New cattle equipment provides a lower stress atmosphere while working your herd

By Leigh Johnson

Bob Studebaker, the owner of GoBob Pipe & Steel Sales, is a major advocate of low-stress cattle handling. Bob is excited to introduce to you a new addition to the Cattle Flow™ line of cattle working equipment. Cattle Flow™ Elite Convertible squeeze chute is a re-imagined concept to the old-style chute, that helps to reduce the stress on your cattle. This article will help to identify the ways that this chute outweighs and outperforms the competition.

It is well known that the stress on your cattle affects your profit margins. By utilizing low-stress cattle handling techniques, you will find increased birth rates, lower mortality rates, better weaning weights, and overall healthier cattle. The Cattle Flow™ Elite line has implemented features that lower the stress on the animal. The added weight helps to soften the sound of the moving mechanisms. There are grease zerks throughout the units to help the connections to move easily and quietly. They have also added sound dampening pads to the door stops to quiet down the chutes' operation.

The Cattle Flow™ Elite Convertible has a parallel squeeze of 30" down to 6". Coming standard with the Elite is the heavy-duty head restraint and the head gate that can be operated anywhere alongside the squeeze chute. Each side of the unit consists of the neck injection doors, large branding doors that can be completely removed and reversed, built-in palpation cage with bump doors and escape doors with bottom access foot doors. It also includes the sliding rear gate which makes it safer for the handler while in the palpation cage. The easily removable breast bar can help keep the cattle from laying down and the ratchet rump bar helps to secure the cattle in a forward position. The Cattle Flow™ Elite Convertible weighs more at 2800 lbs. and has a lower price than the nearest competition that weighs in at 2000 lbs.

The Cattle Flow™ Limited standard squeeze chute weighs anywhere from 1650-1970 pounds, depending on selected options, which compares to the 1210 lbs. of the nearest competitor. The limited has a parallel squeeze of 30" to 6" and has an optional palpation cage available. Coming standard with this model is a manual chute with a manual catch gate but has an optional self-catching head gate. It has four large fully removable branding doors that can be reconfigured to open in either direction. Bottom access foot doors on both sides that swing out of the way and an escape door on one side are standard features on the Cattle Flow™ Limited squeeze chute.

Last but not least is the Cattle Flow™ Elite Hydraulic weighing in at 3400 pounds. This is essentially the same unit as the Cattle Flow™ Elite Convertible but with the hydraulic features. The hydraulic system is powered by your choice of a 13 HP Honda gas engine or 5 HP electric motor. Included with this unit are a pump, reservoir, and cart for the engine that will attach to the side of the chute while transporting to your work site. The unit comes with enough 1/2" hydraulic hose to pull the engine about 20' from the chute. The hydraulic controls will also rotate to either side of the chute for easy access.

All Cattle Flow™ squeeze chutes are sold wheel kit-ready and scale-ready. Wheels kits are available for a small additional charge. Mr. Studebaker is very confident that this product will meet and exceed every expectation when it comes to the wellbeing of any cattle herd and more importantly, the folks out there operating it.

In addition to the Cattle Flow™ line, GoBob also has a new line of Competitor chutes. The Competitor V-Squeeze and the V-Squeeze XL are made the GoBob way; heavy duty and made to last. Moderately priced, these chutes will stand up and compete with any chute on the market in its class. The competitor is made from heavy 3" square tubing and reinforced with gussets. Weighing in at around 1900 lbs. this chute is sure to hold up to the roughest cattle.

The standard V-Squeeze features an automatic headgate although you can get a manual if you prefer for no additional charge. The V-Squeeze XL is six inches taller than the standard and it is the only portable model for the Competitor series. The XL also comes with a very unique feature of panel racks on all four corners of the chute. This feature allows the operator to haul their portable corral panels along with the chute in one trip.

The Cattle Flow Squeeze chute and Competitor lines are featured GoBob products. For those who are interested in the Cattle Flow™ Elite Convertible, Hydraulic, Limited, or Competitor V-Squeeze and the low-stress handling concept, check out the GoBob Pipe website at www.gobob-pipe.com or contact a GoBob Pipe and Steel Representative at 1-844-304-4780.

KSU faculty members earn American Society of Science awards

Drs. Robert Goodband, Cassie Jones and K.C. Olson, Kansas State University Department of Animal Sciences and Industry (ASI) professors, were presented awards by the American Society of Animal Science (ASAS) on July 9 at the 2019 ASAS Annual Meeting in Austin, Texas.

Dr. Bob Goodband received the 2019 AFIA Award in Nonruminant Nutrition Research, which recognizes an individual who has contributed to and published outstanding work in the last ten years in the field of nonruminant nutrition.

Originally from Walpole, Massachusetts, Goodband graduated from The Pennsylvania State University in 1984. He obtained his master's and doctorate in swine nutrition at K-State, and joined the faculty in 1989. Goodband and his co-workers have played an important role in developing an intensive on-farm research program that has conducted numerous on-farm trials across the U.S. His work has resulted in 310 refereed journal papers, six book chapters, more than 1,000 research reports and Extension publications, eight patents, and $13.9 million in grants and gifts to K-State.

Goodband also teaches Swine Science and Swine

Nutrition courses and serves as academic advisor to more than 35 undergraduate students each year. Goodband has served as the major professor for 22 master's and doctorate students and on committees of an additional 113 students.

Dr. Cassie Jones received the 2019 ASAS Early Career Achievement Award, which recognizes an individual who has shown outstanding achievement as a young scholar and is working toward the mission of ASAS.

An associate professor, Jones earned her bachelor's and master's from K-State and her doctorate in swine nutrition from Iowa State University in 2012. As the department's Undergraduate Research coordinator, Jones oversees more than 100 undergraduates conducting research annually. She teaches more than 250 students in seven different classes and advises approximately 60 students. Outside of teaching, Jones is an accomplished researcher in the area of animal feed safety, with more than 40 peer-reviewed publications, 100 abstracts, and $6.5 million in awarded grants, gifts and contracts during her seven-year career. Jones and her husband, Spencer, raise Angus cattle near Wamego, and have three young children — Ty, Hayden and Hadley.

Dr. K.C. Olson received the 2019 ASAS Animal Management Award, which recognizes an individual who has contributed to excellent research in the biological or production management of livestock.

Olson's graduate training at North Dakota State and Kansas State Universities preceded his eight-year appointment in Extension and research at the University of Missouri. In 2006, he joined the K-State faculty and is now a professor of animal science in a research and teaching role. In 2011, he was awarded the W.M. and F.A. Lewis Distinguished Chair in Animal Sciences &

Industry. His research has attracted collaboration with more than 40 KSU scientists and 25 scientists from other academic institutions. These projects supported degree requirements for 17 master's, eight doctorate and seven undergraduate students under his mentorship. Over the last decade, Olson has published 62 peer-reviewed journal articles, five book chapters, 48 proceedings papers and more than 100 abstracts. He has delivered numerous presentations around the globe. Olson's previous honors include K-State Advisor of the Year, Excellence in Graduate Teaching and Excellence in Extension.

Including beef in healthy diets is a smart approach to healthy lifestyles

The National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA), a contractor to the Beef Checkoff, told members of the Dietary Guidelines Advisory Committee (DGAC) in oral comments that an overwhelming body of scientific evidence shows that healthy diets including red meat, like beef, support optimal health and well-being.

"Beef is a high-quality protein powerhouse providing a unique combination of bio-available iron, zinc and B vitamins essential to building and maintaining strength from infancy through our later years," said Shalene McNeill, Ph.D.,

RD, NCBA executive director of Nutrition Research.

NCBA also emphasized to the committee that beef is rich in nostalgia and nutrients and has been enjoyed for centuries and continues to be part of most Americans' diets, traditions and celebrations. Beef nourishes bodies and minds and optimizes health at every stage of life. As more Americans are overweight, it is important to make every calorie count. Calorie for calorie, no other protein food delivers the same package of ten essential nutrients. Today's beef is leaner than ever before and Americans' consumption of calories and fat from beef have declined.

"As a registered dietitian, nutrition scientist and advocate for healthy eating, it's important for people who include beef as a source of nourishment and satisfaction in a healthy diet to know that the best science available today continues to reinforce this is a smart approach for a healthy lifestyle," McNeill said.

Jointly updated every five years by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), the DGAs serve as the cornerstone of federal nutrition policy. During this process, a group of experts in the fields of nutrition and health are appointed to the DGAC. These individuals are tasked with reviewing the latest nutrition research to make science-based recommendations to HHS and USDA on the food and beverages that promote a healthy, balanced diet.

Providing oral comment is an important part of the DGA process. On behalf of beef farmers and ranchers, NCBA, a contractor to the to the Beef Checkoff, an industry research and promotion program that utilized scientific evidence as the basis for its information, urges the DGAC to systematically review the totality of scientific evidence, using best practices that are thorough, transparent and relevant when making decisions that will ultimately result in nutritional policies that can measurably improve the health of Americans.

Learn more about beef's nutrient-rich profile and find ways to incorporate the mouth-watering, high-quality protein into your healthy lifestyle at Beef. It's What's for Dinner.

Day of the Cowboy to be celebrated at Pioneer Bluffs

Courage, optimism, and a strong work ethic are in the heart of a cowhand. Their work is demanding, with long days in all kinds of weather. The cowhand is indispensable, especially in the Flint Hills where there are more cattle than people.

A community celebration at a historic Flint Hills ranch will honor the cowhands of yesterday and today.

The National Day of the Cowboy will be celebrated Saturday, July 27, 2:00 to 7:00 p.m., at Pioneer Bluffs near Matfield Green.

National Day of the Cowboy is dedicated to preserving America's cowboy culture and pioneer heritage. At Pioneer Bluffs, the more inclusive term "cowhand" is preferred.

"This will be a fun, fascinating day for both visitors and ranch families," said Lynn Smith, Executive Director. "Visitors can talk to working cowhands and watch ranch activities such as branding and roping. We will be capturing stories to share with future visitors, and ask ranch families to bring their branding iron and share their story in the video project, 'Voices of the Tallgrass Prairie.'"

Brands will be burned on 100-year-old wood in the branding demonstration. Families are encouraged to bring their branding iron, or a sketch of their brand. "A brand is important on the ranch," said rancher Dennis Hague, Cedar Point. "We are proud of our brands, they represent who we are. This project will create a display of brands used in the Flint Hills." Hague will lead the branding demonstration.

"Voices of the Tallgrass Prairie" will record ranch memories, preserving stories from the past. Dave Leiker, Emporia, will video the stories. Those interested in sharing a story may schedule an interview time in advance or that day.

A "Heritage Roundup" will highlight local ranch families, who will be on hand to talk with visitors about their heritage and ranching today. Included in the Heritage Roundup are: Wayne and Marcia Bailey sharing the Bailey/Titus/Stout story; Dr. Milton Claassen, Newton, telling the Abraham Claassen story; members of the Mercer family, founders of Matfield Green; Rich Porter of Porter Cattle Co., Reading; and family from the Sauble Ranch, Cedar Point.

Throughout the afternoon, Jerry Hedrick of Loch Lloyd, Missouri, will demonstrate trick roping. Children can try their hand at roping and throwing cowpie discs.

At 2:00 p.m., author and historian Greg Hoots, Kansas City, will present local cowboy history in photos, video, and story.

Cowboy/singer/songwriter Jeff Davidson, Eureka, will perform music and poetry at 3:00 p.m.

Hear cowboy poetry at 4:00 p.m. by "Poet Lariat" Ron Wilson, director of the Huck Boyd National Institute for Rural Development at Kansas State University.

From 5:00 to 7:00 p.m., cowboy movies will be shown in the barn, Jeff Davidson and Ron Wilson will lead a campfire singalong, and a wiener roast will be offered.

Donations accepted for this community event. Reservations requested, but not required. For reservations, to schedule a recorded interview to share stories, or for additional information, contact Brandings such as the one shown in this old photo will be explained and celebrated, as people are encouraged to bring their brands, which will be burned on 100-year-old wood.

Soybean farmers strategically invest in key link in supply chain

As U.S. soybean farmers continue to encounter challenges with both growing a crop and marketing a crop, it remains essential to maintain and enhance the transportation system established to transport that crop. U.S. soybean farmers are not only increasing the time and effort devoted to improving the competitiveness of their transportation network, they are also strategically investing resources to do so.

The 256-mile stretch of the Mississippi River from Baton Rouge, Louisiana, to the Gulf of Mexico accounts for 60% of U.S. soybean exports, along with 59% of corn exports – by far the leading export region for both commodities. There is a growing effort among Mississippi River stakeholders, including agriculture, to promote the dredging of the lower river shipping channel from 45 ft. to 50 ft. in depth.

The United Soybean Board (USB) recently announced a $2 million allocation to help offset the planning, design, and research costs of deepening the lower Mississippi River from 45 ft. to 50 ft. The 73 USB farmer-directors are responsible for investing soybean checkoff funds to enhance the value and preference for U.S. soy.

"During this challenging period, soybean farmers are being aggressive in trying to increase our competitiveness," says Mike Bellar, a soybean farmer from Howard, and chairman of the Soy Transportation Coalition (STC). "The $2 million in funding from our national checkoff organization, the United Soybean Board, will help improve our number one export region of U.S. soybeans. It will remain critical for the Soy Transportation Coalition, the American Soybean Association, and the individual state soybean associations to continue to promote this project at the federal and state level."

The overall project is estimated to cost $245 million and would occur in three phases. Two of the phases will be cost-shared between the federal government (75%) and non-federal sources (25%). The State of Louisiana has been designated as the obligated non-federal entity.

Dredging from Venice,

Louisiana (approximately Mile 10 Above Head of Passes [AHP]) to the Gulf of Mexico. Removing this bottleneck would provide a 50-ft. deep channel to approximately Mile 154 [AHP] of the river. A substantial number of soybean and grain export terminals are located within this portion of the river. The estimated cost of this phase is $100 million. Given a 75% federal and a 25% non-federal cost share, the federal obligation would be $75 million, and the non-federal obligation would be $25 million.

Dredging from Mile 154 AHP to Baton Rouge, Louisiana (Mile 232 AHP). The remaining soybean and grain export terminals would be included in the 50-ft. shipping channel upon completion of this phase. The estimated cost of this phase is $65 million. Given a 75% federal and a 25% non-federal cost share, the federal obligation would be $48.75 million, and the non-federal obligation would be $16.25 million.

The relocation of pipelines buried under the northern portion of the shipping channel. The estimated $80 million cost of doing so would be split evenly between the State of Louisiana and the pipeline owners.

USB is allocating the $2 million to help offset planning, design, and research costs, combined with approximately $21 million in federal funding and $7.5 million in funding from the State of Louisiana to initiate the first year's work of the project (i.e.

Grants available for farm and ranch stress assistance

USDA's National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA) has opened the Request for Applications for the new Farm and Ranch Stress Assistance Network Competitive Grants Program. The purpose of the Farm and Ranch Stress Assistance Network (FRSAN) Program is to establish a network that connects individuals who are engaged in farming, ranching, and other agriculture-related occupations to stress assistance programs. The establishment of a network that assists farmers and ranchers in time of stress can offer a conduit to improving behavioral health awareness, literacy, and outcomes for agricultural producers, workers and their families.

See the NIFA Funding Opportunity page for more information about the program and to apply for the grant. The grant application closing date is Thursday, July 25, 2019.

Applications may only be submitted by a collaborative state, tribal, local or regionally based network, or partnership of qualified public and/or private entities, as determined by the Secretary. These collaborations may include the following entities: Indian tribes (as defined in section 4 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act [25 U.S.C. 5304]); State departments of agriculture, State cooperative Extension services; and nongovernmental organizations (NGOs).

Kansas-Oklahoma Arkansas River Commission meeting slated for July 25

The 55th annual meeting of the Kansas-Oklahoma Arkansas River Commission will be held at the Hilton Garden Inn, 205 SW Frank Phillips Blvd, Bartlesville, Oklahoma, on Thursday, July 25, 2019, at 9:30 a.m. Optional tours of regional interest will be available on Wednesday, July 24. Anyone interested in water-related activities within the Arkansas River Basin in Kansas and Oklahoma is encouraged to attend.

Kansas and Oklahoma entered the Arkansas River Compact in 1965. The purpose of the compact is to promote interstate comity, to equitably divide and promote the orderly development of the waters of the Lower Arkansas River Basin, to provide an agency for administering the waters of the basin, and to encourage an active pollution abatement program in each state.

The Commission is composed of three commissioners appointed by the governor of Kansas, three commissioners appointed by the governor of Oklahoma, and two commissioners appointed by the President of the United States.

Questions about the meeting, lodging options, and optional tours can be addressed to Chris Beightel, program manager for water management services at Kansas Department of Agriculture-Division of Water Resources, at 785-564-6659 or Chris.Beightel@ks.gov. Additional information about the Kansas-Oklahoma Arkansas River Compact and the annual meeting can be found on the KDA website at www.agriculture.ks.gov/KOARC.

USDA now making payments for new Dairy Margin Coverage program

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farm Service Agency (FSA) opened enrollment for the Dairy Margin Coverage (DMC) program on June 17 and has started issuing payments to producers who purchased coverage. Producers can enroll through Sept. 20, 2019.

"Times have been especially tough for dairy farmers, and while we hope producers' margins will increase, the Dairy Margin Coverage program is providing support at a critical time for many in the industry," said Bill Northey, USDA undersecretary for Farm Production and Conservation. "With lower premiums and higher levels of assistance than previous programs, DMC is already proving to be a good option for a lot of dairy producers across the country. USDA is committed to efficiently implementing the safety net programs in the 2018 Farm Bill and helping producers deal with the challenges of the ever-changing farm economy."

Authorized by the 2018 Farm Bill, DMC replaces the Margin Protection Program for Dairy (MPP-Dairy). The program offers protection to dairy producers when the difference between the all-milk price and the average feed cost (the margin) falls below a certain dollar amount selected by the producer. To date, nearly 10,000 operations have signed up for the new program, and FSA has begun paying approximately $100 million to producers for January through May.

May Margin Payment

DMC provides coverage retroactive to January 1, 2019, with applicable payments following soon after enrollment.

The May 2019 income over feed cost margin was $9.00 per hundredweight (cwt.), triggering the fifth payment for eligible dairy producers who purchase the $9.50 level of coverage under DMC. Payments for January, February, March and April also were triggered.

With the 50 percent hay blend, FSA's revised April 2019 income over feed cost margin is $8.82 per cwt. The revised margins for January, February and March are, respectively, $7.71, $7.91 and $8.66.

Coverage Levels and MPP Reimbursements

Dairy producers can choose coverage levels from $4 up to $9.50 at the time of signup. More than 98 percent of the producers currently enrolled have elected $9.50 coverage on up to 95 percent of their production history.

American Angus Auxiliary nominations open

The American Angus Auxiliary is committed to serving the Business Breed through a number of capacities each year. Youth scholarships and awards, educational events such as the All-American Certified

Angus Beef® Cook-off, Women Connected Conference, scholarship workshops and supporting state Auxiliaries are just a few of the ways the volunteer organization gives back to the Angus business — efforts are made possible thanks to a dedicated group of leaders.

If you feel strongly about the future of the Angus breed and the Auxiliary's mission, serving on the national level is a wonderful way to contribute, says Leslie Minde-mann, Auxiliary advisor and past president.

"All it takes is a love for the breed and our kids to become involved at this level," Mindemann said. "The achievements, experiences and friendships made possible by serving in a leadership position have been so rewarding."

The American Angus Auxiliary is now accepting nominations for the following positions: the 2019-2020 secretary/treasurer and directors for Regions 4, 5 and 6 (Midwest, South and Northeast). Regional directors are elected by member vote within their respective regions. Officer positions are elected at the annual meeting in November.

Explore late-harvest considerations after delayed planting

Late planting is only one factor that affects final yield. In a season dominated by uncontrollable weather, there are other considerations to help farmers get the most out of remaining yield potential.

A late spring stacks up stress for the rest of the season. It will be a race against the clock to obtain enough growing degree units (GDUs) before harvest.

"We really need heat and sunshine," said Melissa Bell, Illinois Mycogen Seeds commercial agronomist. "We had a lot of cloudy and cool days in June, which is bad for a late-planted crop. Many farmers in this region are already starting preparations for drying corn in the event of a wet harvest."

Here are three considerations to help farmers get the most out of their crops this fall.

Don't skimp on your inputs plan. With a late spring, weeds got the upper hand. It's been a tough season, but it'll only get worse if crops are left competing with weeds for sunshine, water and nutrients.

"We can't control the weather, but we can still manage our crops to protect remaining yield," said Ryan Bell, Mycogen Seeds commercial agronomist in South Dakota. "We should be the best stewards we can be by fertilizing the crop and continuing to apply full rates and multiple modes of action to control weeds. Be mindful of pesticide labels, specifically calendar dates to stay within or growth stages that late planting may impact. If you weren't able to plant a row crop, you'll find cover crops are the best option to keep prevented plant acres from growing into weeds."

Watch stalk quality. Stalk quality correlates with nitrogen and other disease factors. With excessive rainfall, some nitrogen may have been lost to leaching and denitrification from the soil, which may result in stalk quality issues. Depending on application timing, soil type and how much rain you've received, losses could be significant. Scouting for deficiency

Yield-boosting stay-green gene identified from 118-year-old experiment in corn

A corn gene identified from a 118-year-old experiment at the University of Illinois could boost yields of today's elite hybrids with no added inputs. The gene, identified in a recent Plant Biotechnology Journal study, controls a critical piece of senescence, or seasonal die-back, in corn. When the gene is turned off, field-grown elite hybrids yielded 4.6 bushels more per acre on average than standard plants.

Dating back to 1896, the Illinois experiment was designed to test whether corn grain composition could be changed through artificial selection, a relatively new concept introduced by Charles Darwin just 37 years earlier. Repeated selection of high- and low-protein corn lines had the intended effect within about ten generations. As selection for the traits continued, however, additional changes were noticeable.

"One of the things that was noted as early as the 1930s was that the low-protein line stays greener longer than the high-protein line. It's really obvious," says Stephen Moose, professor in the Department of Crop Sciences at Illinois and co-author of the study.

Staying green longer into the season can mean more yield. The plant continues photosynthesizing and putting energy toward developing grain. But, until now, no one knew the specific gene responsible for the stay-green trait in corn.

"The stay-green trait is like a 'fountain of youth' for plants because it prolongs photosynthesis and improves yield," says Anne Sylvester, a program director at the National Science Foundation, which funded this research. "This is a great basic discovery with practical impact."

The discovery of the gene was made possible through a decade-long public-private partnership between Illinois and Corteva Agriscience. Moose and Illinois collaborators initially gave Corteva scientists access to a population derived from the long-term corn protein experiment with differences in the stay-green trait. Corteva scientists mapped the stay-green trait to a particular gene, NAC7, and developed corn plants with low expression for the trait. Like the low-protein parent, these plants stayed green longer. They tested these plants in greenhouses and fields across the country over two field seasons.

Not only did corn grow just fine without NAC7, yield increased by almost 5 bushels per acre compared to conventional hybrids. Notably, the field results came without added nitrogen fertilizer beyond what farmers typically use.

"Collaborating with the University of Illinois gives us the opportunity to apply leading-edge technology to one of the longest-running studies in plant genetics," says Jun Zhang, research scientist at Corteva Agriscience and co-author of the study. "The insights we derive from this relationship can result in more bushels without an increase in input costs, potentially increasing both profitability and productivity for farmers."

Moose's team then sequenced the NAC7 gene in the high- and low-protein corn lines and were able to figure out just how the gene facilitates senescence and why it stopped working in the low-protein corn.

"We could see exactly what the mutation was. It seems to have happened sometime in the last 100 years of this experiment, and fortunately has been preserved so that we can benefit from it now," Moose says.

He can't say for sure when the mutation occurred, because in the 1920s crop sciences faculty threw out the original seed from 1896.

"They had no way of knowing then that we could one day identify genes controlling these unique traits. But we have looked in other corn and we don't find this mutation," Moose says.

Future potential for this innovation could include commercialized seed with no or reduced expression of NAC7, giving farmers the option for more yield without additional fertilizer inputs.

Moose emphasizes the advancement couldn't have happened without both partners coming to the table.

"There's value to the seed industry and society in doing these long-term experiments. People ask me why university scientists bother doing corn research when companies are doing it," he says. "Well, yeah they are, and they can do things on a larger and faster scale, but they don't often invest in studies where the pay-offs may take decades."

Kansas NRCS announces funding to plant cover crops on flooded cropland acreage

USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is offering a special Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) sign-up for farmers in governor-declared counties in Kansas who could not plant their crops because of flooded or wet fields. This sign-up provides technical and financial assistance to help farmers plant cover crops, an alternative to letting fields go fallow and uncovered. The deadline to apply is July 26, 2019.

Excessive moisture and flooding in 2019 have prevented or delayed planting on many farms across the country. Many producers are unable to plant crops by a final planting date or have experienced significant delays in planting.

Fields that are saturated for an extended period can lose important soil organisms. Cover crop roots add organic matter and create pathways for air and water to move through the soil, which is key to restoring its health.

"Cover crops help farmers to manage soil erosion, weeds, and pests and to improve soil health," said Karen A. Woodrich, NRCS state conservationist in Kansas. "They can also help your soil health recover after a flood or a long period of remaining wet."

To apply for this special EQIP funding, contact your local NRCS office.

Equine deworming: staying current with the experts' recommendations

Parasites present a pesky problem for horses and their owners alike. A year-round rotation of dewormers that alternated every other month was once considered enough to keep your horses protected. However, there is an increasing trend of drug resistance among parasites, making them harder to manage through traditional strategies. Your horse's parasites are changing; your deworming protocols need to keep up.

Thanks to parasite control guidelines from the American Association of Equine Practitioners (AAEP) and a growing amount of independent research, we know individualized, age-appropriate and seasonal treatment plans are the most successful. Rather than frequent, calendar-based deworming treatments, effective and properly timed treatments are best for keeping your horse and your wallet happy.

Effective Active Ingredients

For effective treatment, it is vital horse owners know which parasite(s) their horse is infected with and which deworming product effectively treats the parasite. Your veterinarian is the best person to provide this information.

The key parasites in adult horses, small strongyles, are universally present in all grazing horses. The primary concern with small strongyles occurs during the encysted stage of their life cycle, when the parasite burrows into the walls of the lower intestines. Inflammation results when the parasite emerges from this cyst stage.

"Moxidectin is the only deworming active ingredient that has been shown to be effective in treating encysted small strongyles, which are strongyles in the larval stage, in a single dose," says Kenton Morgan, DVM, Equine Technical Services, Zoetis.

There is a five consecutive days dosing regimen that claims to be effective against encysted small strongyles, but recent data indicates there is growing small strongyle resistance to fenbendazole.

It is also important to keep in mind that, while the available deworming products may all look different, many brands contain the same active, parasite-killing ingredient. So, even though the products have different names, you may be using the same active ingredient, and overexposure to the same active ingredient could be leading to parasite resistance. That's why it's important to read the packaging and look for the active ingredient, often found in parenthesis below the brand name.

Parasite Seasonality

Deworming treatments must also be properly timed during the year, corresponding with your horse's parasite burden and the parasites' cycles of transmission, typically spring and fall.

Ascarids, also known as roundworms, are hardy parasites resistant to environmental influences. They are the key parasite of concern in young horses, as older horses develop an immunity to them. However, in foals, ascarids can cause poor growth, airway inflammation and small intestinal impactions.

"There are three products that perform best when targeting ascarids," Dr. Morgan says. "The active ingredients to look for are pyrantel pamoate, oxbendazole or fenbendazole."

Superior Livestock Auction holds Big Sky Roundup

Superior Livestock Auction hosted their fourth annual Big Sky Roundup from the Northern Hotel in Billings, Montana on June 26th and from their Superior Livestock Studio in the historic Fort Worth Stockyards on June 27th. Cattle producers offered 47,100 head of calves, yearlings and breeding stock from 22 states for this auction. The bulk of trade occurred in the North Central region, mainly Montana with cattle selling on contracts to deliver immediately through the end of November. The Big Sky Roundup was broadcast live on SLA-TV Dish Channel 997 and streamed on Superior Livestock Auction's Click To Bid website. Superior Livestock's strong buyer base once again showed up in Billings and Fort Worth to rewarded program cattle, producing another upwardly trending market report.

Wednesday morning opened with standing-room-only auction floor; featuring Region 1 & 2 feeder steers and heifers which were received with great representation from buyers on the auction floor as well as internet buyers. Prices settled in at fully steady to $5 higher with the most advance on heavier weights. The weaned calves from regions 1 & 2 were offered to a very aggressive buyer base selling fully steady and again as much as $20 premium on program cattle. The fall calves on cows that were offered with value added programs were met with very aggressive bidding selling as much as $10 higher than last test of northern origin calves.

Day 2 in Fort Worth Texas saw steady market prices on yearling as well as calves.

In order to better serve Superior's growing customer base, Superior is excited to announce the evolution of SLA-TV in 2019. Superior is the largest livestock auction in the United State and markets well over one million head of cattle annually. With over 400 representatives located throughout the United States, Superior provides a complete national marketing network that serves both buyers and sellers

Engage Your Veterinarian

The most important tool in your parasite arsenal is your veterinarian. Veterinarians can perform a fecal egg count test to determine which horses in your herd need treatment and which don't. Once you have a baseline established, they can work with you to develop an Individualized Deworming™ program.

"All horses do not carry the same parasite burden. Usually, in a herd, 80% of the parasite burden is hosted by 20% to 30% of the horses," Dr. Morgan says. "High strongyle egg shedders are responsible for the majority of parasite transmission."

Your veterinarian can also test your horse or herd to see if the dewormer you used was effective. A fecal egg count reduction test will show if your horses have parasites that have become resistant to a specific active ingredient. This test is done after your horse or herd has been treated. Your veterinarian can then help you select additional treatment options, if necessary.

Consult your veterinarian for assistance in the diagnosis, treatment and control of parasitism. Visit QuestHorse.com to learn more about Individualized Deworming treatment plans for your horse.

Landscape for Life

The spring smell of Viburnum and lilac. There are still a few shrubs that have something to offer in summer and fall. My Caroline Allspice shrub has been blooming for quite a while. It has maroon colored flowers on an eight-by-eight-foot shrub. Blooms appear on last year's and new growth.

Perhaps the most common summer flowering shrubs with delightful fragrance are the Butterfly Bushes. There are numerous cultivars to choose from. I have tried many of them. My best success has been with the older proven cultivars. They come in many colors and sizes.

Selecting and installing plants that are adapted to site conditions, climate and garden design require fewer resources and less maintenance to thrive. As wilderness shrinks and suburban acreage increases, what we plant in our home gardens is increasingly important. You may check out more on landscape for life at <https://landscapeforlife.org/>.
