

Storing round bale hay

By Robin Slattery, DEA, Animal Sciences, River Valley Extension District

It is amazing how early the growing season is this year. Already the wheat is turning, planting is wrapping up, and hay is being baled. As I drive through the countryside I see all types of storage systems for hay. The most common method of baling hay in Kansas is large round bales, mostly because of the low labor requirements. However, round bales are hard to stack and store in a barn, so many times are left outside and unprotected. Round bales do shed some rain, but significant precipitation also penetrates the bale and causes value loss.

Two types of value loss occur; reduced palatability along with digestibility, and dry matter loss. Dry matter loss is simply weight loss due to handing of the bale and decomposition of the hay. Reduced palatability is either from high moisture content at baling or most commonly, weather exposure. Cattle may refuse to eat or pick through hay more when it is heavily weathered and the nutritional value of the hay is also reduced. When considering both of these losses during storage, total value loss can easily be as high as 50%, and that's not considering what the cows waste when they eat it.

There are many factors that affect storage loss. The type of hay plays a large part; stemmy alfalfa, sudan, and mature cereal grains do not form a good "thatch" layer and deteriorate much quicker than grass hay if stored outside. Geographical location determines the amount of precipitation and humidity throughout the year. In western Kansas where both of these are low, round bales can be stored outside without much loss, whereas in eastern Kansas protection is needed to stop significant deterioration. Moisture content of the hay also determines storage losses. Most hay should be baled between 15-20% moisture, with 18% being ideal. Hay that is too moist will create heat and caramelize protein with additional mold losses, but if hay is too dry forage material such as delicate leaves can be lost when baling.

The storage site is critical to reducing hay loss. The area must be well drained with good air flow and sunlight. Weeds around bales and trees overhead will reduce the bales' ability to dry out after a rain and should be avoided. Stacking hay on old tires, pallets, railroad ties, or 3-4 inches of crushed rock all help significantly reduce storage loss on the bottom of the bale. Oklahoma State University has looked at storage loss differences in these methods and found the following for dry matter loss when hay is stored less than nine months: On ground with no cover 5-20% loss, on tires with no cover 3-15% loss, on ground with cover 5-10% loss, on tires with cover 2-4% loss, and enclosed barn less than 2% loss. Keep in mind this does not include the palatability or digestibility loss, so dollar value of loss will be much higher with these included. When considering how to arrange round bales to store them, there are a few things to keep in mind. When making a single layer of round bales, store in rows with ends tightly together in a north to south orientation.

Rows should be at least 3 feet apart. This allows equal sunlight to both sides, good air circulation, and protects the ends. Never put round edges of the bale together because this traps rain and snow. When making pyramids it is best to have them covered or significant loss will occur. Air flow is limited and bales do not dry well. The Canadian method (one bale on end with one bale stacked on top of it) has shown to have similar dry matter losses to single rows, so it is another good option. Net wrapped and twine wrapped bales have similar dry matter losses; most important is a tightly wrapped, dense bale. If covering bales, make sure material is suitable to hold up to wind and that tears are promptly mended. Hay stored under covering should be less than 18% moisture or excessive heat and mold can occur. Barn storage is always best when talking about hay losses, but by far the most expensive. Considering the high prices of hay last winter, it may be economical to look at indoor storage or other options to reduce hay loss rather than leaving the bales on the ground and unprotected.

Take some time this year to come up with a good storage location for your bales. You have too much investment in time, equipment, and your cow herd to let storage losses reduce the quality and quantity of your hay.

Are you considering double cropping after wheat?

By Michael Vogt,
Marshall County Extension

Wheat harvest will be earlier than normal this year and this may have many crop producers thinking about planting a fall crop, forage crop, or cover crop after wheat as a double crop. Planting a crop after a wheat crop is commonly called double cropping and is often done in our area. However, before farmers plant their double crop, there are many things to consider.

First, what herbicides were used? If a herbicide was used on the wheat crop, this may be the "go or no go" for whether double cropping a crop is possible. Many of the herbicides that are used to control broadleaf weeds in wheat have long rotational crop restrictions. Some planting restrictions are as long as 22 months for some crops. Some of these herbicide products have rotational restrictions of four months even with using STS soybean varieties, or ALS herbicide tolerant corn hybrids. So, know what herbicides were applied to the wheat crop before planting a double crop.

Fertilize and use a seeding rate according to your yield goal. Remember with double cropping yields may be lower than with a full-season crop depending on the growing season's rainfall.

Variety and hybrid selection and seed availability are important to consider when deciding whether to double crop or not. With an earlier wheat harvest, farmers will not need to change soybean maturities. If planting later in June, you might want to select almost full-season soybean varieties. For example, if you normally plant a Late-Group 3 or Early Group 4 soybean variety, you might consider going to an Early or Mid Group 3 soybean variety. If fields have not been in soybean production for several years, producers might consider inoculating the soybeans. Also, legume cover crops will need to be inoculated.

With late May or early June corn plantings, producers can use full-season corn hybrids. After mid-June, producers will want to go with shorter season corn hybrids. There is research from the Belleville Experiment Station where 112 day corn continued to out yield 100 and 108 day corn through mid-June under various stress conditions. So, if you are thinking about double crop corn, you will be looking at corn hybrid maturities that are in the 100 to 112 day corn area. Producers will want to reduce their corn seeding rate. Producers won't need to adjust maturities for sunflowers, grain, and forage sorghum and cover crops. Also, producers may not have a wide selection of what varieties/hybrids to plant due to last years drought affecting seed production.

Weather outlook for summer will have an impact on whether producers decide to double crop or not and what crop to plant as a double crop. There are a lot of organizations that do 30-60-90 day weather predictions. Producers should look at all sources. One source for weather predictions is the National Weather Service Climate Prediction Center at <http://www.cpc.ncep.noaa.gov/>.

Producers need to evaluate their profit/market outlook or the need for silage or hay or grazing when considering to double crop after wheat. For fall crops, producers should look at the futures market and their local grain elevators forward cash contracts to get an idea of where prices might be at harvest time or beyond and evaluate if double cropping will generate a profit. At this time, corn, soybean, grain sorghum, and sunflowers budgets for double cropping are profitable.

For haying/grazing/en siling, you need to evaluate if double cropping will produce enough forage to meet your livestock operations forage needs. Some forages to consider sorghum sudangrass, sudangrass, forage soybeans, and millet. Later in the summer, producers could plant radishes and turnips as a source of fall and winter pasture.

For cover crops, there are many goals such as a source of forage for livestock, to improve the soil, or to provide weed control. There are several cover crops and cover crop mixtures that could work during the summer such as sorghum sudangrass, sudangrass, forage soybeans, cowpeas, sunnhemp, buckwheat, millet, lablab bean to name a few. Once again, radishes and turnips are good cover crops and a source for fall and winter pasture.

Producers who are tenants and plan to double crop on rented land should communicate their plans with their landlord, especially if they don't typically double crop. In any lease situation, communication is crucial. In a share lease, producers could continue to share the expenses and revenues based on their established crop share percentages with their landlords. In a cash lease, a tenant is not obligated to compensate the landlord if a double crop is planted. However, it might be a good idea to compensate the landlord for the double crop. This could be done with rental payment or even sharing the expenses and the share of the crop with the landlord based on the percentage of contributions. If producers decide to plant a cover crop for the summer, they might consider planting sorghum-sudangrass, sudangrass, forage soybeans, cowpeas, or sunnhemp. In August, producers might consider planting radishes and turnips as a cover crop or forage for grazing.

Lastly, double cropping is a riskier cropping practice. Mentally, producers need to be prepared for growing conditions that may be hotter and drier and yields that are lower than full season crops. But, double cropping is a way to take advantage of an earlier than normal wheat harvest.

Bennington to hold 37th PRCA Rodeo

Professional rodeo, musical entertainment, and great barbeque, award winning specialty acts all come together at the 37th anniversary of the Bennington PRCA Rodeo May 31, June 1 & 2.

Jim Crowther of the New Frontier Rodeo Company will again provide the rodeo livestock.

The barbeque feed will begin each evening at 6:00 followed by a nightly music show at 6:30 and the rodeo competition at 8:00 p.m.

This year's musical entertainment will be Riders Ford, a high energy country band now touring the Midwest in support of their new album "We Rage On." There will be special performances by Flying Arena Stars, a trick riding act that has performed across the United States including the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas.

The rodeo again will feature the standard rodeo events, plus mutton bustin' each night. The mutton bustin' has limited entries and must be entered the night of the rodeo at the rodeo grounds.

The slack (excess entries that could not be run during the rodeo performances) will be held Thursday night after the rodeo.

Downtown activities will get under way Saturday morning with a 5K Fun Run. Other activities throughout the morning and afternoon include children's games, music and food vendors. Fun Day will end with a Street Dance after the rodeo until 1:00 a.m. for ages 18 and up. Music will be by Riders Ford.

The annual rodeo parade will be held Saturday, June 2 at 4:30 p.m. All entries are welcome and will be judged in three categories: adult division, children division, and horse/horse-drawn division, with trophies awarded in each category. Participants for the parade will line up at the North end of main street between 3:30 and 4:00 p.m. This year the parade is co-sponsored with the Bennington Pride Committee.

Advance tickets are available to the rodeo in Minneapolis at Bennington Oil and The Bennington State Bank for $10.00 for adults and $2.00 for children. In Bennington tickets can be purchased from Westside Ventures, The Bennington State Bank and any Bennington Lions Club member. The barbeque meal can be purchased on the rodeo grounds nightly.

The Bennington Lions Club PRCA Rodeo is the major fundraising activity of the Bennington Lions Club, Inc. Proceeds from the rodeo are used to support the civic activities in Bennington.

Kansas Hay Market Report

Hay trade slow. Demand light to moderate for dairy, stock cow, grinding alfalfa, grass hay and alfalfa pellets. Producers will finish the first cutting of alfalfa within the next week, some are on second cutting. Alfalfa yields are light to moderate, especially the second cutting, quality is reported mostly good. Prices are slow developing. The entire state could use a good rain for the alfalfa and to finish the wheat crop. Instead windy, warmer to hot weather is forecast. If you have hay for sale or pasture to rent or need hay or grazing, use the services of the Hay and Pasture Exchange: www.kfb.org/hayandpasture/default.htm

Breeding and growing organic wheat for bread topic of June 11 Field to Table Tour

A June 11 University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension field to table tour will give educators, nutritionists, health professionals, farmers and the public more information about breeding and growing organic wheat for bread quality and health.

The field to table tour at UNL's Agricultural Research and Development Center near Mead, Neb. will start at 10 a.m. and conclude at 3:30 p.m.

Participants will start with a visit to UNL organic research fields to learn how wheat is bred, how wheat works in an organic farm rotation, cover crops used with wheat and promising experimental lines for organic production.

Lunch will feature local artisan breads followed by a panel of local bakers who will discuss available wheat products and characteristics needed in flour for artisan bread.

Shelly Asplin, registered dietitian, and Mary Schluckebier, executive director of the Celiac Sprue Association, will discuss who requires a gluten-free diet, sources of gluten and challenges for those living gluten-free and for grain growers trying to grow for this market.

UNL research results also will be shared on an antioxidant study and wheat quality. For directions to UNL's ARDC, just 40 minutes from Lincoln or Omaha, visit <http://ardc.unl.edu/direct.shtml>. For lunch reservations, call Pat at 402-584-3837. For information about the conference, call Liz Sarno at 402-309-0944 or esarno2@unl.edu.

Conference fee is $15 to cover lunch.

Kansas Wheat Day planned May 30 in Hays

Kansas State University's Agricultural Research Center-Hays will hold Kansas Wheat Day on May 30. The program will take a look at the present and future, as well as honor the past, including recognition of Joe Martin, who retired after 32 years as K-State's wheat breeder at Hays.

Wheat Day, which will be held at the center, located at 1232 240 Ave. in Hays, begins with registration at 9 a.m. and the program at 9:30 a.m. The rest of the schedule includes:

10:00 a.m. – Field Plot Tour
11:00 a.m. – Recognition of Dr. Joe Martin, KSU wheat breeder
11:30 a.m. – Washington, D.C. Wheat Update – Jane DeMarchi, director of government affairs for research and technology, National Association of Wheat Growers
12:00 p.m. – Lunch – Sponsored by Kansas Wheat Commission – Kansas Wheat Innovation Center Update –

Aaron Harries, Kansas Wheat Commission

1:00 p.m. – Market Demand for Wheat Quality and Hard White Wheat – Matt Overturf, grain merchandiser, Skyland Grain Co., LLC
Wheat Day will end at 2 p.m.

More information is available by calling the K-State Western Kansas Agricultural Research Center-Hays at 785-625-3425.

The U.S. Farmers & Ranchers Alliance impacts America's food conversations

The U.S. Farmers & Ranchers Alliance (USFRA) held their spring meetings in St. Louis, Mo. The purpose of this event was to conduct the Board of Directors meeting and bring the Communications Advisory Committee (CAC) and Task Force members together for first face-to-face meeting.

"In its first 18 months, USFRA has made a significant impact on the conversation America is having about how its food is produced," said USFRA Chairman Bob Stallman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation. "Through our Food Dialogues, U.S. farmers and ranchers are actively engaging in this conversation by telling their personal stories of continuous improvement in the operations."

With nearly 80 affiliate and industry partner organizations supporting USFRA to date, Stallman stated these meetings allowed representatives from a majority of those organizations to convene and collaborate on activities in which USFRA will be engaging. Seventy individuals discussed USFRA's movement and the need to continue effective dialogue with top influencers and consumers.

"While there was some discussion of the progress to date, there was definite synergy around the movement USFRA has started, and excitement about the next steps to create more momentum," said CAC chair Forrest Roberts, CEO of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA). After CAC and task force members concluded meeting, the Board of Directors convened. Roberts said the remaining communications activities were outlined and approved, all tying back to USFRA's key objectives.

USFRA's key objectives are to increase share of voice in key media; provide information to policymakers/government officials; engage key customers decision makers; work with leading national influencers to create partnerships; and increase role of farmers and ranchers as the voice of animal and crop agriculture.

"The USFRA board of directors approved 2012-13 plans presented by the CAC, which included five key activities designed to enhance consumer confidence in today's agriculture," said Stallman. USFRA will host a June Food Dialogue in Los Angeles and a single

Food Dialogue event in New York City in November in conjunction with the fall USFRA Board of Directors meeting. USFRA will also begin the process of producing a documentary telling today's farmers stories, as well as launch a search for the "faces of agriculture" program. The AGgregator will be a web search tool that will be housed on the www.fooddialogues.com website.

FSA program deadlines approaching

Adrian J. Polansky, state executive director for USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) in Kansas, reminds producers that program deadlines are approaching.

"It is crucial that producers meet the deadline for these programs in order to receive disaster and income support," said Polansky. "FSA realizes that farmers and ranchers take risks everyday and these programs form part of the safety net that can keep producers operating after devastating natural disasters and during times of low market prices."

Producers must report acreages of all small grain crops to FSA by May 31, 2012. The final date to request a commodity loan or LDP on 2011-crop feed-grains, oilseeds, cotton, lentils, and sunflowers is May 31, 2012.

Signup for the Supplemental Revenue Assistance Payments (SURE) Program for 2010 crop losses will end June 1, 2012. The SURE program compensates producers for production and/or quality losses during times of disaster.

2012 Direct and Counter-Cyclical Program (DCP) and Average Crop Revenue Election (ACRE) provide income support when there is a decline in commodity prices. Program enrollment ends June 1, 2012. All producers receiving a share greater than zero on the DCP or ACRE contract must sign the contract no later than June 1, 2012.

ECP is approved in Edwards, Ellsworth, Rice and Stafford counties for eligible damage caused by tornadoes and high winds occurring on April 14 and 15, 2012. Producers may file an application for cost-share assistance under ECP during a signup period from May 14 through June 22, 2012.

Milk Income Loss Contract (MILC) program payments are available for commercial milk marketing's for February and March 2012. The production limitation for fiscal year 2012 is 2.985 million pounds. February 2012 Payment Rate is $0.3895043 per cwt. and the March 2012 Payment Rate is $0.82622432 per cwt.

Ongoing programs include Direct and Guaranteed Farm Operating and Farm Ownership Loans, Rural Youth Loans, Farm Storage Facility Loans, and Continuous Conservation Reserve Program.

Due to budget constraints, FSA can no longer mail regular newsletters. Producers are encouraged to provide their email address to the local FSA office to receive monthly newsletters and other bulletins by email.

USDA office will be closed Monday, May 28, 2012 in observance of Memorial Day. For more information please contact the FSA county office at the local USDA Service Center or visit www.fsa.usda.gov.

USDA reminds producers of approaching sign-up deadline

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Farm Service Agency (FSA) administrator Bruce Nelson reminded producers that enrollment for the 2012 Direct and Counter-Cyclical Program (DCP) and the Average Crop Revenue Election Program (ACRE) ends on June 1, 2012.

"We want producers to know that DCP and ACRE are still available for enrollment," said Nelson. "Producers who want to participate in DCP or ACRE must enroll their eligible farms. We encourage them to take the time to sign up before the deadline. Electronic DCP (eDCP) is a great option for enrolling during this busy planting season."

Producers who choose to participate in either the revenue-based ACRE safety net or the price-based DCP safety net must enroll their farms each year. All owners and operators who will share in the DCP or ACRE payments on the farm must sign up by June 1. Since 2009, producers have had the option to participate in DCP or ACRE. A producer who initially chose to remain in DCP has an option to switch to ACRE during the current enrollment period; however, producers who chose to enroll in ACRE cannot switch back to DCP.

Producers can make use of the electronic DCP (eDCP) automated website to sign up, or they can visit a nearby FSA county office to complete their 2012 DCP or ACRE enrollment form. eDCP saves time, reduces paperwork and speeds up contract processing. It is available to all producers who are eligible to participate in the DCP and ACRE programs and can be accessed at www.fsa.usda.gov/dcp. To access the service, producers must have an active USDA eAuthentication Level 2 account, which requires completing an online registration form at www.eauth.egov.usda.gov followed by a visit to the local USDA Service Center for identity verification.

For more information on DCP or ACRE, contact a nearby FSA Service Center or visit the FSA website at www.fsa.usda.gov/dcp.

Dry conditions add to wheat stress in western, central Kansas

Wheat fields in central and western Kansas could use at least one last good rain before harvest.

“Wheat is under stress in much of western Kansas south of I-70 and west of Pratt and Great Bend,” said Kansas State University’s Jim Shroyer. “In areas east of U.S. Highway 281, there are also areas where wheat is under stress, especially on terrace tops.”

Shroyer, a crops specialist with K-State Research and Extension, said the stressed wheat is generally showing some combination of the following symptoms:

- White heads, which developed very quickly over a wide area;
- Curled and dried up flag leaf;
- Tillers that have sloughed;

- Loss of one or more small developing kernels in the spikelet;
- Poorly developing kernels, and
- Chlorotic leaves due to poor root development and nutrient deficiencies.

Shroyer noted that the stress came on quickly this year.

“There were general rains earlier in the spring, and topsoil moisture was adequate in most areas until recently. But where subsoils were very dry after last summer’s drought, the wheat needed a regular supply of rainfall events this spring to support the top growth. Where that didn’t happen, the wheat quickly became stressed, especially during the periods of extreme heat this spring – the latest being May 4-5,” he said.

Heading and grain fill is a period of high moisture use, with wheat using about 0.25 to 0.30 inches of moisture per day. If the moisture isn’t available, the wheat will show symptoms, Shroyer said. The combination of dry soils and heat, in particular, will cause heads to turn white quickly, almost overnight. Any additional stress, such as diseases or insects, will add to the stress.

The agronomist noted that while cool weather has returned, the crop still needs another rain or two where it is dry.

“If rain comes to stressed wheat while the kernels are still in the milk stage of development or earlier, the wheat may be able to recover some yield and test weight potential as long as the flag leaves are still alive,” Shroyer said. “If the plants are under severe stress and shut down while kernels are in the early dough stage, it is unlikely that any subsequent rain will help the kernels complete their fill. This will result in a loss of yield and low test weight regardless of the weather during the remainder of the season.”

Exhibiting the champion Angus heifer at the Wild Bill Kick 'Em Up Shoot-out was Luke Sankey, Sedgwick County.

River Valley Extension District wheat plot tours — June 1 & 6

K-State Research and Extension – River Valley District, in cooperation with area commercial agribusinesses, will host a series of wheat varieties plot tours on Friday, June 1, and Wednesday, June 6. Two self-guided tours will also be available. These educational plots allow wheat growers to see side-by-side comparisons with new and standard varieties at varied locations. Among the district locations, producers will see demonstrations on cold tolerance and disease & insect resistance. Kansas Wheat Alliance is providing some of the refreshments at the tours.

This year's wheat plots tours will begin Friday, June 1, 6:30 p.m. at the Ohlde Seed Farm, Linn (four miles south of Linn on Osage Road). The tour will be followed by a meal sponsored by Ohlde Seed Farm.

On Wednesday, June 8, the day's tour will begin with K-State's North Central Kansas Experiment Field Tour (two miles west of Belleville on Highway #36 on the north side), 7:30 a.m. The tour will then move on to the Christian Tipton 4-H plot at 10:00 a.m. (Location: From Munden, two miles east, 3/4 mile south of Munden, east side of road OR one mile south, two miles east and 1/4 mile North of Munden.

Next will be the Republic County FFA Plot Tour (one mile west of the SW corner of Cuba) 12:00 noon.

The day's touring will then end with the Polansky Seed Plot Tour at 6:00 p.m. The plot is located two miles east of Belleville on Highway #36 on the south side. A meal will follow, sponsored by Polansky Seed.

Self-Guided Tours:

The Jay Bohnenblust FFA plot, Clay Center. The plot is located eight miles East of the Clay County Fairgrounds just North of the Broughton Rd. and Bayer Construction Quarry corner.

Ashley & Ryan Stewart's 4-H wheat plot. Location of the plot is six miles north of Washington on Quivira Rd, and 1/8 mile east on the north side of the road.

For more information, contact your local K-State Research & Extension, River Valley District Offices: Washington 785-325-2121 Belleville - 785-527-5084 Clay Center - 785-632-5335 or Todd Whitney, District Extension Agent, at the Concordia Office – 785-243-8185.

CKD3 wheat plot tours — May 25 in Saline County

K-State Research & Extension - Central Kansas District will host tours of three wheat variety plots in Saline County on Friday, May 25th.

The first tour will begin at 8:30 a.m. near Gypsum at the plots on Karber Farms, located ½ mile south and 1/4 mile west of Gypsum on Tinkler Rd. The plot features 11 wheat varieties no-till seeded into corn residue.

The second tour will begin at 11:00 a.m. near Mentor at the plots on the Vaughn Isaacson and Sons farm, located just south of the Old Hwy. 81/Mentor Rd. intersection. The plot features 16 wheat varieties planted into soybean residue. A complimentary meal will be served following the tour, courtesy of Phillips Seed Farms, Inc.

The third tour will begin at 2:00 p.m. near Solomon at the plots on the Tom, Pat, and Luke Ryan farm, located 3 miles west of Solomon on Old Hwy 40 and 1 ½ miles south on Gypsum Valley Rd. The plot features 14 wheat varieties no-till seeded into soybean residue.

K-State Research and Extension agronomist Stu Duncan will discuss variety selection and the agronomic strengths and weaknesses of the varieties in the plots. Erick DeWolf, Extension plant pathologist, will discuss wheat diseases in the 2012 wheat crop and the use of foliar fungicides.

For more information, contact Tom Maxwell, District Extension Agent at the CKD3- Salina office at 785-309-

American Angus Auxiliary to hosts heifer auction

The American Angus Auxiliary heifer auction is an ideal way to support the Angus community, and bring home top Angus genetics. Gardiner Angus Ranch of Ashland donated this year's heifer to be sold during "The Tradition Continues" auction, which is held June 17 in conjunction with the All-American Angus Breeder's Futurity at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center in Louisville, Ky.

"What makes the Angus breed so valuable is the American Angus Association®, the Angus Foundation and the American Angus Auxiliary," says Mark Gar-diner of Gardiner Angus Ranch. "We are happy to pull our weight and donate this outstanding heifer."

The auction presents the bred-heifer GAR Progress M381, sired by GAR Progress. She is bred to GAR Prophet and offers genetics that rank in the top 15% of the Angus database. Gardiner Angus Ranch will also donate transportation costs.

Auxiliary president Anne Lampe says the auction gives Angus breeders a chance to give back, and celebrate youth achievements: "We work diligently all year to guarantee scholarships for our Angus youth. They are the future of this breed, and with the help of this event, the future of the breed looks bright."

All proceeds from the auction will benefit the Auxiliary's scholarship and awards endowments held in the Angus Foundation, which are: 10 Auxiliary scholarships; the Crystal, Grote and Spader Awards; the Silver Pitcher Award; the Miss American Angus contest; the All-American Certified Angus Beef® (CAB) Cook-Off contest; and the National Showmanship Awards. The awards and scholarships are presented annually during the National Junior Angus Show, held this year July 15-21 in Louisville, Ky.

"The Gardiner family and American Angus Auxiliary are to be commended for their unwavering commitment to making a difference in the lives of our Angus youth," says Milford Jenkins, Angus Foundation president. "It's always a pleasure for the Angus Foundation to assist with this fundraising activity, as well as be the fiduciary steward of the Auxiliary's endowment funds."

For more information on the heifer auction or GAR Progress M381, visit the Auxiliary website at www.angusauxiliary.com.

Capturing champion Mainetainer heifer at the Wild Bill Kick 'Em Up Shootout was Lauren Prill, Cowley County.
