

Schwieterman Market Outlook

A marketing commentary by Bret Crotts

The March Supply and Demand report had some good information for corn bulls. USDA increased the export estimate more than expected to 2.225 billion bushels and ending stocks were cut by 225 million bushels to 2.127 billion. That is still plenty of corn, but at least the trend in carry out numbers is lower. The current export estimate is still below last year, and well below the record level, so there is still room for higher estimates if we maintain the current demand pace.

In addition to the friendly US numbers, the world corn ending stocks

Grass & Grain Weather Report

were also cut again to 199.17 MMT. That is a 16% drop from the previous crop year and with further cuts to the South American production estimates to come, there is a good chance we end up seeing a 20% drop in ending stocks from last year. That is very encouraging since we are dropping off of record levels of world corn stocks. The world stocks-to-use ratio is now the lowest since the 2013/2014 crop year and trending towards the levels that helped us make all-time highs in the corn market.

We are set up for some wild volatility in the corn market over the next couple of months, but for the moment I have to lean towards to bullish camp. We could easily see new crop ending stocks stay above two billion bushels, but even with an excellent national average yield of 170, we could see a sharp drop.

USDA didn't do the wheat market any good traders have a pretty negwith the cut in the export ative attitude that is hard to overcome. We are conestimate and the subsequent rise in ending tinually bombarded with stocks. I suspected that beef production estimates something of that nathat are off the charts and ture would happen, but I everyone has a story about thought it would be dehow full the feedlots are layed until the April and thanks to months of high May reports. Unlike the placements. The result of that negative narrative corn, the wheat just can't get anything going on the is that we are trending demand front. Perhaps lower in the cattle futures declining corn stocks will and although we are getting oversold, there is a shift some feed demand to the wheat. We need to good chance that the down see something happen trend continues for a bit because five consecutive longer. years of record world wheat production in bury-

There is no doubt that we have very strong demand for beef, so we are not going to see the cattle market trend lower forever. Look for the June live cattle to move down towards the $111 level, and then consider getting long

Kansas Hay Market Report

Hay market activity slow to moderate; Demand remains good for both grinding alfalfa and grass hay. Small lots of alfalfa are being traded, but supplies continue to dwindle. In addition, the feeling across the state is that the grass hay markets are also tightening. Alfalfa prices continue to increase while grass hay remains steady. There have been some "new crop" alfalfa inquiries by folks hoping to lock in price now and a few "new crop" alfalfa sales have been reported. Drought continues to persist across the state as concerns of wildfire increases. According to the U.S. Drought Monitor, the abnormally dry (D0) category is at 99 pct, moderate drought (D1) is at 73 pct, severe drought (D2) is at 34 pct and extreme drought (D3) is at 9.5 pct. Aggressor™ herbicide receives EPA registration for exclusive use in the CoAXium™ Wheat

LLC, Colorado Wheat Research Foundation, Inc. (CWRF) and Limagrain Cereal Seeds, LLC (LCS) have announced the EPA registration of AggressorTM herbicide, the exclusive-use herbicide for CoAXiumTM Wheat Production System. Aggressor™ herbicide will provide growers with a new mode of action to address tough-to-control winter annual grassy weeds, including feral rye, Group 2 or ALS resistant biotypes of downy brome grass and jointed goatgrass. AggressorTM herbicide will be the exclusive herbicide brand for use with two new CoAXium Wheat varieties. Incline AX and LCS Fusion AX, both hard red winter wheat varieties, are scheduled for a 2018 fall launch with limited amounts of certified seed available to growers in Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Montana and parts of Oregon and Washington. AggressorTM herbicide and CoAXiumTM Wheat Production System are a result of innovative thinking and vision of Colorado growers and Colorado State University. This joint collaboration focused on delivery of novel solutions for wheat producers in North America and around the globe. The new CoAXium Wheat Production technology platform combines a patented herbicide-tolerance trait, elite germplasm, state-of-the-art AggressorTM herbicide brands and best-in-class industry stewardship.

Production System al organizations, Albaugh,

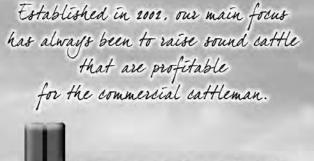

Production System was built from the ground up by growers who had innovation, performance and grower value in mind," stated Chad Shelton, Global Proprietary Products Director at Albaugh LLC. "Aggressor" herbicide will provide growers with a new grassy weed control tool to help to maximize their return on investment by controlling tough winter annual grasses, including feral rve, Group 2 (ALS) resistant biotypes of downy brome grass, volunteer cereals and jointed goatgrass. AggressorTM herbicide will deliver to the grower consistent performance for control of grassy weeds resulting in cleaner fields and higher vields." "Colorado wheat growers were some of the first to adopt herbicide-tolerant wheat technology back in 2001. So by 2008, they had several years of experience and knew that another tool with better performance and better value would provide a huge benefit to wheat growers. This registration is a culmination of that original vision, and we're very excited we could bring a product to market in just ten years," said Brad Erker, executive director - Colorado Wheat.

"We are delighted to introduce LCS Fusion AX in 2018 - one of the first two varieties for use with the CoAXium Wheat Production System. Although the concept and the first varieties were developed in Colorado, the technology will benefit growers in other regions where annual grass weeds are troublesome. The LCS distribution network is already gearing up to make seed available in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, as well as throughout the Central Plains region," stated Frank Curtis, chief operating officer at Limagrain Cereal Seeds. Please visit www.CoAX-

Home-grown vegetables are superior in taste and quality. That is why I like to grow some of my own vegetables. I also enjoy working the soil and watching the plants mature. Potatoes and many other vegetables are actually economical to purchase from a retail business without going to the effort of growing them.

Another advantage to growing your own is selecting ones you may not find on store shelves. Fingerlings and all blue or red inside potatoes make for fun eating. These may Cut potatoes will seal over to prevent rotting by storing them at room temperature for a few days before planting. Purchasing "certified" seed that comes guarantee quality. As a youngster, I was instructed to plant the potato with the eye up. It was a test to see if I could follow instructions. Since that time, I have planted many potatoes upside down. Some good advice:

BUY NOW, STEEL PRICES TO RISE. For years we have served our customers by alerting them of pending steel price increases. Suppliers we do business with have told us they are raising prices in early 2018. It is good news that the economy is growing, but it is also time to play it smart.

Steel prices will affect everything steel, not just products we sell. If you can nticipate what your needs wil be, AVOID THE HIKE. If you are a customer of GoBob, you know we have always honored the prices given at the time you place your order. 855-880-7964

Firefighters battled wildfires in Kansas, Nebraska

(AP) – Firefighters battled dozens of wildfires in Kansas and Nebraska last week that have erupted since the previous weekend, even as calmer winds on Wednesday helped contain or extinguish most of them.

In Nebraska, a burned man was found crawling in a McCook farm field as 50 mph wind gusts whipped flames down a ravine toward the Red Willow County community of 7,500 people. The man, who had camped out in the area, has been transferred to a burn center.

Kansas authorities said 50 fires have burned about 40 square miles. Improving weather conditions Wednesday left crews in 13 Kansas counties fighting blazes that are contained or almost out or almost out.

But a blaze that broke out Wednesday near Hamilton in Greenwood County prompted the Kansas Army National Guard to copters to assist with the firefighting operations.

This year's wildfire outbreak in Kansas pales in comparison to March 2017 when some 2,000 fire-fighters battled a series of blazes that consumed more than 1,000 square miles, killed a truck driver, forced thousands to evacuate, and damaged or destroyed dozens of structures. Thousands of cattle also died.

Kansas Gov. Jeff Colyer said the state has learned a lot in the last couple

"This is something that can get out of control very easily, so we're quite concerned still," Colyer said. "But we're dealing with

The governor attributed the successful efforts this year to improvements in coordination between state and local emergency responders.

"They've experienced a lot together after the last couple of years," Colyer said. "They know each other by name now. They're closer."

In southwest Nebraska, crews were dispatched to eliminate dangerous hot spots left by a wild-fire that destroyed a house and blackened hundreds of acres as it threatened McCook.

As officials called for evacuations, students and staff at McCook Elementary School were taken to McCook Senior High School several blocks

People at the state prison's Work Ethic Camp spotted the fire and reported it to local officials around 1:20 p.m. last Tuesday, but camp spokeswoman Cristy Schwartz said the 189 inmates and nearly 50 staffers didn't have to leave the grounds.

Chief Bill Elliott of the Red Willow Western Rural Fire Department said wind gusts knocked a power line into a shed about two miles from town, and sparks from the resulting short ignited dry brush below.

The blaze never entered the city proper, but the flames did destroy a house on the edge of town while the residents weren't home, Elliott said.

"The house right beside it – only 30 feet away – was not damaged," he said.

"Paraguay won't be a huge market for U.S. pork, but given the current trade climate, the U.S. pork industry needs all the new markets it can get," said NPPC president Jim Heimerl, a pork producer from Johnstown, Ohio. "This is welcome news for America's pork producers."

RCLA Spring Meeting scheduled for March 29

Dale Strickler, with Green Cover Seeds, will be the featured speaker at the Riley County Livestock Association spring meeting on Thursday, March 29 at the Fairview Church Fellowship Hall, near Riley.

Strickler is an agronomist and former instructor at the collegiate level. He lives near Jamestown where he runs a cow herd and studies cropping systems, using cover crops and grazing to build soil health. His presentation will be about "Grazing Cover Crops." The Fairview Church is located two miles north of Riley on Highway 24, across from the Riley County High School. The meeting will start at 6:30 p.m., with dinner catered by The Farmhouse in Olsburg. There is an $8 charge for dinner and reservations are needed by March 26. Reservations can be made online at www.riley.ksu.edu or by calling the Riley County Extension Office at 785-537-6350.

Beef exports totaled 105,486 metric tons (mt) in January, up 9 percent yearover-year, while export value surged 21 percent to $624.4 million. Exports accounted for 12.4 percent of total beef production in January, up slightly from a year ago. For muscle cuts only, the percentage exported increased from 9.5 percent to 10.1 percent. Beef export value averaged $293.06 per head of fed slaughter, up 14 percent year-over-year.

January pork exports totaled 203,488 mt, steady with last year's strong volume, while export value increased 7 percent to $545.6 million. Pork exports accounted for 24.7 percent of total pork production, down from 26.2 percent a year ago. For muscle cuts only, the percentage exported declined slightly to 21.5 percent. Pork export value averaged $50.93 per head slaughtered, up 1 percent year-over-year.

For muscle cuts only, beef exports reached 80,495 mt (up 15 percent) valued at $555.7 million (up 23 percent). Pork export volume increased 5 percent to 164,189 mt, while value climbed 9 percent to $454.2 million. Beef variety meat volume fell 5 percent to just under 25,000 mt, but value increased 7 percent to $68.8 million. Pork variety meat exports dropped 16 percent in volume (39,299 mt) but still managed a 2 percent increase in value to $91.5 million.

"January export results were solid overall and were especially strong for muscle cuts," said USMEF president and CEO Dan Halstrom. "Despite the decline in variety meat volume, export value continued to increase. This underscores the important contribution variety meats deliver for producers and for everyone in the U.S. supply chain."

Asian markets continue to shine for U.S. beef

U.S. beef continued to gain momentum in the Japanese market, with January exports increasing 7 percent from a year ago in volume (23,968 mt) and 19 percent in value ($148.6 million). This included a 30 percent increase in chilled beef exports to 12,411 mt, valued at $92.4 million (up 38 percent). Frozen exports declined 13 percent in volume (8,141 mt) but increased slightly in value ($33.1 million). Frozen U.S. beef entering Japan is subject to a 50 percent safeguard tariff, which is scheduled to revert back to 38.5 percent on April 1, the beginning of the new Japanese fiscal year. bilateral trade agreement with Japan, frozen beef from Australia is subject to a duty of 27.2 percent. This rate will decline to 26.9 percent on April 1.

Other January highlights for U.S. beef includ-

Exports to South Korea, which reached a record $1.2 billion in 2017, increased 13 percent from a year ago to 17,133 mt, while export value soared 34 percent to $122.3 million. This included a 54 percent increase in chilled beef exports to 3,954 mt, valued at $36.9 million, up 63 percent. Through the Korea-U.S. Free Trade Agreement (KORUS), the duty on U.S. beef was reduced to 21.3 percent on Jan. 1, about 5 percentage points lower than Australia's rate for this year and down significantly from the pre-KORUS rate of 40

Following large shipments in the fourth quarter of 2017, exports to Hong Kong slowed in January, but still easily exceeded last year's totals, increasing 41 percent from a year ago in volume (10.493 mt) and 53 percent in value ($79.8 million). Exports to China, which resumed in June after a 13-year absence, hit a new monthly high of 819 mt in January valued at $7.5 million.

Exports to Taiwan post ed impressive gains in January, increasing 17 percent in volume to 4,207 mt. Export value increased 41 percent to $42 million.

Led by solid gains in Indonesia and Vietnam, exports to the ASEAN region climbed 22 percent in volume (3,108 mt) and 13 percent in value ($15.9

Strong results in Chile and Colombia fueled beef exports to South America, which increased 90 percent in volume (3,307 mt) and 65 percent in value ($13.9 million).

Exports to Central America jumped 40 percent in volume (1,082 mt) and 32 percent in value ($5.9 million), led by a strong performance in Guatemala and larger variety meat shipments to El Salvador.

Beef exports to Africa were mostly variety meat in 2017. but January produced a large increase in muscle cut exports to Angola and South Africa. As a result, total exports to Africa were up 19 percent in volume (954 mt) and surged 88 percent in value to $1.4 million.

Pork steady to Mexico: strong increases for Japan, Korea, Central America Building on a record 2017 performance, January pork exports to Mexico increased 1 percent from a year ago in volume (72,997 mt) and 4 percent in value ($133.5 million). Mexico continues to be a mainstay market for U.S. hams and is the second-largest destination (behind China/ Hong Kong) for pork variety meat.

Other January highlights for U.S. pork includ-

Exports to leading value market Japan totaled 35,048 mt (up 11 percent) valued at $146.4 million (up 17 percent). Chilled exports were up 15 percent in volume (20,212 mt) and 21 percent in value ($96.8 million).

Exports to Korea, which posted impressive gains in 2017, continued to gain momentum in January as volume increased 17 percent to 18.879 mt and value climbed 20 percent to $54.2

Led by solid gains in mainstay markets Honduras and Guatemala and exceptional growth in El Salvador, pork exports to Central America increased 18 percent in volume (6,179 mt) and 20 percent in value ($14.5 million).

Year-over-year increases in both Australia and New Zealand pushed export volume to the Oceania region up 10 percent to 7,613 mt, while export value increased 15 percent to $22.2 million. Pork exports to Oceania are primarily composed of raw material for further processing, with Australia being one of the leading destinations for U.S. hams.

Led by strong growth to Vietnam, January export volume to the ASEAN region climbed 16 percent to 3,053 mt and value was up 17 percent to $7.9 million. The strong performance in Vietnam helped offset est destination for U.S.

Reflecting larger domestic production in China and correspondingly lower hog and pork prices, exports to China/Hong Kong fell 16 percent to 31,997 mt, but still achieved a 2 percent increase in value to $77.9 million. For muscle cuts only, exports to China/ Hong Kong increased 10 percent in volume (12,827 mt) and 14 percent in value ($25.6 million) from a year ago, but slowed from the fourth quarter pace when shipments gained momentum ahead of Chinese New Year. Following two big years, January pork variety meat exports to the region were the lowest since

Lamb exports get long-awaited boost from variety meats

Exports of U.S. lamb muscle cuts posted a solid performance in 2017, but overall results were held back by a decline in variety meat demand. That trend reversed in January, as variety meat exports were up 62 percent in volume to 614 mt and jumped 73 percent in value to $687,000. This helped push overall results for U.S. lamb to 740 mt (up 29 percent) valued at $1.5 million (up 6 percent). Variety meat export growth was led by Mexico, Angola and Gabon, while lamb muscle cut exports increased to the Caribbean and Canada.

Soybean growers: steel and aluminum tariffs harm farmers

Grass & Grain, March 13, 2018

The American Soybean Association (ASA) responded forcefully to tariffs signed into action last Thursday by President Donald Trump, saying that the measures could likely lead to retaliation by affected countries and arguing that soybean exports are a prime target given their prominent role in U.S. agricultural trade.

ASA president and Iowa farmer John Heisdorffer released the following statement that afternoon:

"These tariffs are a disastrous course of action from the White House. They may lead to retaliation by one or more of our valuable trading partners, which in turn will kneecap demand for soybeans in a time when the farm economy is struggling. We have heard directly from the Chinese that U.S. soybeans are prime targets for retaliation. The idea that we're the only game in town, and these partners have no choice but to purchase from the U.S. is flatly wrong. Our competition in Brazil and Argentina is eager to capitalize on whatever openings these tariffs create for them in markets like China and elsewhere.

"Throughout this process, we've met with officials at Commerce, with Treasury, with USTR and with White House staff. It is unfortunate that our input was not taken into account given the announcement today. While we are deeply disappointed and concerned, we reaffirm our commitment to sit down with the president and communicate the importance of trade for soybean farmers. There is absolutely a way to encourage growth in domestic industry without cannibalizing the success of agricultural trade. With these tariffs, the administration has taken the opposite approach, and sacrificed the progress and potential of farmers."

Kansas State draws large crowd to annual Legacy Sale

By Pat Melgares

standing-room-only crowd filled the Stanley Stout Center on Kansas State University's campus March 2 for the 41st-annual Legacy Sale, an event that showcases the best of bull and cow genetics.

The high-energy auction netted nearly $155,000 to support the operating budget of the university's purebred beef unit, though its value was felt well be-the university's purebred yond the dollars and cents.

"They've got pretty good standards on their animals, and they've got genetics that I like," said Jerry Hoak of Altamont, who said he has bought three bulls in the past for his southeast Kansas ranch. "It's a nice sale, nice animals and I enjoy coming up to this sale."

Another rancher, Marshall Wootten of Ottawa wasn't planning to buy any animals this year, but it was still well worth the "In the past, I've bought a Hereford bull and Simmental bull, and some cows. I've had good luck with them," Wootten said. "We still come each year even if we don't plan to buy anything... you know, you might change your mind. You might see something that you can't say 'no'

This is the fifth year the Legacy Sale has been conducted in the Stanley Stout Center. The building is located north of the K-State campus adjacent to the new purebred beef unit, which was dedicated at last year's sale.

"The sale here at K-State is important for a couple reasons," said Bob Weaber, professor of animal sciences and a livestock specialist with K-State Research and Extension. "One, we've got a lot of students involved. and they have put a lot of time and effort into getting us to this point as part of the seedstock marketing class here at K-State. We want to have a good, successful sale just to demonstrate to them that the process works.

"The other reason is that it helps our budget for the purebred unit, which is self-funded predominantly, so this sets the stage for next year's success and opportunities."

Senior Callahan Grund, an animal science major from Wallace, said the sale is a great hands-on experience for students

"At a sale like this, you take all the sales-management aspects of the normal bull sale that any family or seedstock operation would do, and we really take it upon ourselves to manage the sale," he said. "We each take a different role in preparing these bulls and cows for the sale and Fellow animal science senior Kodi Van Laeys from Logan said her family sells 100 Angus bulls each winter.

"Coming from a seedstock background where we have our own sales each year, it's added experience to improve our sales back home," she said. "I get the chance to see how people do things, and relate with buyers and peers in the class."

This year, K-State sold 20 bulls at an average price of $3,793.45, and 35 cows at an average of $2,891.46.

"We do a lot of work in making sure that the product we bring to market is a high quality one," Weaber said. "We do our homework to make sure producers have all the genetic information available, in terms of DNA and production record collection to make a great purchase decision. And, of course, we stand behind those animals that we put up for purebred program has "had a great run here at K-State. We look forward to using our new facilities... to move our genetic selection and opportunities for students and customers going forward."

Weaber added that the
