

Kansas Hay Market Report

Hay market trade activity is light to moderate, while demand remains very good for all types of hay. Prices for all hay types mostly steady. Everyone has been quite busy in the hay fields. Producers continue to report lower than normal yields, especially in regards to brome hay. According to the U.S. Drought Monitor, drought conditions did not improve, but they did not worsen either. The abnormally dry (D0) category stayed steady at 85 pct, moderate drought (D1) remained at 69 pct, severe drought (D2) remained at 45 pct, extreme drought (D3) remained at 16 pct and exceptional drought (D4) remained at 1.5 pct. Per NASS, pasture and range conditions rated 6 percent very poor, 18 poor, 44 fair, 30 good, and 2 excellent. French government says no to using meat names on vegetarian food

The French government has banned the use of words like steak, sausage, burger and fillet from being used to market foods that have no animal protein in them.

The new provisions also include dairy alternatives like soy and tofu products marketed as milk or butter. Food companies that fail to comply with the new rules could be subject to fines of up to $366,000.

Kansas Alliance for Wetlands and Streams receives grant from North Central Extension Risk Management Education Center; soil health and grazing workshops planned

Kansas Alliance for Wetlands and Streams (KAWS) is pleased to announce it has received a grant from the North Central Extension Risk Management Education Center. These funds will support a series of workshops called “Improving Soil Health: Regenerative Agriculture and Water Quality Protection” across the state of Kansas this summer and fall. Ranchers, farmers, producers and landowners are invited to attend one of ten workshops focusing on soil health and grazing practices to improve profitability on Kansas farms and ranches. “The more we learn about the biodiversity contained within healthy soils, the more important it becomes to support the foundations of agriculture and healthy water supplies in our state. Healthy soils improve productivity, protect our water supplies, reduce input costs, and ultimately increase the bottom line for farmers and ranchers,” said Jessica Mounts, executive director at KAWS. “This funding makes it possible for us to bring well-known soil experts to Kansas at a minimal cost to producers.”

These workshops will feature nationally known instructors who will focus on how to improve farm and grazing resources with soil health and management to reduce input costs. A healthy soil improves productivity and prosperity for producers exploring cover and alternative forage crops, managed grazing, farm and ranch economics and cost management.

The first series Soil Health Sustainability for Cropland; will be held July 9th-13th, 2018.

Five one-day workshops will be led by Candy Thomas, NRCS soil health specialist for Kansas and Nebraska, and Doug Peterson, NRCS soil health specialist for Missouri and Iowa. Both have over 20 years of experience training producers and employees on soil health and adoption of soil health management practices. Each workshop is a full day starting at 8:00 am and ending at 5:00 pm. Cost for the workshop is $25 and includes lunch and handouts. Attendees will also receive a handy pocket guide: Midwest Cover Crops Field Guide provided by SARE.

Bill sets up group to study trucking regulations

The National Pork Producers Council hailed the introduction by Sens. John Hoeven, R-N.D., and Michael Bennet, D-Colo., of legislation to revise existing trucking regulations to make them more flexible for drivers hauling livestock.

The “Modernizing Agricultural Transportation Act” would establish a working group at the Department of Transportation (DOT) to examine the federal Hours of Service (HOS) rules and the Electronic Logging Device (ELD) regulations. The HOS rules limit commercial truckers to 11 hours of driving time and 14 consecutive hours of on-duty time in any 24-hour period. Once drivers reach that limit, they must pull over and wait 10 hours before driving again. ELDs record driving time, engine hours, vehicle movement and speed, miles driven and location information, electronically reporting the data to federal and state inspectors to help enforce the HOS rules.

“NPPC strongly supports the Hoeven-Bennet bill as a reasonable solution for developing Hours of Service regulations that protect highway safety while allowing livestock haulers to transport animals in a safe and humane way,” said NPPC President

Jim Heimerl, a pork producer from Johnstown, Ohio, whose operation also includes a trucking company.

The legislation would require the Secretary of Transportation to establish the working group within 120 days of enactment of the bill. The group would be charged with identifying obstacles to the “safe, humane, and market-efficient transport of livestock, insects, and other perishable agricultural commodities” and developing guidelines and recommending regulatory or legislative action to improve the transportation of those commodities. One year after it is established, the group must submit its findings to the DOT secretary, who must propose regulatory changes to the HOS and ELD regulations within 120 days.

“Pulling together all stakeholders with an interest in livestock hauling will ensure that DOT has the tools necessary to ensure Hours of Service regulations address the realities of transporting animals in a practical, common sense manner,” Heimerl said. “As we’ve pointed out, a trucker hauling livestock can’t just pull over and go ‘off-duty,’ leaving animals unattended. The incompatibility between the Hours of Service regulations and livestock hauling must be addressed.”

The bill also would suspend the ELD regulation for commercial motor vehicles hauling livestock, insects or perishable agricultural commodities until the date on which the DOT secretary proposes the regulatory changes.

High temps, sunlight heighten risk of blue-green algae in farm ponds

The hot summer weather and potential for lots of sunlight may bring with it a cause for concern among livestock producers.

Those conditions, combined with the often stagnant nature of farm ponds, heightens the risk of toxic levels of blue-green algae in producers' watering sources, says Kansas State University beef veterinarian A.J. Tarpoff.

"It surely can be a devastating condition," Tarpoff said. "There are very specific species (of bacteria) that whenever they flourish in a pond, they release these toxins that are lethal to all animals."

Blue-green algae actually is not an algae at all, he added, but rather a cyanobacteria, or bacteria that lives off the sun. It can be toxic to livestock, dogs and people. "These are pretty nasty organisms,"

Tarpoff noted.

Blooms of cyanobacteria can build up in a pond and form into distinct blooms of bacteria, often looking like paint sliming around in the water. Tarpoff said the paint-like texture of cyanobacteria is what differentiates it from non-harmful moss in a pond.

The harmful cyanobacteria can look green or dark green, but can turn more to a bluish tint, thus leading to its more common name as blue-green algae.

"It can go from blue to green to almost a reddish brown or gray," Tarpoff said. "We can have all of those color variations but just remember that it looks a lot like paint mixing with water. That's what it looks like floating around."

Cyanobacteria can release two types of toxins:

neurotoxins, which affect an animals' nervous system; and hepatotoxins, which affect the liver function of cattle. Both toxins can cause death, which sometimes is the first signal to producers that they have a problem with their watering source, according to Tarpoff.

He added that producers who suspect blue-green algae in their ponds should get the water tested immediately, which involves capturing about 500 milliliters of water in a sealed container, refrigerating that sample, and shipping it with an ice pack to a testing facility.

The K-State Veterinary Diagnostic Lab in Manhattan conducts reliable testing for cyanobacteria. The lab can be reached online at <http://www.ksvdl.org> or toll-free at 866-512-5650. Tarpoff noted that sending multiple samples from the pond is one way to make sure you get a reliable picture of the pond.

If a producer suspects that a pond contains dangerous levels of cyanobacteria, it's important to keep livestock and people out of the area. Cyanobacteria is known to form on the downwind side of the pond, so one good practice is to fence off that side of the pond.

Producers may be able to use the available water in a suspect pond by piping water from less harmful areas of the pond. Blue-green algae blooms are not known to collect in the middle of water sources, Tarpoff said.

"What's important if you're going to do an upgrade like that is the water inlet," Tarpoff said. "We want the water inlet to be in a lower-risk area of the pond, which means it is submerged and in the middle of the pond."

Other watering options for producers might be digging a well or hauling water all summer. Tarpoff noted, though, that both of those options could be cost-prohibitive.

During hot stretches such as those in Kansas the past few weeks – and which are forecast for the near future – it's especially important to be aware of cyanobacteria and to monitor ponds daily.

"These blooms can pop up pretty quickly," Tarpoff said. "The number of cyanobacteria can double in less than 24 hours. If you think you have an at-risk pond, then start to sample right away, send those off to the lab and try to get a realistic expectation of whether it's at risk or not."

Students learn to lead the animal science industry

Brillhart, Fort Scott; Walker Clawson, Meade; Wesley Denton, Blue Rapids; Danika Gordon, White-wood, S.D.; Norman Highfill, Atchison; Ben Jensen, Courtland; Kenzie McAtee, LaCygne; Kami McComb, Pratt; Anaya McCune, Benton; Becca Paine, Hutchinson; Abbie Schwab, Goddard; Sarah Sergeant, Lebo; Wyatt Slade, Haviland; Lauren Terry, Nortonville; Shelby Varner, Towanda; and Tray Zabokrtsky, Morrowville.

During their time at the KASLA, students participated in interactive leadership development and educational sessions led by faculty members from across the K-State campus. Participants completed the college experience by dining at the K-State Student Union, completing the K-State Challenge Course and staying in Ford Hall.

The KASLA also included a half day of livestock industry tours throughout northeast Kansas, with stops including: Hildebrand Farms Dairy, Junction City; Seaboard Foods, Shawnee; Bichelmeyer Meats, Kansas City; and the American Royal, Kansas City. They also enjoyed tours of university farms and the College of Veterinary Medicine.

For their final project, the students were divided into groups during the week to focus on current issues affecting the livestock industry. Faculty mentors from the K-State Department of Animal Sciences and Industry assisted each group. Using the information they learned throughout the academy, the groups were asked to present their subject as part of the closing reception on the final day. About 75 family, friends and members of the K-State community gathered for the closing reception to honor the graduates and hear their thoughts on these important livestock issues.

You can find out more information about the academy by visiting www.youthlivestock.ksu.edu. For questions, contact Academy Director Sharon Breiner at sbreiner@ksu.edu or 785-532-6533.

Food bloggers visit Kansas during wheat harvest

Kansas wheat farmers shared their story with consumers this June when nine food bloggers came to Kansas during wheat harvest.

Food bloggers from all over the United States toured a wheat farm during harvest, a flour mill and the Kansas Wheat Innovation Center as part of the #Wheat2Bread tour, hosted by Kansas Wheat and Red Star Yeast.

On June 12, the bloggers traveled to south central Kansas where they met Kansas Wheat commissioner Scott Van Allen in his wheat field. For many of them, they had never been to Kansas or a farm before, and each had the opportunity to harvest wheat with Scott in his combine.

The bloggers asked questions about growing wheat, how farmers choose what to plant and what farmers want their readers to know. They posted on their social media channels an invitation for readers to ask questions of wheat farmers. Central Kansas wheat farmer Jenny Goering traveled with the group.

The group got to see harvest at Jenny's farm in McPherson County on their way to New Cambria, where they toured the Farmer Direct Foods flour mill.

On June 13, the bloggers toured the Kansas Wheat Innovation Center, where they learned about the research that goes into developing new wheat varieties. They were especially interested in the gene bank and the ability researchers have to breed genetics from ancient wheat relatives into modern bread wheats. Kansas State University's Wheat Genetics Resource Center is housed in the Kansas Wheat Innovation Center.

A highlight of the trip for the bloggers was a baking experience with cookbook author and fellow blogger Zoë François, from ZoeBakes and Breadin5. She is the coauthor of Artisan Bread in Five Minutes a Day. François and Kansas Wheat's Julene DeRouchey demonstrated two methods of creating bread dough, and the bloggers spent the day in Kansas Wheat's Speak for Wheat Test Kitchen perfecting their bread baking skills. They were excited to return home and put their new skills to work developing wheat bread recipes for their readers.

Another goal of bringing the bloggers to Kansas during wheat harvest was to share with them and their readers about the National Festival of Breads baking contest that will be held next June 8, 2019. Contest organizers have added a food blogger division in addition to the home baker division. There was much interest in the contest, and many of the bloggers said they would love to come back next year, whether they qualify for the contest or not.

The bloggers included Stefani from Cupcake-project.com in St. Louis, Missouri; Lori from Thekitchenwhisperer.net in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; Kristin from BakerBettie.com in Chicago, Illinois; Abby from HeartofaBaker.com in Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Annalise from Completelydelicious.com in Salt Lake City, Utah; Sally from SallysBakingAddiction.com in Baltimore, Maryland; Adriana from adrianasbestrecipes.com in Orlando, Florida; Jamie from LoveBakes-GoodCakes.com in Phoenix, Arizona; and Jessica from A-Kitchen-Addiction.com in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Kansas Wheat's Marsha Boswell and Jordan Hildebrand, Red Star Yeast's Kelly Olson and Linda Nelsen, and Registered Dietitian Jill Ladd also traveled with the group.

They will be sharing their stories of their time in Kansas during wheat harvest with their readers over the next several weeks. With a combined readership of more than 5.4 million followers, these bloggers are helping Kansas wheat farmers share their story with millions of consumers throughout the U.S. Follow Kansas Wheat on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter to read their stories over the next few weeks.

Barn quilt classes planned leading up to Central Kansas Free Fair

It's time to create some new Rural Americana Art for the Central Kansas Free Fair in August.

Two classes are being offered, with one being the size required to enter the Barn Quilt exhibition class at the CKFF in Abilene. June 30th is a 1x1-foot boutique class designed for a fun, summer evening at Amanda's Bakery & Bistro in Abilene. The second on Sunday, July 8th is the CKFF-eligible 2x2-foot barn quilt painting class. It will be held at the Navarre Grade School/Community building in Navarre. This is a remodeled school building, complete with air conditioning.

Navarre is located 7 miles south of Enterprise on Highway K-43.

The CKFF Barn Quilt class is open to anyone in Kansas. Entries are checked in Weds., July 25th to be put up on display just ahead of the start of the Fair. Exhibitors are all rewarded with prizes and a "People's Choice award" is voted upon.

For information, contact Lori Hambright at 785-313-6565.

Senate Ag Committee approves farm bill

Last week the Senate farm bill was marked up and passed by the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry. Prior to the markup 198 amendments had been filed for consideration. At the conclusion of the relatively quick, seemingly smooth markup, 66 non-controversial amendments were filed to the Senate farm bill as part of a manager's amendment. Chairman Pat Roberts (R-KS) and Senate majority leader Mitch McConnell (R-KY) continue to press forward with plans to take the bill to the floor before the July 4 recess. National Sorghum Producers chairman Don Bloss from Pawnee City, Nebraska, and director Larry Dahlsten from Lindsborg were in Washington, D.C., during the markup, holding several meetings in Senate offices regarding sorghum priorities in the overall bill.

Meanwhile, in the House, GOP leadership expressed confidence they would clear its version of the farm bill. Leadership announced plans to vote on immigration measures next week, including a proposal to provide for a workable guest worker program. House Agriculture Committee chairman Mike Conaway believes he has enough votes to pass H.R. 2 before the June 22 deadline.

Animal Health Commissioner provides updates during KCA regional meeting

Independent cattle producers gathered together at PrairieLand Partners-John Deere in McPherson, Kansas for a Kansas Cattlemen's Association regional industry meeting on June 5th, 2018. KCA industry policy topics were reviewed, Dr. Justin Smith presented an update on the Animal Health Department's activities, and Craig Kerbs provided valuable information on animal nutrition.

Tyler Dupy, KCA Executive Director, briefly reviewed policy topics KCA is currently focused on, including: Meat (Protein) Alternatives, the 2018 Farm Bill, Country of Origin Labeling, Beef Check-off

Steer fed by Lane County wins Brookover Award at Beef Empire Days

A steer fed at Lane County Feeders of Dighton by Foote Cattle Company won the Earl C. Brookover Memorial Award at the Beef Empire Days fed cattle show in Garden City. The 1,506 lb. black steer placed fourth among live steers and seventh in the steer carcass contest for the best combined finish in the show. Carcass data showed the steer graded middle Choice and was a Yield Grade 2.87.

The grand champion heifer was a 1,344 lb. entry fed at NextGen Cattle Feeding by Schmidt Land & Cattle. This heifer placed sixth live and seventh in the heifer carcass contest. The entry graded high Choice and was a Yield Grade 2.98.

Lane County also fed the steer chosen as the grand champion carcass. The 1,562 lb. steer, owned by Foot Cattle Company, hung a 983 lb. carcass, had a 14.53 square inch ribeye with .52" of fat cover, graded low Prime and was a Yield Grade 3.38.

The Zoetis-MGA champion heifer carcass was produced by a 1,260 lb. entry fed at Danner Feeders of Muscatine, Iowa by Myron Danner. Also placing 14th live, this heifer hung an 848 lb. carcass with a 16.12 square inch ribeye and .66" of backfat, graded low Prime and was a Yield Grade 2.61.

Further results from the 50th anniversary Beef Empire Days live and carcass shows will appear in the July Kansas Stockman.

KDA seeks participants for beef genetics trade mission to Uruguay

The Kansas Department of Agriculture is seeking individuals to participate in a beef genetics trade mission to Uruguay from September 12-17, 2018. This trade mission provides an opportunity for Kansas purebred beef cattle producers and allied industries to develop relationships with livestock producers in Uruguay to increase market opportunities for U.S. and Kansas beef genetics.

Participants will interact with breeders and promote the use of U.S. beef genetics while attending Expo Prado 2018, a major international livestock exhibition in Uruguay. Kansas ranchers and related agribusinesses specializing in the export of Angus and Hereford genetics are invited to participate.

The trade mission is funded by U.S. Livestock Genetics Export, Inc. Selected participants will be eligible for travel stipends for airfare depending upon number of applicants and fund availability. Attendees will be responsible for the cost of hotels, meals, and other incidental expenses.

Individuals interested in participating in the trade mission should complete the application form on the KDA website at www.agriculture.ks.gov/international. Application deadline is July 30.

U.S. Grains Council issues statement on imposition of tariffs on Chinese goods

U.S. Grains Council president and CEO Tom Sleight made the following statement concerning tariffs on Chinese goods:

"The farmers and exporters we represent have been here before regarding China and they are well aware of what it's like to deal with tariffs, counter-tariffs and policy restrictions. Since 2010, we have been adversely impacted by trade policy actions by China against U.S. distiller's dried grains with solubles (DDGS), sorghum, ethanol and corn. China is a very important market for U.S. coarse grains and their co-products, but so too is the rest of the world. We will stay closely engaged with the China market and its importance to U.S. agriculture, but we will also redouble our efforts in the rest of the world to expand demand.

"We are concerned any tariff opens this market to our competitors and locking out U.S. products doesn't mean trade stops - it means other partners will take our place. Bottom line: tariff battles are never productive.

"We trust the leaders at the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative and the White House know how critical open markets are to our industry and appreciate their support during this process and in this tense time."

Redirection and Reform, and the Food Safety Modernization Act.

"Although the Kansas legislature is now out of session, there is plenty going on at the federal and regulatory levels that require our attention. Producer involvement and awareness with these issues is critical to maintain the effectiveness of our responses. We certainly appreciate the producers taking the time to come out to the regional meeting in McPherson," Dupy stated.

Dr. Justin Smith, Kansas Animal Health Commissioner, discussed the Kansas Animal Health Organization, and the various areas of the department that provide critical services to producers. These areas include the Brands Program and the Livestock and Brand Investigation Unit, Secure Food Supply Plans, and the Animal Facilities Protection Program. Smith also reviewed statistics of Animal Disease Control as well as Animal Disease Traceability.

Dr. Smith represented that Kansas is in decent shape relative to other states where disease is concerned. Even still, there are areas of the state affected by Anaplasmosis, Cow-Calf Johne's Disease, Rabies, Bovine Tuberculosis, and Trichomoniasis. Smith discussed how proper preventative measures and a disease response plan helps to keep operations safe and productive.

Craig Kerbs with SmartLinc Supplements reviewed Veterinary Feed Directives and Animal Husbandry. Kerbs presented four ways to improve cattle operation bottom lines. The steps involved decreasing animal competition, increasing forage utilization, improving reproduction efficiency, and increasing gains on pasture.

The meeting included a USA Beef dinner prepared by Meat Rubbers BBQ and Catering.

Proud sponsors of the event included: Allan & Deanna Sents, A5 Western, LLC., Central Prairie Co-Op, Central Livestock, Countryside Feed, LLC., Farmers Alliance Mutual Ins. Co., First Bank Kansas, PrairieLand Partners-John Deere, SmartLinc-New Generation Supplements, State Auto Insurance Company, Sweet-Pro Feeds, Te-Pe Oil & Gas, WaterTight Roofing, and Zeitlow Distributing Company. Numerous door prizes were donated by Key Feeds, Tractor Supply Co., and Orscheln Farm & Home.

Stretch your Summer grass!

Key 16 Calf Creep will feed the calf and save grass for the cow. The extra weight gain will produce $25 to $50 return per calf over creep feed costs. Delivery in bulk or bags is available. Contact your local Key Feeds representative.

Ticks, Chiggers & Mosquitoes

People have been calling about managing ticks. I have had to swat my share of mosquitoes this season. Keeping out of chigger-prone environments is my goal.

Ticks, chiggers and mosquitoes have similar

Strong April for U.S. red meat exports, including new volume record for pork

April exports of U.S. pork, beef and lamb were sharply higher than a year ago in both volume and value, according to data released by USDA and compiled by USMEF. Pork exports set a new volume record, fueled by tremendous demand in Mexico, while beef exports posted the best-ever results for the month of April.

April pork export volume was 230,049 metric tons (mt), up 13 percent from a year ago and topping the previous high set in November 2016. April export value was $584.1 million, also up 13 percent. For January through April, pork export volume was 4 percent ahead of last year's record pace at 866,346 mt, while value increased 9 percent to $2.29 billion. (For pork muscle cuts, excluding variety meat, April was also a record volume month at 184,487 mt, up 18 percent from a year ago. Muscle cut export value was $480.6 million, up 14 percent.)

Exports accounted for nearly 30 percent of total pork production in April, up from 28.4 percent a year ago, while the percentage of muscle cuts exported also increased significantly (25.8 percent, up from 23.5 percent). Through April, the percentage of total production exported was fairly steady with last year at 27.4 percent, while muscle cuts jumped from 22.8 percent to 23.5 percent.

April pork export value averaged $58.45 per head slaughtered, up 6 percent from a year ago, while the January-April average increased 5 percent to $55.69.

Beef export volume was 111,213 mt in April, up 11 percent year-over-year. Export value was $676.7 million, up 23 percent and the fourth-highest on record. Through the first four months of 2018, exports were up 10 percent in volume to 429,286 mt. Export value was $2.59 billion, 20 percent above last year's record pace.

Exports accounted for 14.1 percent of total beef production in April, up from 13.6 percent a year ago. For muscle cuts only, the percentage exported was 11.3 percent, up from habitats. They are mostly found in grassy, weedy and woody areas where moisture or humidity is available. A good method of prevention is to limit their preferred habitat. Keep grasses and weeds mowed down and allow Beef export value averaged $328.46 per head of fed slaughter in April, up 16 percent from a year ago. Through April, per-head export value averaged $318.91, up 17 percent.

Even with growth in red meat production, both pork and beef exports have accounted for a larger share and contributed more dollars per head, indicating strong international demand.

Huge month for pork to Mexico; exports to Korea continued to surge Mexico was again the pacesetter for pork exports in April, with volume reaching 79,019 mt - up 34 percent from a year ago and the second-largest on record. Export value to Mexico was $134.1 million, up 28 percent. Through the first four months of 2018, exports to Mexico were 7 percent above last year's record volume pace at 282,675 mt, with value up 6 percent to $505.4 million.

Maintaining this pace will be challenging, however, with Mexico announcing retaliatory tariffs on imports of most U.S. pork products effective June 5. The tariff rate on chilled and frozen pork muscle cuts is 10 percent until July 5, when it is set to increase to 20 percent.

"The outstanding April performance for pork exports to Mexico really underscores the importance of this market to the U.S. industry and how it has been such a reliable trading partner for hams, picnics and other pork cuts," said USMEF President and CEO Dan Halstrom. "USMEF will continue to emphasize the quality and consistency of U.S. pork to red meat customers in Mexico and make every effort to help U.S. suppliers retain their business. But make no mistake about it, the U.S. industry is going to have to fend off competitors who suddenly have a significant tariff rate advantage and see a clear opening into the Mexican areas to dry out. Dry and sunny spots will have less of these pests. Mosquitoes need seven days of standing water to develop.

There are a few areas in my landscape that will always be suitable habitat for these pests. The most market."

Pork exports to South Korea continued to build momentum in April, with volume (25,370 mt, up 74 percent) and value ($74.1 million, up 81 percent) increasing significantly from a year ago. Through April, exports to Korea are on a record pace, climbing 44 percent in volume to 94,888 mt, valued at $276.1 million (up 55 percent). Strong growth in consumer demand and duty-free access under the Korea-U.S. Free Trade Agreement (KORUS) have fueled a rapidly expanding presence for U.S. pork in Korea.

While pork exports to the China/Hong Kong region were below year-ago levels in April, shipments remained relatively strong despite the additional 25 percent tariff on U.S. pork that took effect April 2. It is likely, however, that the trade impact will show up more dramatically in May export data and in coming months. The tariff increase essentially tripled China's standard rate on frozen pork imports, taking it from 12 percent to 37 percent (the increase does not apply to Hong reliable management is for me to apply a repellent when pests are likely to be present. That is more effective than treating the whole area with a pesticide that may not reach all the targeted pests.

Research trials have indicated various lengths of time that the insect repellents are effective. They can range from five hours to a few seconds. One decision on selection is how often you want to re-apply. Another is using a synthetic or natural derived product. Read and follow directions on all products.

Products containing Kong, which still charges zero duty). April exports to China/Hong Kong were 41,567 mt, down 14 percent from a year ago, but slipped only slightly in value to $95.9 million. For January through April, exports to China/Hong Kong were 15 percent below last year's pace in volume (153,248 mt) but steady in value at $356.6 million.

"It is encouraging to see that pork volumes to China/Hong Kong held up fairly well in April, but the tariff disadvantage is still having a negative impact on the U.S. industry and has pressured prices for key export items," Halstrom noted. "It's another situation in which our competitors are capitalizing on the extra cost associated with importing U.S. pork."

For January through April, other highlights for U.S. pork include:

Exports to leading value market Japan were 1 percent below last year's pace in volume (132,534 mt) but increased 1 percent in value ($544.8 million). This included a 5 percent decrease in chilled pork volume (68,532 mt), valued at $330 million (down 1

DEET or Permethrin can be effective for a long time. The higher the percent of a DEET product, the longer it is effective, with a product at 33% being the top suggested. Permethrin products are applied to clothing only and can last through laundering. Selection of these products depends on your needs.

Picaridin is a synthetic compound made to resemble the natural compound piperine, which is found in the group of plants that are used to produce black pepper.

Oil of lemon eucalyptus and IR3535 products are naturally occurring.

It can be important to protect yourself from these pests. I'm not too fond of the itching. Some ticks and mosquitoes can carry disease which wouldn't make for a happy, memorable gardening season.

You can find out more information on this and other horticulture topics by going to the Riley County, K-State Research and Extension website at www.riley.ksu.edu. Gregg may be contacted by calling 785-537-6350 or stopping by 110 Courthouse Plaza in Manhattan or e-mail: geyeston@ksu.edu percent).

Strong growth in Colombia pushed pork exports to South America up 23 percent from a year ago in volume (39,520 mt) and 24 percent in value ($96.7 million).

Led by mainstay markets Honduras and Guatemala and sharply higher shipments to Panama, exports to Central America climbed 23 percent from a year ago in volume (26,459 mt) and 27 percent in value ($63.3 million).

Pork exports achieved solid growth in the Philippines and more than doubled from a year ago to Vietnam, as exports to the ASEAN region increased 20 percent in volume (15,435 mt) and 31 percent in value ($43.8 million).

Tractor team once again make its mark in international competition

The Kansas State University Helwig Farms Quarter-Scale Tractor Team came home with two top finishes at the 21st annual American Society of Agricultural and Biological Engineers' International Quarter-Scale Tractor Student Design Competition.

The team competed May 31-June 3 in Peoria, Illinois, against 28 teams from universities in the U.S., Canada and Israel. Kansas State University's A team took second place overall and its X team first overall. This is the 19th time in the last 21 years that one of the university's teams has won or placed in the top three at the event.

"The students continue to build upon the tradition of excellence," said Joe Harner, head of the biological and agricultural engineering department. "Year after year, our students come through and place in the top spots of this international competition. The success is a combined effort of our programs, the team advisors and, of course, our students."

A panel of industry experts judge each design for innovation, manufac-turability, serviceability, maneuverability, safety, sound level and ergonomics. Teams submit a written design report in advance of the competition, and on-site must sell their design in a formal presentation to the panel. Finally, machines are put to the test in three performance events: three tractor pulls, a maneuverability course and a durability course.

The A team — juniors and seniors — averaged fourth in pulls and took second overall. The X team — freshmen and sophomores — took first in the oral presentation and first overall.

Team advisors are Pat Murphy, adjunct professor; Dan Flippo, assistant professor; Edwin Brokesh, instructor; Lou Ann Claassen, administrative specialist; and Jon Zeller, research technician, all from the biological and agricultural engineering department; and Ryan Zecha, Manhattan, biological and agricultural engineering alumnus.

The following students are members of the university's Helwig Farms Quarter-Scale Tractor Team; leadership positions are also noted.

Braden Mishler, biological systems engineering, A team sponsorship co-chair, Arnold; Corbin Baldwin, biological systems engineering, X team vice president, Cimarron; Matt Loomis, agricultural technology management, equipment manager, Iuka; Megan Workman, agronomy, A team secretary, Lawrence; David Pullen, mechanical engineering, A team student council representative, Lenexa; Evan Ridder, biological systems engineering, A team, Leoti; E.J. Swihart, biological systems engineering, A Team, Manhattan; Logan Windholz, biological systems engineering, X team equipment manager, Marquette; Jace Shirley, agricultural technology management, A team, Oakley; Nicholas Meyer, biological systems engineering, A team treasurer, Tampa; Curtis Doughramaji, biological systems engineering, A team president, Topeka; Conor Hamilton, agricultural technology management, equipment manager, Turon; Brett Schwarz, agricultural technology management, A team sponsorship co-chair, Wamego; and Kaleb Keehn, biological systems engineering, X team president, Wetmore.

From out of state: Alexander Nytko, biological systems engineering, A team vice president, Roscoe, Illinois; Grant Friesen, biological systems engineering, A team student council representative, Carthage, Indiana; and Drew Goddard, biological systems engineering, X team secretary, Omaha, Nebraska.

Identify and treat tomato leaf-spot diseases

By Kelsey Hatesohl, Extension horticulture agent, River Valley Extension District

This time of year, two common leaf-spot diseases appear on tomato plants, Septoria leaf-spot and early blight. Brown spots on the leaves characterize both diseases. It is important to figure out which disease your plants may have, so you can treat them accordingly.

Septoria leaf-spot usually appears earlier in the season than early blight and produces small dark spots. Spots made by early blight are much larger and often have a distorted "target" pattern of concentric circles. With both diseases, heavily infected leaves eventually turn yellow and drop. Older leaves are more susceptible than younger ones, so these diseases often start at the bottom of the plant and work up.

Mulching, caging, or staking keep plants off the ground, making them less vulnerable to both diseases. Better air circulation allows foliage to dry quicker — having less of a chance to develop these diseases.

Mulching also helps prevent water from splashing up onto the leaves and carrying disease spores to the plant.

In situations where these diseases have been a problem in the past, rotation is a good strategy. It is too late for that now, but keep it in mind for next year. Actually, rotation is a good idea even if you have not had problems in the past. Unfortunately, for many gardeners their space is too small to make rotation practical. If you have room, rotate the location of the tomatoes each year to an area that had not had tomatoes or related crops (peppers, potatoes, eggplant) for several years.

If rotation is not feasible, fungicides are often helpful. Be sure to cover both upper and lower leaf surfaces, and reapply fungicide if rainfall removes it. Plants usually become susceptible when the tomato fruit is about the size of a walnut. Chlorothalonil is a good choice for fruiting plants, because it has a zero-day waiting period, meaning fruit can be harvested once the spray is dry. Chlorothalonil can be found in numerous products including Fertilome Broad-Spectrum Landscape and Garden Fungicide, Ortho Garden Disease Control, Garden Tech Daconil, and others. Be sure to start protecting plants when the disease is first seen. It is virtually impossible to control this disease on heavily infected plants. If Chlorothalonil doesn't seem to be effective, try mancozeb (Bonide Mancozeb Flowable). Note: there is a five-day waiting period between application and when the fruit can be harvested. You may wish to pick some tomatoes green just before you spray if you use Mancozeb as the tomato fruit will ripen inside.

As with all chemicals, read the label to make sure it is listed for use on both the specific disease you are trying to get rid of and the plant the disease is on.
