Teagarden named KLA chief executive

KLA president Jeff Sternberger recently announced Matt Teagarden is the new KLA chief executive officer (CEO). Teagarden, a member of the KLA staff since 2001, was named to replace current CEO Dee Likes after a nationwide search. The search committee's recommendation was approved by both the KLA Executive Committee and Board of Directors.

Teagarden has served as a key liaison between KLA staff and volunteer leaders during his 13 years as KLA director of industry relations and information technology. He is KLA's lead staff person on federal government relations, advancing KLA member policy through relationships with the Kansas congressional delegation and other agency contacts. Teagarden coordinates KLA member policy initiatives through NCBA by building consensus with staff and members of other state cattle organizations.

"Matt's dedication to KLA goes without question," said Sternberger. "He is not only qualified, but has the experience necessary to lead this great organization into the future."

He grew up on a diversified ag operation near LaCygne. Teagarden graduated from Kansas State University with a degree in agricultural economics. He and his wife, Stephanie, have a grown daughter, Allie, and son-in-law Kale Monk.

"It's an honor to be chosen to lead such a respected organization," said Teagarden. "We have a tremendous staff and I look forward to continuing the team-oriented approach that has served KLA members well." Teagarden officially will begin his duties as CEO January 1. He is only the ninth executive director in KLA's 120-year history. Likes will assume the title of KLA chief executive emeritus January 1, 2015. He will remain employed by KLA in an advisory role to work on future initiatives.

Kansas reaches agreement on Republican River Compact disputes

Kansas, Colorado and Nebraska officials announced recently that the three states have signed agreements resolving several Republican River Compact issues. One of the agreements ensures that the Kansas Bostwick Irrigation District in north central Kansas will have a viable irrigation water supply for the 2015 growing season while providing Nebraska certainty of the effectiveness of its compact compliance efforts. The other agreement ensures that Colorado and Kansas will work towards improving Kansas' water supply on the South Fork Republican River while authorizing Colorado to receive credit in the Compact accounting for operating its augmentation project on the North Fork Republican River.

"I'm pleased with the agreements we've come to with our neighbors in Nebraska and Colorado. There is still work to be done to strengthen our relationships and to administer the Compact together, but today's agreements are very important steps towards a much better long-term situation," Jackie McClaskey, Kansas Secretary of Agriculture said.

Kansas Gov. Brownback understands how important water is to the citizens of Kansas and is willing to fight for the water needs of the state and has directed his administration to work with Colorado and Nebraska to reach an agreement.

The two resolutions finalizing the agreements were unanimously approved in a special meeting of the Republican River Compact Administration held in Denver, Colorado.

"The Kansas team worked hard with our neighbors in Nebraska and Colorado to develop common-sense proposals that protect Kansas' rights under the Compact while balancing certainty and flexibility for all three states. We are encouraged by these agreements and will continue to work with Nebraska and Colorado to resolve the Republican River issues that still separate us. This is what the water users of Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado rightly expect of us," McClaskey said.

Officials from the Kansas Department of Agriculture and the Kansas Water Office will be holding informational meetings in the areas affected in the Republican River Basin over the next few months to update local stakeholders on the current agreements between the states and to learn more about local needs and concerns.

Wichita Farm & Ranch Show set for November 11-13

The 20th annual Wichita Farm & Ranch Show will be held November 11th, 12th, and 13th at the Sam Fulco Pavilion located at the Kansas Pavilions, Park City, Kansas. Doors open at 9:00 a.m. daily with Tuesday night's close at 5:00 p.m., Wednesday night's close at 7:00 p.m. and Thursday's wrap up at 4:00 p.m.

Admission and parking at the Wichita Farm & Ranch Show are free. "The 20th annual show is going together great, with huge interest in the livestock industry reflecting the current record livestock prices" said Steve Guenther, show manager.

tures cross-country and around the globe to share the amazing stories of people who bring good things to the world we live in. There is no admission charge to attend this seminar located in the northwest corner of Sam Fulco Pavilion.

Featured at this year's farm show are a full line-up of sprayers, building and seed manufacturers and once again a full lineup of livestock handling equipment. On display will be the newest in grain and livestock trailers plus a full line of scales, squeeze chutes, farm tools and accessories to complement any farming operation.

KFRM Market Shoot-Out VIII

Wow. Livestock producers are having great times, and the grain producer is in a year with good, fall production, poor wheat production, and terrible prices. Head to the Wichita Farm & Ranch

Show for KFRM's "Market Shoot-Out VIII" on Tuesday, November 11th. It all starts with Kyle's disappointing ham sandwich at 5:00 p.m. Pete Loewen, Tom Leffler, Derek Hermes and Mark Gold will be shooting it out in the KFRM corral. If you don't want to be looking down the wrong end of the pricing barrel when it comes to marketing your crops and livestock then don't miss the marketing event of the year. For tickets and information call KFRM at 1-888-550-5376.

Local horsemanship clinician Scott Daily will be working the horse training demos twice daily. The free clinic is being held each day: Tuesday 10:00 a.m. & 4:00 p.m., Wednesday 11:30 a.m. & 6:00 p.m., Thursday 10:30 a.m. & 2:30 p.m. Those attending Scott Daily Horsemanship Clinics can register

WTO rules COOL violates treaty obligations

The World Trade Organization (WTO) publicly released the official findings of a dispute resolution panel convened to review complaints by Mexico and Canada that the revised U.S. country-of-origin labeling (COOL) rule continues to discriminate against cattle and pork imports from those countries. The WTO panel agreed with Mexico and Canada that the U.S. COOL rule is discriminatory and constitutes a technical barrier to trade in violation of treaty obligations.

"In particular, the compliance panel concluded that the amended COOL measure increases the original COOL measure's detrimental impact on the competitive opportunities of imported livestock in the U.S. market, because it necessitates increased segregation of meat and livestock according to origin; entails a higher recordkeeping burden; and increases the original COOL measure's incentive to choose domestic over imported livestock," a summary of the WTO findings stated. "The detrimental impact caused by the amended COOL measure's labeling and recordkeeping rules could not be explained by the need to convey to consumers information regarding the countries where livestock were born, raised and slaughtered."

The U.S. has 60 days to appeal the ruling. If an appeal is filed, a new panel will be convened to review the case and issue a final WTO ruling on compliance – which could take an additional six months. If Mexico and Canada prevail, they would be authorized to seek compensation through retaliatory tariffs on U.S. products. Both countries have stated that they would avail themselves of these retaliatory measures, which would likely impact other commodities and products in addition to beef and pork.

Supermarket Shenanigans

By John Schlageck,
Kansas Farm Bureau

Why do you think your mom made a grocery list and stuck to it?

From the time you enter a supermarket parking lot until you reach the checkout counter, every part of a supermarket is designed to make you spend more money than you need to.

Look at your own shopping habits. How often do you dash to the store for milk and walk out with a box of donuts (they'll taste so good for breakfast), a big bag of chips and salsa (for fun), ice cream (it was on sale), a fresh baguette (it smelled so good) and an entertainment magazine – what has The Donald done with his hair now?

In case you hadn't noticed, you can buy happiness at your local supermarket. Prep yourself before you pull into the parking lot. Make a list before you leave home. Stick to it.

Warm colors attract shoppers to a supermarket. Cool colors create a pleasing environment once inside and encourage shoppers to linger longer and that means higher sales.

The first thing most of us do when we walk through the doors is reach for a shopping cart. You may not know, this 1938 invention was designed to let customers make larger purchases more easily. Heck, it's got wheels and plenty of room.

Most supermarkets put high-margin departments like floral and fresh-baked goods near the front door. They're located on your right and most people shop from right to left – just like driving your car. That way you'll run into such items when your cart is empty and you're still good spirits.

Another reason to start with flowers and baked goods is the smell. You can't help but follow your nose as you begin salivating and increase your speed toward the apple fritters. In less than two minutes time you've purchased a dozen tasty treats. Yum.

It's almost unfair and you're well on your way to impulse buying – grocery list be damned. These siren departments make sure you're in a good mood and make you more willing to spend.

Where's the milk? You know – what you came here to buy in the first place?

Supermarkets stock dairy products and other essentials on the back wall so you must fight your way through, aisles of chips, candy, cookies and other snack food – the entire store – to find them.

Once many customers buy their first item, shopping becomes a quest. They walk up and down every aisle without deviating.

Supermarkets stack items they most want you to buy at eye level. For example, in the cereal aisle bulk items are placed at the bottom. Healthy cereal is stocked at the top while expensive, brand-name cereal is situated at eye level, usually at the end of aisles.

A couple of months ago I took my oldest granddaughter out for her birthday date. After watching the bakers through a large glass window at Radina's in Manhattan, we ventured over to the Flint Hills Discovery Center, where we proceeded to make many wonderful discoveries. After she'd put together all the puzzles on a big magnetic wall, explored underground wildlife and tried her hand at auctioneering and branding cattle, we went upstairs where there is no shortage of things for children to do. She made a new acquaintance at the giant Lite-Brite board, and the little girl followed her over to the Cowboy Calliope. This fascinating little gadget makes the sounds of wildlife in the great outdoors when you push its buttons. The chirping of crickets... the call of a bobwhite quail... the howling of coyotes.

"My daddy shoots and traps coyotes," she announced with enough volume you would have thought she was still holding the auctioneer's microphone. Her new little friend looked puzzled and her new little friend's eight-month-pregnant mother looked absolutely mortified.

"Well," I offered by way of explanation, "We can't have them dragging off baby calves, can we?"

And that was the end of the interaction.

Lila would have been more than happy to give further explanation about the puppy they lost to coyotes or how sad her daddy was when he found the calf they had killed and partially eaten... you know, all those harsh realities of life that country kids are so well-versed in. But I was afraid it might be a bit much for the little girl and her mom. So we moseyed on over to the next exhibit, Lila holding my hand and singing the coyote song her dad had taught her. It's set to the tune of 99 Bottles of Beer on the Wall and involved the number of calf-killing coyotes he had sent to their demise. Again, you'd have thought she still held

This is the week we have all dreamed of for about six months now. The elections are over and most of us could not be more relieved. Well, I guess unless you are a printing service, voice-over actor, U.S. Postal executive, TV ad salesman or political pundit. I don't know about you but I have never been so happy to get less mail and watch toilet paper commercials in my life.

It seems like each election cycle the ads get less and less civil. Elections now have become more about finding dirt on your opponent or telling us about how bad his or her decisions are and not about where you stand on the issues or what you will do if elected. Let me stop right now to let you know that I am not pointing the finger at any one candidate because all of them are guilty. Interest in civic duty and elections are at an all-time low and many people are turned off by candidate's actions. I suspect it is a reflection of our society in general but it in any case it is unacceptable.

Can we break this downward spiral of nastiness and mudslinging? It all starts with us as voters; it is our responsibility to push for more accountability from elected officials and candidates alike. We are the ones who have said we don't have time for anything more than 30-second sound bites and slick flyers. Reading and investigating where candidates stand takes too much of the time we don't have. That, my friends, needs to change.

Becoming informed voters is one of our greatest civic duties and, in fact, it may be the most important. We need to start following our elected officials' actions whether they are in D.C., Topeka or our county seat. It may be hard to know where they stand on issues during a campaign but it should be much clearer when they are on the job. If their stands on issues are not clear then you may have your answer for the next election.

If their stand is different than yours take time to correspond with them and find out why. Tell them your view-point and back it up. If they choose to differ then you have every reason to look for another candidate who more closely follows your viewpoint. Don't just confine this to one issue either; make sure you look at their whole body of work. Are they working to represent the values and ideas of the majority of the voters in your area?

I know this is all Civics 101 and we learned it back in grade school. Somehow I think we have all forgotten what we were taught. Remember how excited you were the first time you got to vote? Okay, maybe everyone is not the political nerd I am, but our right to vote is one of the most important rights we have. Are we valuing it and treating it with the reverence we should? Are our candidates treating us with the respect and reverence they should? In either case I suspect the answer is no and we need to go back to elementary school civics to change it.

That is why this short period between elections (and it is getting shorter all the time) is so critical. We need to make sure our elected officials know we are watching and that we care. If we don't agree with them we need to start looking for a candidate who best matches our values and beliefs and work to get them elected. That is when we can demand more from the campaigns of our candidates.

As informed, educated citizens who have been part of the process year-round, we can demand more information and less negative ads. We can find out where our candidates stand and have civil debates among ourselves about the direction our great nation should be headed. Our candidates could debate each other, talking about the issues while we listen thoughtfully. That would be a far cry from the sharp attacks on each other, while the crowd yells down the other side, that we saw in debates this year.

I know a certain amount of this has happened in every election since Washington but I am sure it is getting worse each election cycle. That is why I am asking, really pleading, with each of you as fellow voters and citizens to ask for a change, demand better. Then maybe an election year won't be something we dread, with relief coming the first Wednesday in November.

As we left, I was a little more proud of her than I was of myself. She was ready to offer a boisterous explanation of why we do what we do, while I was more afraid of making a scene and sending a woman into premature labor. I know that timing is everything, and it may not have been a perfect opportunity that I missed, but it definitely was an opportunity. I've been married to a hunter and trapper for 33 years and raised two sons who do the same. My husband has done damage-control trapping for many livestock producers and we know all too well the financial toll a pack of hungry coyotes can take on an operation in just one night's hunting and feeding frenzy. We've felt that pain in our own pocket-books.

Hopefully, if given the opportunity again, I will do a better job. Who knows, I've got three more grandkids to take on birthday dates to the Flint Hills Discovery Center. I might just get another chance.

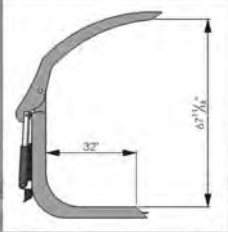

American AgCredit to sponsor Trent Loos at Wichita Farm Show

Trent Loos, host of Loos Tales, will speak at the Wichita Farm and Ranch Show on Thursday, November 13 at 12:45 p.m., sponsored by American AgCredit. Connecting rural and urban America by sharing the positive story of production agriculture has been the mission of Loos since he walked into a radio station in Spearfish, S.D. in 2000 and asked to do his own program. That dream of this sixth generation United States farmer, often touted as an agricultural activist, came true on January 8, 2001 when "Loos Tales" aired on radio station KMZU in Missouri. Today, three million listeners on nearly 100 radio stations in 19 states hear the show every day, along with many who listen online worldwide.

The 2014 Wichita Farm and Ranch Show will be held November 11, 12, 13 at the Kansas Pavilions in Park City. Admission and parking are free.

Hannah Martin, Salina, Shares Winning Recipe In Grass & Grain This Week

Winner Hannah Martin, Salina:
CREAMY PEANUT NOODLES
8 ounce spaghetti
2 tablespoons canola oil
1/4 cup chopped green onions
1/4 teaspoon ginger
1/3 cup creamy peanut butter
1/4 cup soy sauce
1/4 cup hot water
1 teaspoon apple cider vinegar
1 teaspoon sugar
Cook spaghetti in a large pot of boiling water until al dente. Drain. Meanwhile in a small skillet heat oil over low heat then cook onions, stirring, until tender. Increase heat to medium-low; mix in ginger, peanut butter, soy sauce, water, vinegar and sugar. Remove from heat. Toss spaghetti with sauce and serve immediately.

Lydia J. Miller, West-phalia:
BEEF JERKY
(not marinated)
1 1/2 pounds beef, sliced
1/4-inch thick to 1/8-inch thick
Salt substitute
1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon pepper
Arrange meat on racks. Sprinkle with salt substitute and pepper. Dry for 5 to 8 hours in oven at 150 to 180 degrees or dry in dehydrator at 110 to 118 degrees, until dry.

Claire Martin, Salina:
“This freezes well. Just cool to room tempera- ture, pack in a freezer container, date and freeze.”

EASY CHICKEN CHILI
7 cups chicken broth (or 4, 14.5-ounce cans)
(4) 10-ounce cans diced tomatoes w/green chiles
30-ounce can refried beans
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon cumin
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1/2 teaspoon onion powder
1 1/2 cups frozen corn
1 tablespoon cornstarch
5 cups cooked chicken, chopped
Garnish: shredded Monterey Jack cheese, sour cream, tortilla chips
In a large stockpot over medium heat combine first 8 ingredients. Bring to a boil. Mix cornstarch with 1/2 cup water and stir into pot. Reduce heat to low and simmer 10 to 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Add chicken and heat through. To serve, garnish as desired.

(NAPS) — Being diagnosed with diabetes doesn’t mean your life needs to lack flavor. While it’s important to pay attention to what you eat, there’s no need to sacrifice the sweet. Here are a few quick tips and simple substitutions to help you make healthier choices and get your taste buds talking:
• Eat fewer “empty calories,” including foods high in added sugar.
• Choose protein foods that are lower in saturated fat, such as fish and chicken without the skin.
• Flavor your food with fresh herbs and spices.
• Fill up with high-fiber foods, such as beans, lentils and whole grain breads and cereals.
• Substitute Equal zero-calorie sweetener for sugar in beverages and recipes. A leader among zero-calorie sweeteners and a national sponsor of the American Diabetes Association, Equal tastes good in hot and cold beverages from coffee and tea to iced tea and lemonade, sprinkled on cereal and fruit, and in most recipes that require sugar.
MAPLE PECAN BREAD

Food Product Dating: What does it mean?

Most consumers don't want to serve "outdated" food to their families, but they also don't want to throw food away unnecessarily. However, the current system of food product dating in the U.S. can be very confusing, with a number of different types of dates on food product labels that are not necessarily related to food safety.

So how can consumers try to keep themselves and their families from getting sick from eating food that is past its prime of safety, but also not waste food? Here are a few tips:

1) The only food product on which expiration dates are federally regulated is infant formula. Therefore, you should NOT buy or use baby formula after its "use-by" date, for both safety and nutritional reasons.

2) Some states do require dating of some foods, but other than infant formula, there is no regulated food dating system across the U.S. Various groups have made recommendations to standardize the system used, but at this time, dates are put on products in a variety of ways. USDA does provide the following definitions for various terms used on food product labels:

- "Sell by" date: Tells the store how long to display the product for sale. You should buy the product before that date.
- "Best if used by (or before)" date: Recommended for best flavor or quality. It is NOT a purchase or safety date.
- "Use by" date: The last date recommended by the manufacturer for the use of the product while at peak quality.

*Note that these dates generally refer to food quality, rather than safety. However, they can give a general idea of how long the food has been in the market.

3) Many canned foods are required to have a packing code which enables manufacturers to rotate their stock and locate their products in the event of a recall. These codes are NOT meant for consumers to interpret in any way as use-by dates (unless they are clearly marked as a "use-by" date).

4) The most important thing consumers can do to impact the length of time they can safely keep and use food is to handle it properly. This includes the following:

- If perishable, take the food home immediately after purchase and refrigerate it (at 40°F or below) within at least 2 hours. Freeze it if you can't use it within recommended safe refrigerated storage times. Note that once a perishable product is frozen, microbial growth stops, so it will be as safe as it was when it went into the freezer.
- Store foods in the cupboard, refrigerator or freezer at the proper temperature and length of time. Do not leave perishable foods at room temperature for more than 2 hours. For example, if you know that a carton of milk has been sitting on the counter for more than 3 hours, throw it out.

- If the product has a "use-by" date on the package, follow that date to determine when to use it. If it has a "sell-by" or no date, cook or freeze the product.
- Follow the handling and preparation instructions on the product label.
- Avoid cross-contamination and ensure proper sanitation.
- If the product does have visible mold, off odors, the can is bulging or other similar signs, this spoilage could be a sign that dangerous micro-organisms may also be present, so with such products, use the "If in doubt, throw it out" rule.
- 5) With food that will be consumed by vulnerable populations (young children, the elderly, pregnant women, immune-compromised, people with limited mobility), extra caution should be exercised when determining how long to keep food in order to keep these groups as safe as possible.

Nature predicts winter

By Lou Ann Thomas

This fall is spectacular with the brilliant yellow, orange and red leaves mixed with the bronze of the prairie grasses. I love this season. But who doesn't? You rarely hear anyone complain about fall.

But even we who grow giddy at the sight of a maple tree showing off its splendor, know that winter is coming soon and that means it's time to gather firewood, bring in warm weather plants, stock the pantry and prepare for north winds and the potential for snow.

So what kind of winter may be ahead for us? The natural world may hold hints, if not definitive answers, to these questions.

We've probably all heard that the stripes of the woolly bear caterpillar may be an indication of winter weather. If the caterpillar's brown band is wide, that is believed to mean a mild winter. If there is more black on these caterpillars, that can indicate a harsher winter. My dog Boone and I have noticed a lot of woolly caterpillars on our morning walks and the brown and black bands appear about equal in width, so maybe the caterpillars haven't made up their minds yet.

If so, let's consult other winter predictors. It is believed if you cut a persimmon seed in half the shape inside will indicate what kind of winter we may have. A knife shape means the cold, icy wind will cut through us like a knife. A fork shape indicates a mild winter and a spoon is a sign that a shovel is needed to dig out of the snow.

Other predictors of a harsh winter found in nature include ants marching in single file, crickets coming into the house and spiders building larger than usual webs. If you've noticed animals, including pets, growing a thicker than usual coat and possibly storing more fat, then those are more signs winter might pack a punch this year.

Squirrels are another predictor. If they are more active during this time of year it may mean a snowy winter is ahead. And if there are more acorns and the shells are thicker than usual that too can mean heavy snow.

Honestly, although I find nature's signs regarding winter weather interesting and likely good indicators of what to expect, my most reliable method of determining what kind of winter we are having is waiting until it gets here and then looking outside.

That said, after checking all of the above folklore predictions, I have added, "buy new snow shovel" to my fall to-do list.

to win ten 12- foot corral panels and a six by nine walk-through gate, courtesy of Behlen Horse Country.

For those looking to upgrade current livestock handling facilities, questions can be answered by attending the daily squeeze chute and handling equipment demos at the show. KFTI FM 92.3 “Classic Country”, Behlen Country, Valley Vet Supply and Central City Scale are sponsoring the cattle squeeze chute demos each day: Tuesday 12:00 & 3:00 p.m., Wednesday 1:30 pm & 5:00 p.m., and Thursday at 12:30 p.m. Dr. Preston Hickman will be on hand at each demo given his views & thoughts on livestock handling and medications. Valley Vet staff will be administering the shots and livestock drugs. Behlen Country is furnishing the crowding tub, chute panels and alleyway to correctly handle the cattle during the three days of cattle demos. Central City Scale will have their scale on hand recording weights. By visiting the daily squeeze chute demos, attendees have the chance to win a free sorting stick courtesy of Hoover Tarp Sales. Check out the squeeze chutes in action and make your decisions!

Visitors can stop at the Information Desk and register for three $250 daily cash drawings plus a Thursday afternoon drawing for a Behlen Horse Country 40 foot round pen corral and a six by nine walk-thru gate courtesy of the Wichita Farm & Ranch Show. (Must be 18 years of age or older).

Show hours:
Tuesday, November 11th 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Wednesday, November 12th 9 a.m. - 7 p.m.

Thursday, November 13th 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Food for Thought presents Bruce Vincent

Bruce Vincent will speak at K-State’s Forum Hall Monday Nov. 10 at 7 p.m. for Food for Thought’s Upson Lecture Series. Vincent’s presentation is titled “With Vision There Is Hope – How NOT to Be The Career Of Last Choice.”

Vincent will discuss the importance of careers that involve “getting your hands dirty,” and the thought process and attitude behind producing goods that stimulate the economy and create a healthy environment.

A third-generation logger from Montana, Vincent will bring his thoughts on how an intelligent work force is needed to raise and produce the products that feed, clothe and shelter humanity. Through his many endeavors, which include testifying on natural resource issues before Congress, appearing on news programs such as 60 Minutes and giving motivational speeches across the country, Vincent brings a perspective on how to lead, not fight, the discussion over our nation’s environmental health.

The event is open to the K-State and local community. Admission is free.

Food For Thought, a group of current and former Kansas State University students, is a grassroots organization with the mission of bridging the information gap between the two percent of the American population who produce food and the everyday consumer.

Insight — Supermarket Shenanigans

Sweet, highly advertised kid's cereal is placed a bit lower so youngsters can look these items straight in the eyes while begging parents to buy them.

Sample stations slow you down while exposing you to new products. If you're shopping while you're hungry, chances are good you may grab a couple of these new products to snack on while you head home after shopping.

Store size matters. People tend to spend less time shopping in crowded stores. They purchase fewer items, do less impulse buying, don't visit as much and oftentimes are anxious to get out the door.

Music impacts supermarket shopping too. Consumer studies show slow music allows people to take their time and spend more money. Loud music moves shoppers through the store quickly without affecting sales. And believe it or not, classical music entices people to buy more expensive merchandise.

The checkout line remains the most profitable area of the supermarket. It's here that after a few minutes of waiting in line, buyers treat themselves to their favorite chocolate bar in the candy rack or a magazine they've been thumbing through.

Hallelujah. You're finished.

But wait, it's time to present your "Valued Shopper Card." Once in a while you receive a deal, but more importantly this card keeps you coming back so the store can collect valuable marketing data.

Finally, you pay the bill and leave.

"Come back again, now," the clerk smiles.

Kansas wheat yield calculator available

The world of agriculture just got more high-tech. The Kansas Wheat Alliance (KWA) has released the Kansas Wheat Yield Calculator app for Android and Apple devices. The application lets producers collect information about their winter wheat fields and uses industry-standard formulas to give an assessment of potential yield prior to harvest.

The calculator uses the number of tillers on the plant, the row spacing and several other factors into account when crunching the numbers. The user can choose from three different formulas used by KWA, Kansas State University and crop insurance adjusters, or choose to have the products averaged. The app has the ability to analyze photos taken of the field on the producer's phone and estimate the future yields.

"I think the calculator will be a comparative thing so that a farmer can use this tool over time and make management changes in between," said Daryl Strouts, president of KWA. "If the farmer's irrigating, maybe turn the water on, or if he needs a bit more fertilizer, he can do that. Then, he can go back and see later if the changes he made have made any difference."

"What we set out to do when designing the app was to try to make it very intuitive," said Ray Asebedo, a developer of the calculator. "We wanted it to not have a lot of screens on it and to be able to function without the users needing instructions."

The Kansas Wheat Alliance and Kansas State University partnered on the development on this application. Ray Asebedo and Trevor Rife are the main developers on the app, along with consultation from Nan An. For more information on the app and links to download it, please visit kswheatalliance.org.

Farmway Co-op named among top 100 co-ops

According to the USDA Newsletter, Rural Cooperatives, Farmway Co-op, Inc. placed 70th among the nation's top 100 largest agricultural cooperatives. Only four Kansas-based cooperatives made the Top 100 list with Farmway placing at the top. Frontier Ag in Oakley ranked 78 and Mid-Kansas Cooperative Association (MKC), Moundridge, came in at 84th.

"We are honored that Farmway is being mentioned and recognized in this group of 100 cooperatives," said Art Duerksen, CEO of Farmway. "As an entire team we work together to help our owners succeed by being their resource in the field and having the speed and space at harvest, which I think is reflected on this list."

The USDA ranking is determined by the 2013 revenue and assets of each cooperative. The co-op types, and the number of cooperatives in each group, are: farm supply (6); mixed farm supply and grain (33); grain (17); dairy (22); sugar (8); fruit and vegetable (7) and other marketing (7).

In 2013, Farmway showed $535 million in revenue and $198 million in assets.

In addition to making the annual list produced by USDA, Farmway Co-op is one of 139 cooperatives that are members of the "Century Co-op Club." Eldon Eversull, USDA cooperative statistician stated in the USDA newsletter, "It is a remarkable feat for any business to reach its 100th birthday in such a competitive economic system as ours, so this is a real accomplishment that deserves to be recognized."

Farmway celebrates its 103rd birthday this year. Founded in 1911, Farmway is a member-owned cooperative offering grain, agronomy and energy products and services to members and non-members in the Mitchell, Lincoln, Cloud, Republic, Washington, Clay, Riley, Ottawa, Jewell and surrounding counties. For more information, visit www.farmwaycoop.com To read the USDA Rural Cooperatives newsletter article and view the Top 100 list, visit www.rurdev.usda.gov/BCP_Coop_RuCoopMag.html.

BAXTER BLACK

ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

The Coyote

Take him for what he's worth, nothing more, nothing less.

I think I can speak for the coyote
With more understanding than most.
Especially those who defend him
And think that we should be his host.

They raise up a pitiful cry
And claim he's a mistreated critter.
Who'll soon be extinct if the ranchers out west
Don't put down their rifles and quit 'ter.

But like all of God's creatures around us
There's always two sides to the tale.
I think if the coyote were human
That most of 'em would be in jail.

'Cause there's no doubt he preys on the weaklings
Or the youngsters too little to run
He slits the throats of cute little lambs
And drags little calves from their mom.

So if you must describe him in terms
Such as wily, and clever and keen
You must also include homicidal,
Sadistic, demented and mean.
But I will choose to do neither
And somehow I wish you would, too.
For the coyote, he has no conscience
He's just doin' the best he can do.

You can like and dislike the coyote,
Many ranchers I know do both
When he trespasses he will get shot at

But his song in the night brings a toast.

A toast to our neighbor the coyote
Who'll outlive the earth and the sky.
And be here long after we've parted
Like the cockroach, the rat and the fly.

Cattle on feed up 1 percent

Kansas feedlots, with capacities of 1,000 or more head, contained 2.01 million cattle on feed on October 1, according to the USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service. This inventory was up 1 percent from last year.

Placements during September totaled 400,000 head, up 3 percent from 2013.

Fed cattle marketings for the month of September totaled 325,000 head, down 8 percent from last year.

Other disappearance during September totaled 15,000 head, unchanged from last year.

OPEN HOUSES for Tracts 5 & 6: Monday, Nov. 3, 10 to 12 Noon

Saturday, November 8, 9 to 11 am

TRACT 1: The Southeast Quarter of Section 1, Township 6 South, Range 11 East, Pottawatomie Co., KS., consisting of 152 acres, m/l, of clean, native pasture with a pond and draw for water. This pasture lays well and could be used as a meadow. Tract 1 is located: 1 1/2 miles north of Havensville, KS on Hwy. 63 to Blakely Rd., 1 mile west to Points Rd., 1 mile north to Homestead Rd., then 2 miles west to the southeast corner of the pasture.

TRACT 2: The Northeast Quarter (less ROW) of Section 20, Township 6 South, Range 12 East, Pottawatomie Co., KS., consisting of 151 acres, m/l. This property is all native grass, which has been hayed for several years. It has 3 ponds for water along with a draw with a windmill on a well. This tract has good fences and a good road on 3 sides. This tract has building site potential. Tract 2 is located: 1 1/2 miles west of Havensville, KS on the north side of the Havensville Rd.

TRACT 3: The Southwest Quarter of Section 34, Township 6 South, Range 12 East, Pottawatomie Co., KS, consisting of 152 acres, m/l, of mostly clean, native grass pasture with 3 ponds and a draw for water. This property has blacktop roads on 2 sides and a dirt road on 1 side. Tract 3 is located: 2 miles south of Havensville, KS, along the east side of Hwy. 63

TRACT 4: The Northeast Quarter of Section 23 and the Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter of Section 14, all in Township 7 South, Range 12 East, Pottawatomie Co., KS, consisting of 199 acres, m/l, of mostly clean, native grass with some wooded wildlife habitat areas on the northeast and northwest sides. Water is supplied from a draw and the north end of a watershed pond on the neighboring property. This pasture has good deer and turkey hunting potential. Tract 4 is located: 3 miles south of Havensville, KS on Hwy. 63 to Hwy. 16, then 1 1/2 miles east to English Ridge Rd., then 2 miles south along the east side.

TRACT 5: A tract of land in the South Half of Section 20, Township 6 South, Range 12 East, Pottawatomie Co., KS, consisting of 199 acres, m/l. This property has 64.5 acres of Spring Creek bottom farmland and 6 acres upland farmland. There are 90 plus acres of clean, native grass, which could be hayed or grazed, a homestead and the balance is hardwood timber and Spring Creek. The homestead includes a large, 2 1/2 story, early 1900's home with 4 upstairs bedrooms, a large living room, kitchen and one bath. This house has a rock wall basement, central heat and A/C, rural water and a nice yard. Tract 5 is located: 1 1/2 miles west of Havensville, KS along the south side of the Havensville Rd.

TRACT 6: The East Half and the Northwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter, all in Section 29, Township 6 South, Range 12 East, Pottawatomie Co., KS, consisting of 120 acres, m/l. This tract consists of 20 acres of Spring Creek bottom cropland, 20 acres adjoining, tilled upland and 14 acres of tilled and brome grass west of the creek. There are approximately 15 acres of meadow and brome that is used for hay, 2 1/2 acres of homestead and the balance is hardwood timber and Spring Creek. There are many, large oak trees and live running water in Spring Creek. This parcel has excellent deer and turkey hunting potential. The homestead includes a very well-kept 2 bedroom, 1 1/2 story bungalow home with central heat and A/C, a large utility room, one bath, a living room, kitchen, loft area and sun porch. This home has original woodwork and is very well-kept. This home has a cellar type basement and is connected to rural water. There is also a 48 ft. X 24 ft. metal and wood pole, open front shed, a 60 ft. X 28 ft. open-sided hay shed and a 24 ft. X 40 ft. double door, metal and wood frame garage with concrete floor. This homestead has a beautiful yard with large oak trees. Come take a look! Tract 6 is located: 1 mile west of Havensville, KS on the Havensville Rd. to Donahoo Rd., then 3/4 mile south on the west side.

TRACT 7: The Northwest Quarter of Section 29, Township 6 South, Range 12 East, Pottawatomie Co., KS, consisting of 156 acres, m/l. This property DOES NOT have road access and is located just to the west of Tract 6. There are approximately 100 acres of native grass meadow, 15 acres of go-back grass with the balance in hardwood timber and thick cedar tree areas. This secluded property has excellent deer and turkey hunting potential. Access will be granted through Tract 6, if necessary.

Manhunt on the Republican River

Abilene, Kansas, was a wild rollicking cattle town filled with legends of the West when Tom Smith pinned the city marshal badge to his chest in 1870. Smith carried a fighting reputation from a shooting that took place at Bear River, Wyoming, in 1868. The following year, "Bear River" Tom Smith served on the police force for the end-of-track town of Kit Carson, Colorado. As marshal of Abilene in 1870, Smith was charged with taming the wild cowboys who swarmed through the town after the long cattle drive from Texas.

Smith was the very image of the classic movie hero, "...about six feet in height, and...about two hundred pounds." He was a powerfully quick and athletic man who did not know what fear was. He rarely carried a gun, but depended on his strength and agility. When the men got too boisterous, he would go among them and arrest the troublemakers. If they defied him he used his fists to knock them down and disarm them. Marshal Smith did his job so well that there was very little to do around Abilene once the town was tamed. Sometime in July Smith took the job of Dickinson County Undersheriff, expanding his authority outside Abilene's city limits. On November 2, 1870, Smith and a deputy by the name of James H. McDonald rode out into the county to arrest Andrew McConnell for the murder of his neighbor, John Shea. At McConnell's dugout Smith read an arrest warrant to McConnell while a neighbor, Moses Miles, looked on. Deputy McDonald held the horses nearby. A gunshot suddenly rocked Tom Smith, piercing his lung. Smith drew his pistol, firing as he lunged forward toward McConnell. Moses Miles fired toward McDonald who mounted his horse and fled the scene in a panic. Miles then turned on Smith who was grappling with McConnell. Miles beat Smith repeatedly over the head with his pistol, knocking him senseless. The two villains then dragged Smith's body to the woodpile. Miles picked up an ax and with a vicious stroke beheaded Smith before the two fled the scene. A posse gathered, but failed to apprehend the outlaws. Two of the posse, Police Judge C. C. Kuney and James Gainsford, refused to give up. The manhunt established a formidable reputation for Jim Gainsford. Canadian-born in 1838, Gainsford crossed the border to the United States in 1850. In 1862 Gainsford enlisted in the 129th Volunteer Infantry at Niagara, New York. He reportedly deserted and later rejoined the service in the 2nd U. S.

Artillery following the initial desertion. He drifted west to Kansas after the death of his wife and in 1870 landed in Abilene. One account claimed that he was a butcher. While Gainsford and Kuney doggedly pursued Smith's murderers, Kansas newspapers carried a description of "Andrew McConnell, a Scotchman, about five feet eight inches in height, spare bulk, light gray eyes, sandy hair, inclined to curl, speaks with a strong Scotch accent and usually wears gray pant, with a butternut coat and slouch hat." From the site of the murder on Chapman Creek the two-man posse followed tracks to the Republican River. "Some ten miles from Junction City" the trail was lost. Traveling night and day they blindly rode nearly one hundred miles out of their way, going almost to Waterville before they returned south to the area where they had originally lost the trail. They picked up the trail of the outlaws once again northwest of Junction City at Milford. McConnell and Miles were riding northwest toward Clay Center. After a twenty-mile ride Gainsford and Kuney enlisted the help of Clay County sheriff Philip Rothman, as well as a Mr. McLaughlin and a Mr. Lindsey. After a short rest the posse set out at 3 a.m. for the suspected hideout, a farmhouse fifteen miles northeast of Clay Center. The date was November 5, 1870.

At the farmhouse, the three Clay Center men guarded the perimeter for any chance of escape, while Gainsford circled to the back of the house. At the same time Kuney approached the front door. Moses Miles, the man who

INTRODUCING THE NEW 240 SERIES AXIAL-FLOW® COMBINES. MORE POWER. MORE GRAIN IN YOUR TANK.

The new 7240, 8240 and 9240 Axial-Flow combines have larger grain tanks (up to 410 bu.) plus a new 16 L engine on the 9240. Thanks to the larger engine and exclusive Case IH SCR (Selective Catalytic Reduction)-only emissions system, you'll get up to 47 more horsepower and up to 10% more fuel efficiency. How? SCR-only technology reduces exhaust emissions without power-robbing add-ons that throttle back performance. 53,000 engines in the field with 25 million operating hours in North America alone have proven it. had beheaded Tom Smith, was completely caught off guard and immediately surrendered to Gainsford in the back yard. Kuneý boldly stepped through the front door and immediately encountered Andrew McConnell with his rifle in hand. Realizing the game was up, McConnell meekly surrendered his weapon and the manhunt on the Republican River was over. But James Gainsford's career as a lawman had just begun. As a deputy under Wild Bill Hickok he honed the skills that carried him through many more adventures on The Way West.

New book delves into depolarizing food and agriculture

By Mary Lou Peter

Conventional versus organic? Local production or global food sourcing? For one reason or another, those involved in growing and raising our food are often at odds with one another.

A new book, Depolarizing Food and Agriculture: An Economic Approach, takes a look at the origins, validity, consequences, and potential resolution of the different and often opposing stances taken by groups involved in the food business.

"Many issues in food and agriculture have become disputes — some of them serious conflicts, with no end in sight," said Andrew Barkley, a professor of agricultural economics at Kansas State University and one of the book's authors. "The economic approach offers a greater understanding of why these disagreements came about, and how they can be resolved. We wrote this book to share the economic approach, which provides greater appreciation for both sides of these important issues."

Barkley, who is also a university distinguished teaching scholar at K-State, co-wrote the book with his father, Paul W. Barkley, professor emeritus of agricultural economics at Washington State University and adjunct professor at Oregon State University. Paul Barkley earned a Ph.D. at K-State in 1963.

The divide between industry groups often stems from political or legal actions that confuse consumers, many of whom are considering the impact of their food choices on nutrition, health, the environment, animal welfare, and hunger, Andrew Barkley said.

The book summarizes and extends Paul Barkley's 50 years of research and Andrew Barkley's research on agricultural labor markets, wheat markets, and public policy in his more than 25 years at K-State. Their research emphasizes that the one constant in food and agriculture markets is change. Changes in technology, production practices, consumer desires, and policies occur constantly, and change is often disruptive. Since change has both winners and losers, it can be polarizing, especially in a rapidly evolving sector like food and agriculture.

Based on a United Nations prediction that the world's population will grow from the current 7.2 billion people to 9.6 billion by 2050, it is more important than ever for agricultural producers to figure out the best ways to meet the demand for food, Andrew Barkley added. In some cases that might mean working together or at least understanding a different perspective.

The book is available at www.routledge.com/books/details/9780415714235/ and <http://tinyurl.com/mgxxdwl>.

"Serving Your Auction Needs Since 1994"

Surprises are bad enough on your birthday

... but even worse on your ranch.

Cow-calf producers rarely appreciate surprises. Whether in the breeding pasture, calving trap, feed-lot pen or grading rail, they rarely improve a ranch's bottom line.

That's why for 110 years, the Dalebanks program has matched proven, balanced-trait sires with our hard-working cowherd comprised of some of the longest-lasting matrons in the Angus breed. This time-tested approach yields genetics that represent the best of both worlds: excellent performance and carcass value PLUS functional females that stay in the herd for years.

So join progressive cattlemen nationwide who have found do-it-all Dalebanks bulls to offer docility, calving ease, maternal excellence, performance and carcass value ... without those unwelcome surprises.

Wheat farmers share crop conditions across state

On October 22, 2014, the Kansas Wheat Commission held a regular board meeting at the Kansas Wheat Innovation Center in Manhattan.

Farmer board members reported that planting in most areas is nearly complete, and that the wheat is coming up and looks good.

David Radenberg, a farmer from Barton County, reported that his wheat is up and the no-till wheat in his area looks really good, although there are some extremely wet patches. He estimates that acres in his area will be higher than the average.

Jason Ochs, from Syracuse in Hamilton County, reported that he is seeing some of the best stands he's had in years. He said, "Where there's no disease, the wheat looks beautiful." However, Ochs says they have seen some disease pressure, including rust and mosaic in some areas. He estimates that overall acreage will be similar to last year, but that white wheat acres have increased in the area.

Jay Armstrong, from Atchison County, reported that the area is "so muddy that wheat acres are down." He said that some fusarium is starting in the area. On a positive note, Armstrong reported that this year was the best fall harvest he has seen.

Scott Van Allen, from Clearwater in Sedgewick County, estimates that there won't be any more acres of wheat this year in his area than normal. He reports that some pockets were very dry going into planting, while other areas had heavy rains. Some of the wheat had to be replanted due to the heavy rains. He did receive some slow rain after planting, so overall the wheat looks good. His fall crop harvest was above average as well.

Ron Suppes, who farms in Lane and Scott Counties, reluctantly admitted that he has been getting some rain in the area. The wheat is planted and up. Although he estimates that overall acres haven't increased, he reports a steady increase in hard white wheat acres over the past several years. Suppes says grasshoppers are an issue in the area, and spraying will be done over the next week.

Mike McClellan, from Palco in Rooks County, estimates that acreage will remain approximately the same. He reports that wheat in the area is up and looks good.

For the week ending October 19, 2014, up to one inch of rain fell in the east, while the west remained dry, according to the USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service. Temperatures were near normal. Activities included seeding wheat and harvesting row crops. The number of days suitable for field work was 5.5. Topsoil moisture rated 5 percent very short, 20 percent short, 70 percent adequate, and 5 percent surplus. Subsoil moisture rated 13 percent very short, 26 percent short, 59 percent adequate, and 2 percent surplus.

Winter wheat planted was at 78 percent, behind last year and the five-year average of 84. Winter wheat emerged was 58 percent, equal to last year and near 56 average.

While at the Kansas Wheat Innovation Center, board members got an update on and tour of growth chambers, lab space, and greenhouses.

Where will the animals go? Emergency preparedness workshops planned for livestock operations

It's hard, thinking about the unthinkable. But disasters happen on livestock operations just like they do in homes and communities across the country.

Preparation ahead of time can help lessen the damage and ease the recovery from disasters ranging from blizzards to severe heat to tornadoes to mechanical malfunctions, said Joel DeRouchey, livestock specialist with K-State Research and Extension.

To help producers prepare, Kansas State University is partnering with the Amazing Grazing II project to present "Emergency Preparedness for Livestock Operations: When Disaster Strikes," on Dec. 10 in Salina and Dec. 11 in Dighton.

Topics to be presented by industry professionals and K-State specialists at each workshop include:

- Risk management and mortality documentation for livestock producers;
- Reaction and response to a high mortality infectious disease outbreak;
- Windbreaks for winter livestock protection;
- Approved mortality disposal options for Kansas producers;
- Pre-selection of emergency disposal sites for large and small livestock farms;
- How do I prepare for an emergency on my operation?

Each workshop will include roundtable discussions on related topics.

Registration for the workshop at either location is $15 per person, to be paid by Dec. 5, and includes lunch and meeting materials. The complete program and registration information is available at www.ksuswine.org or www.ksubeef.org. More information is available by contacting Anthony Ruiz at 785-392-2147 or anruiz@ksu.edu for the Salina workshop or Jared Petersilie at 866-755-1654 or jaredp11@ksu.edu for the Dighton workshop.

Above normal temps last week help harvest progress

For the week ending October 26, 2014, up to one inch of rain fell in the northeast, while the west remained dry, according to the USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service. Above-normal temperatures allowed fall harvest to progress and winter wheat to grow rapidly. Some producers were waiting for a hard freeze to harvest sorghum. The number of days suitable for field work was 6.2. Topsoil moisture rated 5 percent very short, 22 percent short, 71 percent adequate, and 2 percent surplus. Subsoil moisture rated 13 percent very short, 26 percent short, 60 percent adequate, and 1 percent surplus.

Field Crops Report: Winter wheat condition rated 0 percent very poor, 2 poor, 33 fair, 58 good, and 7 excellent. Winter wheat planted was at 87 percent, behind 93 last year, but near the five-year average of 91. Winter wheat emerged was 72 percent, equal to last year and near 70 average.

Corn harvested was 78 percent, near 79 last year and 81 average.

Sorghum conditions rated 5 percent very poor, 11 poor, 31 fair, 44 good, and 9 excellent. Sorghum mature was 90 percent, near 92 last year and 91 average. Sorghum harvested was 38 percent, behind 51 last year and 47 average.

Soybean conditions rated 3 percent very poor, 9 poor, 35 fair, 43 good, and 10 excellent. Soybeans harvested was 52 percent, well behind 73 last year and 70 average.

Sunflower conditions rated 3 percent very poor, 7 poor, 33 fair, 51 good, and 6 excellent. Ray flowers dried was 96 percent, near 100 last year and average at 99. Sunflowers turning yellow was 90 percent, behind 100 last year and 97 average. Sunflowers turning brown was 81 percent, behind 92 last year and 88 average. Sunflowers harvested was at 25 percent, well behind 45 last year and 41 average.

Cotton conditions rated 1 percent very poor, 5 poor, 33 fair, 56 good, and 5 excellent. Cotton bolls opening was 87 percent, near 84 last year, but equal to the average. Cotton harvested was 5 percent, near 7 last year, but behind 11 average.

Alfalfa hay fourth cutting was 91 percent complete, near 88 last year and 86 average.

Livestock, Pasture and Range Report: Pasture and range conditions rated 7 percent very poor, 15 poor, 42 fair, 34 good, and 2 excellent.

Stock water supplies rated 6 percent very short, 18 short, 75 adequate, and 1 surplus.

Demand moderate for dairy alfalfa and alfalfa pellets, light to moderate for grinding alfalfa and grass hay. Hay trade slow to moderate. Mild fall weather continues with temperatures above normal; most of the state has not had frost yet, let alone a killing freeze. Corn harvest is about done, there is a lot of millo and a few beans to cut yet. Alfalfa cutting is about finished, there is some crop residue baling, but not as much as the past couple of years. Wheat pasture is good this fall and crop residue grazing is shaping up to be good. If you have hay for sale or pasture to rent or need hay or grazing, use the services of the Hay and Pasture Exchange: www.kfb.org/commodities/haypasture/index.html.

Southwest Kansas

Dairy and grinding alfalfa steady. Movement moderate. Alfalfa, Horse, 250.00-300.00, Clippings 320.00, small squares 8.00-11.00/bale. Dairy, Supreme 230.00-250.00; Premium 205.00-230.00; Dry Cow, Good 165.00-170.00, a little 150.00 shipped in. Fair-Good grinding alfalfa, at the edge of the field or delivered in 110.00-120.00, very little trade. Nationally recognized farmer veteran to talk poultry at Beginning Farmer and Rancher meeting

All beginning farmers and ranchers are invited to a Beginning Farmer & Rancher Opportunities meeting at Cloud County Community College in Concordia, Thursday, November 20, from 4:00 to 9:00 p.m., hosted by Kansas Farmers Union and the Kansas Beginning Farmers Coalition. The meeting's featured speaker is Dan Hromas, owner and operator of Prairie Pride Poultry, a small pastured chicken operation located on the northeast edge of York, Nebraska. Hromas started the farm in 2013 in order to support the growing local food movement by providing healthy, farm-fresh eggs to area consumers.

"At the farm, we pride ourselves on the humane treatment of the flock of heritage Rhode Island Red chickens," Hromas says. "The farm's standards and practices are conducive to a happy and healthy flock." Coops are moved around the acreage, each one having plenty of floor area, roosting space, and nesting boxes. The flock's pasture diet is supplemented with feed that does not contain any chemicals, hormones, antibiotics, or animal byproducts. The feed also comes from a local cooperative that recently achieved HACCP certification, the highest level of accreditation for food safety in the United States.

In addition to providing the local community with farm-fresh eggs, Prairie Pride Poultry also assists in educating consumers and potential farmers about the "Incredible Edible Egg" by sharing interesting facts and information about the widely used and versatile protein source, as well as fostering an environment where everyone can feel welcome and connected to the farm. "I've engaged local communities through the York Chamber of Commerce, establishing a great working relationship with Grand Central Grocery in York and participating in the Center for Rural Affairs "Farm to School" initiative by selling eggs to York Public Schools, setting up at local farmers' markets, and raising awareness about importance of a healthy diet that can include eggs," Hromas says.

Before working on the farm, Hromas served in the U.S. military in Iraq. He also served as a captain in the Nebraska Army National Guard as a Transportation Corps Officer. Hromas notes, "I am fortunate enough to have had my hard work receive national recognition through the Farmer Veteran Coalition's national marketing campaign, "Homegrown by Heroes," Hromas said. "I have utilized services from the Nebraska Sustainable Agriculture Society, Center for Rural Affairs, and the Farmer Veteran Coalition as a platform for outreach to other fellow disabled military veterans so that they know a future exists for them in the field of agriculture."

Hromas was recently honored by the White House as a Disability Employment Champion of Change. Disability Employment Champions of Change have done extraordinary work to make workplaces more accessible, and to create employment opportunities for individuals with disabilities. "I am honored to receive this Champions of Change award. I hope that other veterans with disabilities will similarly find their own entrepreneurship opportunities, gaining meaningful employment and contributing to their local communities," he said.

Featured North Central Kansas producer panelists include Dan Kuhn, produce and pumpkin grower of "The Depot Market" near Courtland; Warren Sutton, green bean and pumpkin grower near Norway; Chris and Christi Janssen, high tunnel produce growers and CSA distributors in Scandia; Dan Stehlik, sheep producer near Concordia, plus a number of other specialty crop and livestock producers from the surrounding area. Republic County Farm Service Agency executive director Tamie Buckley will discuss the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program, and USDA FSA farm loan manager Emily Allen will discuss recent changes to the Beginning Farmer microloan program. Linda Sutton from the NCK Small Business Development Center will also be on hand to discuss business planning and management tools provided by her office.

The only cost to attendees is the evening meal, which will be served in the college cafeteria at the midpoint of the meeting. For more information, and to register, please go to www.kansasfarmersunion.org/events, call Nick at (785) 527-0941, or email kfu.nick@gmail.com by November 15.

Farm Bill 2014: a long term commitment

By Josh Coltrain,
Crop Production Agent,
Wildcat Extension District

Where do you see yourself in five years? If you have ever sat in on an interview you have probably heard this question. There is often no correct answer for this question as it depends on a variety of factors. However, farmers are being asked to consider this with the 2014 Farm Bill.

Starting on November 17th, producers wanting to participate in the program will need to choose either the Agricultural Risk Coverage (ARC) or the Price Loss Coverage (PLC). The sign-up will last until March 31st and, as mentioned before, whatever choice is made will be a five-year commitment. While it may not be a popular choice with the Farm Service Agency (FSA) office, producers will probably prefer to wait until later in the sign-up period to make their decisions.

Kansas State University and Oklahoma State University have teamed up to generate a decision aid. The product they have developed (or more accurately are still developing) is a Microsoft Excel based spreadsheet. The tool is available on agmanager.info if you would like to try it out. It is a work in progress right now and is constantly being updated. Thankfully, I will attend a training in Manhattan soon that will go over how to use this decision tool.

There are multitudes of questions that arise when discussing the 2014 Farm Bill. K-State's Art Barnaby, professor of agricultural economics and Extension specialist, Mykel Taylor, assistant professor of agricultural economics, and Robin Reid, Extension associate have developed a very informative publication titled "Frequently Asked Questions: Title I Programs of the 2014 Farm Bill" which is highly recommended.

Among the questions in the publication is one that appears very important. The question is "Can base acres and payment yields be updated?" The simple answer is yes. However, there are some qualifiers that must be added. Base acres can be reallocated but they cannot be built. Yields can be updated based on the 2008-2012 average yields. This may or may not help producers so it is highly recommended to do the math first before making the change. To help with this decision, Barnaby, Taylor, and Reid have also released a couple of publications to help with that math.

As should probably be expected, there are still some unknowns surrounding the 2014 Farm Bill, amongst producers and agencies alike. It is anticipated that local FSA offices will be holding educational meetings from November through December. Following these, K-State Research and Extension Agricultural Economics has scheduled 15 meetings across the state of Kansas. The meetings and locations that are closest to southeast Kansas are: Jan. 12th in Wichita, Jan. 13th in Pittsburg, Jan. 14th in Emporia, and Jan. 15th in Ottawa. Details are not yet finalized for these meetings so stay tuned for more information.

Even though there is no correct answer for where you will be in five years, hopefully farmers can make an educated decision soon. If you have questions or would like more information, please call me at the office (620) 724-8233, or e-mail me at jcoltrain@ksu.edu, or visit the Wildcat Extension District website at www.wildcatdistrict.ksu.edu.

NRCS announces November 21st deadline for EQIP funding in Kansas

Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) state conservationist Eric B. Banks announced an application evaluation cutoff date of November 21, 2014, for the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP).

EQIP is a voluntary program that provides financial and technical assistance to agricultural producers through contracts up to a maximum term of ten years in length. These contracts provide financial assistance to help plan and implement conservation practices that address natural resource concerns and provide opportunities to improve soil, water, plant, animal, air, and related resources on agricultural land, such as cropland, rangeland, non-industrial private forestland, as well as for animal feeding operations.

"This is a very popular program in Kansas, and I know fall is a busy season. The NRCS wants everyone to have the opportunity to develop a conservation plan and submit an application in time," said Banks.

Applications are accepted year-round, but those received by November 21, 2014, will be evaluated for fiscal year 2015 funding. Applicants must meet certain eligibility requirements.

"EQIP also helps address the unique circumstances of socially disadvantaged, veteran, limited resource, and beginning farmers and ranchers, who have natural resource concerns that need to be addressed on their land," said Banks. Qualifying Kansas producers compete separately and receive higher payment rates.

For more information visit the Kansas NRCS web-site www.ks.nrcs.usda.gov/ programs or your local U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Service Center. To find a service center near you, check your telephone book under "United States Government" or on the Internet at offices.usda.gov. Follow us on Twitter @NRCS_Kansas. KSU Rodeo Club and Team taking historic step

The K-State Rodeo Club and Team soon will move into a new era when a rodeo team coach and club advisor is hired as part of the Department of Animal Sciences & Industry (AS&I) staff. This will mark the first time in K-State rodeo history the coach will be a member of the university faculty. According to K-State AS&I department head Ken Odde, the successful candidate also will teach courses and advise students in equine sciences. Candidate screening is under way for the new position of "Instructor, Equine Sciences and Rodeo Coach."

A deep pool of individuals applied for the job. Although there is no definite start date for the new coach, Odde wants to keep the process moving along. He hopes to announce the hiring before the end of this year. K-State professor of animal science Dave Nichols is heading the search committee. He is joined on the committee by representatives of the equine sciences faculty, K-State Rodeo Advisory Council and K-State Rodeo Club membership. In the meantime, current K-State rodeo coach Doug Muller continues to coordinate team activities and serve as interim club advisor. He is a part-time coach, while serving as a full-time teacher specializing in agriculture and applied technology for Manhattan-Ogden Unified School District 383.

Harry Burgess — he rode with the best

He was a Texan by birth but he became known as one of the best working cowboys and stockmen in Nebraska. Edwin Harrison Burgess was born in Eddyville, Texas in 1888. His mother died when he was 18 months old. His father later remarried but young Harry was uncomfortable with her and, when he was nine years old, decided to leave home and head for the famous Swenson Tongue River Ranch in West Central Texas where his older brother, Bert, was a top hand.

In 1897, Harry rode 75 miles to the Swenson Ranch bareback with only a halter on his little white mare. Harry had finished third grade but the rest of his education was about to begin under the tutelage of Swenson's wagon boss and foreman, Joe Ericson.

The Swenson Ranch had huge land holdings in West Central Texas. They donated the land for the town of Stamford near one of their ranches. When Harry arrived on his mare, the Swenson Ranch consisted of nearly 500,000 acres in portions of twelve counties. A. J. Swenson gave nine-year-old Harry room and board and let him stay with the roundup wagon under Ericson.

Joe Ericson was a well-known pioneer of the Texas cattle industry and had a reputation of starting young boys as wranglers for the wagon remuda. Ericson spent 49 years as range boss on the SMS Ranch and, during those long years, he started many young boys in ranch work as "hood" or "horse wranglers." Many of them thought of him almost as a father. It was not unusual to hear cow punchers refer to him as "Marse Joe."

When the artist Frank Tenney Johnson was making a tour of the Southwest, he spent time on the Swenson Ranch where he met Joe Ericson. He considered Ericson the typical West Texas cowboy and made a painting of him entitled, "The Range Boss." That same painting hangs today in a New York art gallery.

So Harry Burgess began work for one of the most famous Texas ranches under the guidance of the renowned pioneer cattleman, Joe Ericson. Ericson assigned Harry to be the day horse wrangler with the wagon during roundup. He was responsible for between 200 and 300 horses in the remuda. His only pay was room and board.

He would graze the horses all day but when he saw cattle coming in towards the wagon, he would move the horses into the rope corral. The cowboys would come in to the wagon in shifts in order to leave men holding the cattle. They would eat dinner and then catch a fresh horse from the rope corral and ride out to relieve the men holding herd. There were around 30 men working the wagon and when they all had finished dinner and returned to the herd, Harry would take the horses back to graze until supper time when he would move them back to the corral for the men to catch their night horses.

In shifts, they would hold the herd together for the next day's work. Everyone had a night horse in case the cattle became nervous or spooky during a bad storm or lightning. Harry related how it was scary to see sparks on the horse's ears or the electric ball of light of St. Elmo's Fire flashing on the horns of the cattle during bad storms.

The chuck wagon would go out in March and not come back until all the cattle had been worked sometime between Thanksgiving and Christmas. When they moved camp between herds, the cook drove the chuck wagon and the night wrangler, who stayed out all night with the remuda, followed with the hoodlum wagon which carried all the bedrolls, ropes and other supplies. The remuda followed behind the hoodlum wagon with little Harry behind them. He had to keep the remuda moving but not allowing them to go past the wagons. Harry became a competent wrangler and at age 11, he was put on the payroll as a working cowboy.

During roundup, the wagons and the remuda would be in the center of the circle to be worked. Cowboys would be sent out to circle an area and bring in the cows.

A circle was like a big round clock with riders assigned different quadrants of the circle to work. They would each move their cattle toward the wagons where they would meet up to form the herd to be worked. When Harry saw the cattle coming to the wagons, he would move the horses into the rope corral. "It was a pretty sight to see the cattle coming in from all parts of the clock," Harry said.

Soon Harry was riding the green horses and broncs of the ranch's rough string. They were the hard-bucking and mean horses. He was becoming a competent bronc buster and a top hand. Swenson had a mare known simply as, "the Swenson mare." No one could ride her. At a rodeo in Stamford, Texas in 1911, the Swenson mare bucked off two of the top Texas cowboys, Tack Kennedy and Robert Hooks. The announcer asked if anyone else would like to try her and Harry Burgess stepped up.

Harry Burgess was the first person ever to ride the Swenson mare. He rode her to the whistle and his reputation as a bronc rider spread around the country. He said she was the hardest- bucking horse he ever rode.

Harry also rode one season each for the historical Yellow House Ranch and Slaughter Ranch where he worked with many top cow punchers but Swenson's ranch was always home to him.

Swenson sent Harry's older brother, Bert, to Hyannis, Nebraska to oversee a shipment of cows by rail to the Guilfoyle Ranch. He delivered the cattle successfully and was asked the following year to again oversee a cattle shipment to the same ranch. He agreed but told Swenson that he liked that country and was going to stay in Nebraska after the cattle were delivered. Swenson respected Bert's decision and gave him the three top cow horses in his string and told him his job would be waiting if he ever wanted to come back.

The Sandhills of Nebraska were open to homesteading and Harry's brothers, Bert and Fred, and his father had all filed on homesteads north of Hyannis, Nebraska. They wanted Harry to come to Nebraska to join them. So sometime after 1911, Harry moved to the Sandhills of Nebraska to be with his family and filed for his own homestead,

Harry always found work at the best ranches in the country and his ability as a top cowboy landed him a position at the famed OLO Ranch near Hyannis, Nebraska owned by A. T. Davis. After Mr. Davis's death, his wife, Essie, named Harry Burgess manager of the ranch and later took him in as partner in the horses and cattle. Harry ran the OLO for a few years until he married and bought his own ranch.

Harry didn't leave his bronc busting talent behind in Texas. After arriving in Nebraska, he rode another horse that had a mean reputation and had never been ridden. He used the same skills that he used on the Swenson mare and rode Alex to the finish.

Edwin Harrison Burgess died in October of 1951. He was riding his horse, Corky, and fell from the saddle stricken with a fatal heart attack. At the time of his death, he owned eight sections of land and was leasing two additional sections that were all debt-free and comprised the ranch that carried his 69 brand.

His favorite horse was a buckskin gelding named Simon. Harry always said he liked buckskins and brown-eyed girls! Harry's word was his bond and once given was never broken.

His legacy lives on in the Burgess generations that followed. Edwin Harrison Burgess was inducted into the Nebraska Sandhills Cowboy Hall of Fame in 2006. Following in his footsteps, his son, Bob Burgess, a cattleman and rodeo champion, was also inducted into the Nebraska Sandhills Cowboy Hall of Fame in 2008. Harry Burgess was a true cowboy who learned his trade from the early pioneers of the western cattle industry. He is a legend in the Nebraska Sandhills cattle country.

Hands on Herd Health for Small Ruminants Workshop to be held in Manhattan Nov. 22nd

Dr. Brian Faris will lead the “Hands on Herd Health for Small Ruminants” workshop at the new state-of-the-art K-State Sheep and Meat Goat Center, 2117 Denison Avenue, Manhattan, from 9:00 a.m.-3:00 p.m., Saturday, November 22.

The new facility, designed with animal care and handler safety in mind, contains design features and handling procedures that can be adapted to a producer’s current facilities. Workshop participants will experience the luxury of the new facility, and be allowed hands on experience like trimming hooves, and FAMACHA evaluations, performing sonograms on pregnant ewes.

Classroom time will cover herd health, vaccinations, body condition scoring, fecal egg counts, and how to create safe working facilities with what producers currently have on their operation. The workshop will also cover the FAMACHA practice, which helps producers evaluate the lower eyelid to check for anemia determining individual animals in need of parasite treatment to help reduce animal resistance to dewormer products.

Dr. Faris, who grew up in Texas, has spent his entire life in the sheep and goat industry, and has extremely valuable information to share with producers. Faris received his undergraduate degree from Texas A&M and received his doctorate in Animal Science at New Mexico State. Prior to moving to Kansas, he served as a 4-H youth livestock specialist in North Carolina.

There is no charge for the workshop. FAMACHA evaluation cards will be available for purchase at the workshop for $15.00. Please indicate on the registration form whether you would like to purchase a set of cards at the workshop. Attendees are asked to RSVP by November 15 to help in planning for handouts, cinnamon rolls, and other refreshments. Lunch will not be provided. Online registration can be found at www.AmazingGrazingKansas.com, or you may contact Mary at 785-562-8726 or kfu.mary@gmail.com.

Weather History

Nov. 4, 1927 - A great Vermont flood occurred. Tropical rains deluged the Green Mountain area of Vermont, causing the worst flood in the history of the state. Torrential rains, up to 15 inches in the higher elevations, sent streams on a rampage, devastating the Winooski Valley.
