete practicums involving a landscape drawing, landscape estimating, plant propagation or potting, identification of plants, disorders and equipment.

Washington County FFA Nursery and Landscape Team members winning second place at the National Nursery and Landscape Career Development event at the National FFA Convention included, from left: John Kern, Advisor, Korey Welch, JoLynn Hennerberg, Amanda Bryant and Ashley Stewart. They were joined by STIHL representative Roger Phelps.

The National FFA Nursery/Landscape CDE is sponsored by Arysta LifeScience North America, Kubota Tractor Corporation and STIHL Inc. as a special project of the National FFA Foundation.

Since they have competed at the national contest, the team members are now ineligible to compete in the FFA Nursery/Landscape career development event at the high school level.

As a result of their performance, STIHL Incorporated will sponsor the students to attend the PLANET (Professional Landcare Network) Student Career Days, an annual three-day competitive event among students enrolled in horticulture programs from colleges and universities across the country. This year's event will take place at Kansas State University in Manhattan. STIHL annually sponsors the first and second place teams in the National FFA Nursery/Landscape competition to attend this event to promote the Green Industry. This is the fourth time that the Washington County FFA Chapter members have been sponsored to attend this event.

Korey Welch is the son of Dennis and Susan Welch, Haddam, JoLynn Hennerberg is the daughter of Russ and Stacy Hennerberg, Hollenberg, Amanda Bryant is the daughter of Marc Bryant and Vicki Scheele of Washington and Ashley Stewart is the daughter of Rod and Kannette Stewart, Washington.

Other student delegates representing the Washington County FFA at the National convention were Colton Linenberger, Chris Pinnick, Faith Ceerle and Jacki Zenger. Mr. Marc Bryant and Mrs. Teryl Goeckel assisted as sponsors for the group during the convention.

McCurrys inducted into Angus Heritage Foundation

When the Angus Heritage Foundation was established in 1983, the American Angus Association® described the purpose as, "An incalculable debt to the many men and women who, for more than a century, have worked tirelessly and selflessly to make Angus cattle and the American Angus Association the leaders in the beef cattle world."

The tradition continues as five new members join the ranks this year.

The 2011 inductees include Jerome "Jerry" Helgren, Lake Villa, Ill.; Anne Patton Schubert, Taylorsville, Ky.; Walter "Cecil" and Sandra McCurry, Mount Hope.; and Gary Dameron, Lexington, Ill. Lucile Rheude Patton, formerly of Earl Park, Ind., was inducted posthumously.

Inductees were recognized during the American Angus Association's Annual Awards Banquet on Nov. 14, in Louisville, Ky. Each inductee or a family representative received a framed Angus Heritage Foundation certificate, and all names will be permanently engraved on the Heritage Foundation plaque displayed in the library of the Association headquarters in Saint Joseph, Mo.

Denoted as Angus cheerleaders, Cecil and Sandra McCurry promote the Angus breed and Certified Angus Beef® brand to all who will listen.

Cecil is the youngest of six sons of Walter and Cora McCurry. His Angus roots began in 1928, before his birth, when his parents purchased their first Angus heifer from pioneer Angus breeder, Johnson "J.W." Workham, Cora's brother. With their initial purchase, the McCurry Brothers Angus Ranch formed. His father's advice, "Stay in the middle of the road" when breeding cattle, is still the rule of thumb at the McCurry Angus Ranch.

Cecil and his brothers traveled to shows across the country and have exhibited several champion bulls, females and cow-calf pairs at the National Western Stock Show (NWSS).

Cecil has been active in the Kansas Angus Association for many years and was on the state board of directors in the 1980s, serving as president in 1988. He also served on the American Angus Association Board of Directors from 1995 to 2001.

Sandra, Cecil's wife, is a lifetime member of the American Angus Auxiliary. She has served on several committees and received the Distinguished Woman Award in 2003. She was also selected as an honorary advisor to the National Junior Angus Association (NJAA) Board of Directors.

Cecil and Sandra have three sons — Brad, Greg and Geoff, 10 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Nathan Doss and Austin Durst were named National FFA Proficiency Award finalists at the 2011 National FFA Convention.

Durst, Doss named 2011 National FFA Proficiency Award finalists

Washington County High School was honored in the Supervised Agricultural Experience Program recognition with two students Being Named as National FFA Proficiency Award Finalists at the 2011 National FFA Convention.

Proficiency awards recognize FFA members who excelled as agricultural entrepreneurs, employees or volunteers while they gain hands-on career experience. A total of 47 FFA proficiency award categories are offered at the local, district, state and national levels.

Austin Durst is one of four 2011 Grain Production — Entrepreneurship National Proficiency Award Finalists. This award is nationally sponsored by Pioneer Hi-Bred, A DuPont Business. He first started his production Agriculture SAE by renting 40 acres of farm ground to raise corn and soybean crops for the past two growing seasons. Austin has learned a great deal about preparing the soil, planting, managing pests and harvesting the crops he has raised. Austin has also learned and utilized a variety of marketing techniques to make manage risk and increase profitability. He works closely with his parents and exchanges his labor on their farm for equipment, supplies and facility use. After graduation, Austin plans to return to the family farm when he has completed his Farm Management degree requirements at Southeast Community College in Beatrice, Nebraska. Austin's parents are Ed and Jennifer Durst.

Nathan Doss is a 2011 National Finalist (final four overall) in the Swine Production — Placement Proficiency Award area. This award area is nationally sponsored by Kemin and Sunglo Feeds/Akey. He first started his SAE when he began working with at the Ag Management Swine Production Facilities in 2008. His responsibilities included feeding, vaccinating, and maintenance. As his experiences grew, he soon became active in managing breeding, artificial insemination and performing several duties of the operation on his own. Nathan has been steadily improving his skill level and getting more involved with the operation of the facilities each year. Nathan is currently a senior and plans to attend college upon graduation majoring in livestock production. Nathan is the son of Justin and Paige Hill.

Both Nathan and Austin were awarded $500 cash prizes and a plaque for their achievement in their SAE programs.

Rose named finalist for Star Farmer of America title

Tyler Rose, Washington County, was honored as a finalist for the coveted Star Farmer of America award this year.

Tyler first started his SAE by purchasing eight sows and raising the pigs in a farrow-to-finish operation, marketing the best of his offspring as show pigs. Over past few years, he had changed the emphasis of his operation to evolve into the most profitable production system that his resources would allow. During his junior year of high school, he phased out his farrowing program to expand into purchasing feeder pigs, feeding out nearly 250 hogs at any given time. When he left home to attend Southeast Community College in Beatrice, Nebraska, he dissolved his swine production program and switched his emphasis to beef cattle, crops and hay production. In the past three years, he has grown this program into owning 87 cow/calf pairs and five bulls. He also fed out 94 steers in the feedlot in 2009 and raised 36 calves through a special short term calving program. He has acquired operating loans to manage his program and recently purchased farm ground to go with the acres that he is currently renting. Tyler also rents pasture, prairie hay and alfalfa to produce feed for his livestock. Tyler has also purchased a variety of livestock buildings, machinery and equipment to handle his operation. He works closely with his parents and exchanges his labor on their farm for some use of equipment, feed, supplies and facility use. Tyler hopes to further develop his business into a full time career and plans to return to the family farm once he completes his education at Southeast Community College. Tyler received a check in the amount of $2000 dollars and a plaque. Tyler was the 2010 State Star Farmer and a two-time State Proficiency Award winner. His parents, Dewayne and JoAnn Rose, received the Honorary American FFA Degree as a result of their efforts in assisting Tyler with his accomplishments in the national FFA organization.

Tyler Rose, Washington County, was a finalist for the Star Farmer of America award at the National FFA Convention in Louisville, Ky.

Governor announces 2012 water policy legislation

TOPEKA - Gov. Sam Brownback has announced his administration's 2012 legislative proposals to promote water conservation, grow the economy and create jobs in western Kansas.

"Without the Ogallala Aquifer, agriculture and all of its related businesses could not be sustained, manufacturing could not continue, recreational opportunities would diminish and the towns in the area would cease to exist," Gov. Brownback said. "Our proposed legislation will help to conserve and extend this vital resource so important to our state's economic future."

Brownback said the work on the proposals began at the Governor's Economic Summit on the Future of the Ogallala Aquifer in held Colby last July. The Summit provided a forum for stakeholders to discuss their concerns, ideas and visions for the future. Following the Summit, the Kansas Water Authority (KWA) appointed the Ogallala Aquifer Advisory Committee (OAAC), a 21-member committee consisting of KWA members and Ogallala stakeholders, to review short and long term solutions.

"The Ogallala Aquifer is the primary source of water for the western third of Kansas," KWA chair Gary Harshberger said. "It is essential to find ways to help extend and conserve the life of the aquifer."

Following the OAAC's and stakeholder input, the KWA developed the recommendations for the Governor's 2012 water legislation proposals:

- Amend appropriation act to eliminate "use it or lose it" for groundwater rights in areas closed to new water right development to protect those rights from unintentional forfeiture;
- Support legislation to provide a process for a proactive conservation plans (called Local Enhancement Management Plans, or LEMAs) that can have mandatory reductions, if supported by the Groundwater Management District, has corrective measures that address conservation needs, and is approved by the Chief Engineer;
- Allow development of additional groundwater Water Banks for a market-based program to relocate water use and provide conservation in water short areas; and

• Amend the multi-year flex accounts to give irrigators expanded capabilities to manage their crop water over a five-year period, a useful tool when there is limited water.

"The proposals are an important step towards addressing the depleting aquifer issues," said Tracy Streeter, Kansas Water Office director and Kansas Water Authority secretary. "The OAAC will continue to meet in 2012 to further discuss options to define and reach the goal to conserve and extend the useful life of the Ogallala aquifer as it is stated in the Kansas Water Plan."

Gov. Brownback made the Ogallala a high priority while he served as the Secretary of Agriculture more than 20 years ago. Current Kansas Secretary of Agriculture Dale Rodman also understands the importance of implementing water legislation.

"We need to build the Kansas agriculture economy and agribusiness opportunities in our state while also extending the Ogallala Aquifer for future generations of Kansans," Secretary Rodman said. "The Department of Agriculture, along with the rest of the Brownback administrative team, has worked diligently to listen to our stakeholders on how we can develop solutions that work for Kansas farmers and ranchers. We look forward to continuing to work with Kansans as we move towards implementation and consider future alternatives for balancing conservation and economic development."

The KWA, Kansas Water Office and Kansas Department of Agriculture staff will hold four public meetings around the state so stakeholders can learn more about the proposed 2012 legislation.

- Thursday, Dec. 8 Wichita, REAP Policy Summit, Drury Plaza Broadview Hotel, 2:30-5 p.m.
- Friday, Dec. 9

Yard & Garden Tips

By Gregg Eyestone

The Mexican Poinsettia

You may pick the best poinsettia from among 66 cultivars and be part of K-State research. Participants will have a chance to win one of ten unique poinsettia centerpieces. This will be on Wednesday, December 7 from 11 to 3. The poinsettias will be on display in the main concourse of the Throckmorton Hall greenhouse range which is along Denison Avenue.

The red poinsettia is a favorite Christmas time decoration. Several breeders have put a spin on the color red. Besides many shades of red, poinsettias come in white, marble, pink speckled and others. You can take a white one and dye it any color you want, such as purple.

Poinsettia plants became a Christmastime decoration because in their natural habitat of Mexico, they are in full flower at that time. Flowering is "photoperiodic" induced in the poinsettia. Without long nights, this plant will continue to produce leaves and will grow but will never flower.

The flowers themselves are not that eye-catching. They give way to the colorful bracts or modified leaves. However, the flowers are a good indicator of the maturity of the plant. A fresh poinsettia is one on which little or no yellow pollen is showing on the flower clusters in the center of the bracts. Really old plants are missing their flowers; however, the colorful bracts remain.

Once you make your selections, place your poinsettia in a spot with bright natural light, but don't let it touch cold windowpanes. The day temperature should not be more than 75 degrees F. with 60 to 65 degrees at night. Temperatures above 75 degrees will shorten bloom life, and below 60 degrees may cause root rot. Move plants away from windows at night or draw drapes between them to avoid damage from the cold.

Poinsettias do best with a constantly moist but not wet potting media. Examine the potting media daily for moistness. Picking up the container can be a good indicator of moisture. Heavy pots don't need water and light pots need moisture added. Water the plant until some water runs out of the container's drainage holes and the potting media is moist. Discard the excess water.

Researcher looking for ethanol from Eastern redcedar trees

The nuisance of Eastern redcedar trees has been well documented in Oklahoma and surrounding states during the past several years. They are a fire danger, an over-powering competitor for water among surrounding plants and are incredibly invasive.

However, researchers at Oklahoma State University are looking for a way to use this tree, which caused an estimated economic loss of $447 million to Oklahoma landowners nearly 10 years ago, as a natural resource. This pesky species has done nothing but grow and expand its coverage of land over that time, so losses are much higher now.

One of those researchers is Mark Wilkins, assistant professor in the department of biosystems and agricultural engineering, who is working on a project to make ethanol from the cedar trees.

“We are testing various processes to make it easier to use enzymes to convert parts of the redcedar wood into sugars that can be fermented to ethanol by yeast,” Wilkins said. “We also are looking at methods to extract the oil from the cedar wood since the oil is harmful to the yeast used to make ethanol.”

This research is funded through a grant from the South Central Sun Grant Initiative and could result in some strong implications for the state, region and country.

“Right now, most people want to cut the cedars, pile them up, and burn them, but you obviously are risking spreading embers and causing a wild fire doing this as well as releasing lots of smoke,” Wilkins said. “Also, there’s a cost to doing this.”

Oil and natural gas have provided for our energy needs for many years, but these resources will not last forever. “My team is trying to reduce or eliminate the costs of disposing of redcedars by converting them into a valuable product, fuel ethanol, which has a large market,” he said. “At the same time, we are producing a domestic fuel with a reduced carbon footprint compared to gasoline that should benefit the Oklahoma economy.”

Much of our oil comes from other nations, including several that face political instability. While oil production here in Oklahoma and the rest of the country provides jobs and improves our economy, oil production in other countries does not provide the same benefits. “My research is seeking to develop ways to make renewable transportation fuels that can replace the oil we currently buy from other countries while creating jobs here in Oklahoma and the rest of the U.S.,” Wilkins said. “A domestic renewable energy sector will keep more of our money here and strengthen our economy, and our economy definitely needs that.”
