

Kansas Hay Market Report

For the week ending October 3, hay market trade was slow and prices remained steady for all hay types in all regions. Hay movement increased slightly over the past week but remains sluggish. Harvesting, planting, and baling the last of the hay, has everyone busy in the fields with nearly 44% of corn harvested and 20% of beans, according to the NASS crop progress report. Open weather, across much of the Plains and Midwest, favored agricultural fieldwork but further reduced topsoil moisture in drought-affected areas. Topsoil moisture supplies rated 18% very short, 44% short, 38% adequate, and 0% surplus, while subsoil moisture supplies rated 15% very short, 38% short, 47% adequate, and 0% surplus. According to the US Drought Monitor, dry, occasionally breezy weather led to a "flash-drought" situation, with rapid development or expansion of dryness and drought. Abnormal dryness (D0) increased to 60%, moderate drought (D1) increased to 12.5%, severe drought (D2) increased to nearly 4%, and extreme drought (D3) increased to nearly 1.0%. If you have any extra hay to sell and/or need hay here in Kansas, use the services of the Internet Hay Exchange: www.hayexchange.com/ks.php.

Weed seed movement - a Wisconsin case study

By David G. Hallauer, Meadowlark District Extension agent, crops & soils/horticulture

There've been a lot of challenges in 2020, but one of the positives we saw (for the most part anyway...) was good weed control in field crops. Still, some weeds did survive, and that means the possibility that they've set seed and will give rise to more in the future.

Weed seeds that make it to maturity can also get spread to other locations. Migratory waterfowl are a known source. Feed-stuffs with weed seeds gets moved from field to feeding area - and sometimes back again in manure. Soil left on equipment can move seeds, and combines are a big potential seed spreader - and one of the reasons for a University of Wisconsin study on weed seed movement potential from harvest equipment.

A link to full results can be found at our Meadowlark Extension District Crops & Soils page: <https://www.meadowlark.k-state.edu/crops-soils/index.html>, but here are a few highlights:

Samples (31) were collected from the combine head, feeder house, rock trap, and rotor area. Sample seeds were grown out and counted.

Viable weed seed was found in 97 percent of the samples.

Header samples contributed to 49 percent of the weeds emerged. The feeder house contributed another 30 percent.

Why is this important? Herbicide resistance occurs naturally in weed populations, and spreading weed seeds increases the chances of further herbicide resistance issues. Spreading may not be limited to your fields alone, as transport can dislodge seeds as well.

To help reduce the spread of weeds - and herbicide resistance - University of Wisconsin researchers recommend harvesting the cleanest fields first, moving to weedy fields as harvest progresses. In addition, make sure combines are cleaned thoroughly before moving from field to field. When time is limited, focus on the head and feeder house areas first.

It's been a pretty good year for weed control, but every seed counts. Make sure harvest operations aren't contributing to greater weed pressures in the future.

The Chis-Zoom Trail

The Kansas Ag Growth Summit went virtual. The K-State Beef Stocker Field Day went virtual. The National FFA Convention and the Kansas Farm Bureau annual meeting are going virtual. Even church has gone virtual. The New Year's Eve ball drop in New York City is going virtual, for Pete's sake!

The International Chisholm Trail Association has announced that the 2020 Chisholm Trail

Conference is going virtual as well. That means we won't have to spend gas, travel time or lodging to participate, which makes it an easy opportunity for anyone.

Folks are invited to join the Chisholm Trail Conference on Zoom. The virtual conference is scheduled for Friday, October 23, 2020 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. There is a safe, contactless, online system to register for the conference at <https://www.chisholmtrailassn.com/chisholm-trail-conference>. The registration fee includes membership dues in ICTA for 2021.

One speaker is Michael Grauer, a Kansas native who is the Chair of Cowboy Culture and western art curator at the National Cowboy and Western Heritage Museum in Oklahoma City. He will lead a panel discussion on Many Cultures on the Cattle Trails. That panel features Dr. Deborah Liles of Tarleton State in Texas, a representative of the National Multicultural Western Heritage Museum in Fort Worth, and Gene Chavez of Shawnee, Kansas speaking about the vaquero.

Keynote speaker is the honorable Matt Pinnell,

Lieutenant Governor of Oklahoma. During the afternoon, Sen. Jerry Moran and Rep. Ron Estes will be recognized as recipients of the inaugural Bob Klemme Chisholm Trail Champion awards, in appreciation for their ongoing work to have Congress designate the Chisholm and Western Trails as national historic trails.

Afternoon sessions include a panel discussion on the modern-day beef industry in the trail states of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, plus a discussion about best practices for heritage tourism along the trails.

These trails have drawn interest from people across the nation and around the world. Lonnie Stieben works in community economic development for the Southern Kansas Telephone Company, SKT, in Clearwater. He successfully invited the Best of America by Horseback TV show staff to bring riders and film crew to Clearwater in 2019 and 2020. The folks who put on this TV show invite riders to bring their horses and be filmed while riding in some scenic or historic location. In this case, it was along the Chisholm Trail. The ride took place on public roads near Clearwater. The riders learned historical facts about the cattle drives of yesteryear. The show featuring the ride will be broadcast on RFD-TV and the Cowboy Channel.

120 guest riders came from 18 states to ride the Chisholm Trail for a week in Kansas. This year's ride included a small cattle drive which Lonnie reported came off okay, thanks to the assistance of five seasoned cowboys. Sounds like cowboys rode to the rescue again.

Dennis Katzenmeier

of Ellsworth, ICTA president, said, "Do not miss this opportunity to Zoom up the Cattle Trail online from the comfort of your home, experience the history and heritage of the Old Chisholm Trail, and help us achieve its designation as a National Historic Trail." Thanks to the wonders of modern Zoom technology, people will be able to participate in this conference from virtually anywhere.

Zooming to Church

By Ron Wilson, Poet Lariat

When our kids were little, we had a family rule:

When Sunday morning came,
we went to church and Sunday school.

But it took time to get 'em dressed.

It seemed my common fate,
Was hurryin' them into the car,
'cause we were always late.

Lookin' back, I might have said some words which God would not approve,
To get those kids to hurry and to really make 'em move.

I'd be sittin' in the car, frustrated with the wait,
And then be zooming down the road
'cause we were runnin' late.

Now our kids are grown
but Ma and I still to church.

Then the pandemic hit, and left us in the lurch.
The church service canceled.
We were told to stay at home,
To shelter in place and not go out to roam.

But the church found a creative way
to reach us all, you see.

Now our kids are grown
but Ma and I still to church.

Then the pandemic hit, and left us in the lurch.
The church service canceled.
We were told to stay at home,
To shelter in place and not go out to roam.

But the church found a creative way
to reach us all, you see.

It's something that they call Zoom technology.
You just sit at your computer
so it's online, now, I think.
You can see the Sunday service.
Just click on the Zoom link.
It kinda makes me laugh,
when I think on that again:

We're still Zooming in to church, but not the way we did back then.

Happy Trails!

TERMS: The successful Buyer will be required to sign a Purchase Contract (in Property Info Packet) and provide a $30,000 non-refundable down payment immediately after the auction. The down payment to be paid to Security 1st Title, Eureka, KS. This down payment may be made by check or wire transfer to Security 1st Title, balance will be due in Certified Funds on Closing. Cost of Title Insurance and Closing fee to Security 1st Title to be divided equally between Seller and Buyer. Taxes will be prorated as of Closing day by the Closing Agent. Closing on or before November 25, 2020.
POSSESSION: Buyer will receive possession of the property on Closing.
MINERALS: Sellers mineral, water & air rights will be transferred to buyer.
OPEN HOUSE: FARM & HOME REALTY, LLC Agents will be onsite October 13, 2020, from 10 am-5 pm to provide ATV tours of the property, or at other times by appointment. If you prefer to view the property on your own ATV at any other time please inform FARM & HOME REALTY, LLC at least 12 hours before going on the property.

AUCTION DAY: FARM & HOME REALTY, LLC Agents will be at the Greenwood Hotel (301 N. Main, Eureka, KS 67045) at 8 am to provide assistance for online bidding and to answer questions. Stop by for coffee and donuts.

PROSPECTIVE BIDDERS: Potential Bidders are urged to utilize "due diligence" and inspect the property to their satisfaction prior to Auction. Property is selling "as is" and "where is," subject to any easements, zoning, restrictions, and roadways of record; without any warranties or inspections provided by Seller or Seller's Agent. Potential Bidders are urged to register as soon as possible.

PROPERTY INFORMATION PACKET: A Property Information Packet is available via email or postal mail by contacting FARM & HOME REALTY. Potential Bidders are urged to obtain a packet which contains: Purchase Contract, Greenwood County tax & property info, Title Insurance and cited documents, Groundwater Addendum, Seller's Property Condition Report, aerial map, soil survey map, flood zone map and Real Estate Agency Brochure. Potential Bidders should obtain and review this information prior to Auction.

FARM & HOME REALTY is acting as Agent of the Seller. A copy of Real Estate Agency Brochure is in Property Information Packet.

AUCTIONEER'S NOTE: This is a very nice tract of land with great hunting potential - a deer and turkey hunter's paradise! Call us for a showing and a Property Information Packet. We look forward to working with you!

Women in Ag: Farm Programs and Crop Insurance program to be held November 12

The Farm Programs and Crop Insurance Women in Ag meeting originally scheduled in April, and postponed due to the Safer-at-Home order, has been rescheduled for Thursday, November 12 at 6:30 p.m.

Join them on Zoom and learn what FSA and NRCS have to offer, including farm programs, conservation programs, livestock disaster programs, acreage reporting and payment eligibility. Crop insurance as a risk management tool will also be discussed. Panelists include Amanda Ahrens and Kevin W.

Vondra with Farm Service Agency, Kristin Kuntz, Natural Resource Conservation Service, and Jay Wisbey, K-State Research and Extension. If you are a woman involved in agriculture, whether producer, spouse, landlord, or are interested in learning more, plan to attend this free Women in Ag program. The program will stream live via Zoom at 6:30 p.m. Register at <https://bit.ly/Fall2020WIA>. The link to join the meeting will be sent via email after you register. Call the K-State Research & Extension office in Salina at 785-309-5850, or e-mail Amanda Ahrens at amanda.ahrens@usda.gov if you have questions.

This Women in Ag meeting is sponsored by K-State Research & Extension-Central Kansas District, Farm Service Agency, Natural Resources Conservation Service, American Ag Credit, Saline County Conservation District, and Saline County Farm Bureau.

2019/2020 MYA prices set, triggering PLC payments for Kansas wheat farmers

Support from the farm safety net should be hitting farmers' mailboxes or accounts soon now that final marketing year average (MYA) prices are set for wheat, corn, sorghum and soybeans. These prices are an important piece of determining the payment rates under the Price Loss Coverage (PLC) and the Agricultural Risk Coverage (ARC) programs.

"With the release of the 'Agricultural Prices' report by USDA on September 30, the 2019/2020 MYA prices are now final," reported Rich Llewellyn and Art Barnaby in a publication issued by the K-State Department of Agricultural Economics.

"The wheat price was finalized last month, at $4.58, with a corresponding PLC payment of $0.92 per bushel. These payments will be received later this month."

A PLC payment is issued when the effective price is less than the reference price. The reference price is currently set at $5.50, while the effective price is determined by either the national average loan rate or the MYA price, whichever is higher. The difference between the effective price and the reference price sets the payment rate.

For the 2019/2020 wheat crop, the difference between the $5.50 reference price and the MYA price of $4.58 generated the $0.92 per bushel payment rate. K-State also released estimates for the MYA price for the 2020/2021 wheat crop. At $4.76, a PLC payment of $0.74 per bushel would be issued in October 2021.

According to K-State, to calculate total expected payment, farmers should multiply the PLC payment rate by their farm PLC yield. Then, multiply that total by 85 percent of base acres. The result is the total expected PLC payment for that farm.

ARC-CO payments are also influenced by the MYA price, but these payment rates are triggered based on county level revenue and yield data, rather than a national reference price. When actual county revenue falls below a crop's guarantee for the program, a payment is triggered.

Benchmark revenue is calculated using a five-year Olympic average, meaning the highest and lowest values are excluded, multiplied by the five-year Olympic average county yield. That figure is then multiplied by 86 percent, setting the ARC-CO guarantee.

Actual crop revenue is then determined by multiplying the county yield by the MYA price. If this calculation falls below the ARC-CO guarantee, a payment is triggered based on the difference between benchmark revenue and actual crop revenue. Farmers would receive a payment equal to that difference multiplied by 85 percent of base acres for that commodity. One additional note, payments cannot exceed 10 percent of the ARC-CO benchmark revenue.

K-State estimated wheat needs a MYA price below $4.87 to generate an ARC payment. Barnaby and Robin Reid updated interactive maps for Kansas in July to show projected county-level payments under the ARC-CO program, which can be found on the AgManager website at <https://agmanager.info/ag-policy/20192020-arc-county-projections/20192020-kansas-arc-county-projections>.

The USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) signaled it would start processing both PLC and ARC payments as early as last week, meaning farmers should see those payments rolling in - either via direct deposit or physical check - in the near future. Stay up-to-date on all updates to these programs at AgManager.info

Poor temperament adversely affects profit

By Glenn Selk, Oklahoma State University Emeritus Extension Animal Scientist

October is a traditional weaning and culling time for spring-calving herds. Weaning for value-added calf sales is already underway. This is a time when producers decide which cows no longer are helpful to the operation and which heifer calves will be kept for future replacements. Selecting against ill-tempered cattle has always made good sense. Wild cattle are hard on equipment, people, other cattle, and now we know that they are hard on the bottom line.

University of Florida animal scientists recorded disposition scores over two years on 160 Braford and 235 Brahman x British crossbred cows. They wanted to evaluate the effects of cow temperament and energy status on the probability to become pregnant during a 90-day natural breeding season. Cows were scored as 1= calm, no movement to 5= violent and continuous struggling while in the working chute. Also a pen score assessment was assigned as 1= unalarmed and unexcited to 5= very excited and aggressive toward technician. An exit velocity speed score was measured as the cows exited the working chute as 1= slowest and 5= fastest. An overall temperament index score was calculated by averaging the chute score, pen score and exit velocity score. Blood samples were analyzed for cortisol concentrations.

Cortisol is a hormone released when mammals are stressed or excited. Increased cow temperament score and elevated plasma cortisol concentrations both were associated with decreased probability of pregnancy. These results suggest that excitable temperament and the subsequent elevated cortisol concentrations are detrimental to reproductive function of cows. These authors concluded that management strategies that improve cow disposition, enhance their immune status, and maintain the cow herd at adequate levels of nutrition are required for optimal reproductive performance. Source: Cooke and co-workers. 2009 Florida Beef Research Report.

Mississippi State University researchers (Vann and co-workers. 2006. Southern Section of American Society of Animal Science) used a total of 210 feeder cattle consigned by 19 producers in a "Farm to Feedlot" program to evaluate the effect of temperament on performance, carcass characteristics, and net profit. Temperament was scored on a 1 to 5 scale (1= nonaggressive, docile; 5= very aggressive, excitable).

The temperament scoring system was similar to that described in the Florida cow study. Exit velocity and pen scores were highly correlated. As pen scores increased, so did exit velocity. As pen score and exit velocity increased, health treatments costs and number of days treated increased, while average daily gain and final body weight decreased. This outcome makes perfect sense. Other studies have shown that excitable temperament can diminish immune responsiveness, with more temperamental calves having a reduced response to vaccination when compared with calm calves.

In the Mississippi study, as pen temperament score increased, net profit per head tended to decline. Pen temperament scores and net profits per head were as follows: 1= $121.89; 2= $100.98; 3= $107.18; 4= $83.75; 5= $80.81. Although feed and cattle price relationships have changed since this data was collected, one would expect similar impacts from the temperaments of cattle under today's economic situation.

"Heritability" is the portion of the differences in a trait that can be attributed to genetics. The heritability of temperament in beef cattle has been estimated to range from 0.36 to 0.45. This moderate level of heritability indicates that real progress can be made by selecting against wild cattle. Whether we are marketing our calf crop at weaning or retaining ownership throughout the feedlot phase, wild, excitable cattle are expensive to own and raise.

CME Group to launch Pork Cutout futures and options on November 9

CME Group, the world's leading and most diverse derivatives marketplace, announced it will launch Pork Cutout futures and options on November 9, 2020, pending all relevant regulatory review periods. "As the market has evolved, our customers continue to look for new tools to manage the price risk associated with hog and pork production," said Tim Andriessen, CME Group managing director of agricultural products. "The Pork Cutout futures and options are complementary to our Lean Hog contracts and will provide clients with the ability to manage risk and discover price from the hog all the way to the meat case."

Hogs are increasingly bought and sold in the physical market based on a formula which uses the cutout. The Pork Cutout reflects the approximate value of a hog calculated using the prices paid for wholesale cuts of pork. The values, or cuts, used to calculate the pork cutout include the loin, butt, picnic, rib, ham and belly. The new contracts reflect the price of the wholesale product after processing. "The National Pork Producers Council welcomes the introduction of the new Pork Cutout trading vehicle," said NPPC president Howard "AV" Roth, a pork producer for Wauzeka, Wisconsin.

"We applaud CME Group for providing another risk management option, in addition to the Lean Hog contract, and for enhancing market visibility, which is so important to maintaining a highly competitive and innovative pork production system in the United States." Pork Cutout futures and options will be financially settled to the CME Pork Cutout Index, which is a five-business day weighted average of prices reported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and published in its "National Daily Pork Report Fob Plant - Negotiated Sales - Afternoon" report daily.

The new contracts will be quoted in U.S. cents per pound, will have a contract size of 40,000 pounds and will be available for trading on CME Globex or through block trades via CME ClearPort, and will be listed by and subject to the rules and regulations of CME. For more information on CME Group's Pork Cutout futures and options and the CME Pork Cutout Index, please visit: www.cmegroup.com/pork-cutout.

Gelbvieh Association 50th anniversary celebration postponed to 2021

The American Gelbvieh Association (AGA) board of directors has made the difficult decision to postpone the association's 50th anniversary celebration to late 2021. The event was originally scheduled to take place December 2-4, 2020, in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. The Association will now hold a one-day meeting on December 4, in Lincoln, Nebraska, to conduct the business of the Association. The decision was made to postpone the celebration due to current gathering restrictions surrounding COVID-19 and attendee health and safety.

"The health and safety of our members, guests, and staff remains our top priority," said Megan Slater, AGA executive director. "We want to make sure we are celebrating our 50th anniversary during a time where all members can feel safe in gathering in an event of this size."

The one-day meeting in Lincoln will consist of a board of directors meeting, committee meetings, and the annual meeting of the association. The annual meeting is set to take place at 3 p.m. on Friday, December 4, and will include the election of the board of directors. If members are unable to attend in person, a virtual option and absentee voting will be made available. The day will also include a socially distanced awards luncheon to recognize the recipients of the breeder of the year and commercial producer of the year awards as well as honor the newest inductee into the AGA Hall of Fame.

"This decision was certainly not taken lightly. Unfortunately, current circumstances including social distancing guidelines and various other restrictions, would make for an environment that was not conducive for the proper celebration of a 50th anniversary," Slater continues. "After all, a golden anniversary only comes around once for an association and we want to be able to give it the celebration it deserves!"

Information regarding the one-day meeting, including schedule and registration, will be available on the Annual Convention page on Gelbvieh.org or call 303-465-2333.

President signs government funding bill

President Trump signed a Continuing Resolution (CR) recently that will fund the government through Dec. 11. The bill extends FY2020 government funding, including items important to cattle feeders.

Includes a provision to allow the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) to be replenished for net loss payments to farmers and ranchers through Farm Bill programs not related to COVID-19 disaster assistance.

Temporarily extends the Livestock Mandatory Reporting (LMR) period through Dec. 11, 2020.

Maintains the electronic logging device delay for livestock haulers through Dec. 11, 2020.

Contains a one-year extension of federal highway, transit and road safety programs and funding.

Retains important EPA retaining provisions including implementation of mandatory reporting of greenhouse gas emissions from manure management systems; and any regulation requiring the issuance of permits under Title V of the Clean Air Act for carbon dioxide, nitrous oxide, water vapor or methane emissions resulting from processes associated with livestock production.

Extends the Department of Interior's authority to provide emergency drought relief.

Invest time into caring for calves to insure better outcomes

By Lisa Moser
Parents and pediatricians often work together to determine the signs of illness in little ones too young to talk, and the same can be true of cattle caretakers and veterinarians as they work to keep newly weaned calves healthy. "It is important to take time to observe the calves when they come up to the feedbunk," said Brad

White, Kansas State University veterinarian and Beef Cattle Institute director on a recent BCI Cattle Chat podcast. In the busyness of life, White said many people don't take the observational time needed. "It doesn't matter how skilled you are. If you are looking the other direction, you are not going to find the sick calves in the early stages and that is when you need to find them." White said early intervention is key. "If you treat them early in the process you will likely have a better outcome and there will be less detriment to the animal," he said. When cattle come up to eat, beef cattle specialist Bob Weaber said cattle producers can observe their appetite as well as monitoring them for such conditions as pinkeye. "Calves that show runny eyes with discharge often will have pinkeye," Weaber said. With that disease, veterinarian Bob Larson recommends early treatment with injectable antibiotics. Another condition that can be monitored at the feedbunk is respiratory distress. "Those cattle will often have snotty noses with the head and ears down, and if they are really sick you can hear it when they breathe," Weaber said. Along with checking the cattle on the front end of their bodies, the veterinarians also said it is important to look at the manure. "Watch for flecks of blood in the manure because that could be a sign of coccidiosis. Also, if the feces is dry it could be a sign of dehydration and a runny stool could indicate acidosis, which happens when they are overeating," Larson said. Weaber agreed and added that along with checking the manure, it is important to see how the calves are physically walking. "It is not uncommon for calves to develop foot rot when they are coming off of the summer range and it gets worse when they are in a pen, so be sure to watch their movement," he said. As a checklist for producers the podcast team offered the following tips for finding disease in newly weaned calves. Evaluate the calves for signs of sickness. Observe the manure. Watch the social behaviors in the calves. Monitor the feed intake. Spend time observing them to get an accurate picture of their health. To hear the full discussion on monitoring and treating calves, listen to the BCI Cattle Chat podcast.

American Angus Association announces the ten Kansas breeders who registered the most Angus

The ten producers who registered the most Angus beef cattle in the state of Kansas recorded a total of 3888 Angus with the American Angus Association® during fiscal year 2020, which ended Sept. 30, according to Mark McCully, Association chief executive officer. The ten top recorders in Kansas are: Gardiner Angus Ranch Inc, Ashland; Everett L. Benoit, Esbon; Dalebanks Angus Inc, Eureka; Gordon D. Stucky, Kingman; Flying S Ranch, Saint Francis; Green Garden Angus Farm, Ellsworth; Dennis Huck, Coldwater; Badger Creek Cattle Co, Emporia; Amy and Karl Langvardt, Alta Vista; Galen and Lori Fink, Randolph. Angus breeders across the nation in 2020 registered 305,531 head of Angus cattle. "Despite a challenging year, our Angus breeders continue to see strong demand for Angus genetics," McCully said. "Our members are committed to providing genetic solutions to the beef cattle industry that maintain our long-held position as an industry leader."

2020 4-H YOUTH SHOWCASE

7-year-old Jacquelyn Crowl of the Lucky Four 4-H Club showed her Manx cat Miles at the Pet Show at the Washington County Fair. "He really didn't like being at the fair too much," she said. "I walked him around on the harness we have for him. I won Grand Champion with him! I was really excited!"

Pictured is Cambry Duerksen with her porch swing she built in the wood science project, which earned a Grand Champion at the Marion County Fair. She is a member of the Goessel Goal Getters 4-H Club. This was her first year in wood science.

Red Angus Association announces North American Junior Red Angus Event as 2021 National Junior Show

The Red Angus Association of America has designated the North American Junior Red Angus Event as the official National Junior Red Angus Show for 2021. Historically, the National Junior Red Angus Show has coincided with the National Red Angus Show, which was formerly rotated through five host locations across the country. In 2021, the open and junior shows will be held separately. In its 16th year, the NAJRAE has the largest junior show of Red Angus cattle in the country and also conducts a variety of contests and leadership development activities as part of the event. The NAJRAE is an independent non-profit organization governed by a membership-based board of directors and supported through dues and sponsorships. The NAJRAE is scheduled for June 20-26, 2021, in Lebanon, Tennessee. The event will feature cattle exhibition, leadership development events, and contests such as livestock judging, herdsman quizzes, public speaking and sales talk. Kimberly Heller, director of education and junior programs for the RAAA stated, "We are excited about the collaboration between RAAA and the NAJRAE on the 2021 National Junior Red Angus Show because the NA-JRAE most closely aligns with the mission of our junior program by providing junior members a national experience that integrates leadership development, beef industry education and a show on the national level." Exhibitors and potential sponsors can visit najrae.com for more information. For questions about Red Angus shows, contact Chessie Mitchell, Red Angus Association Show Coordinator at chessie@redangus.org.

American dairy consumption reaches all-time high; cheese, butter and yogurt continue to drive growth

Americans are turning to dairy products at a rate never seen before, according to the USDA Economic Research Service (ERS). New ERS data on annualized per capita consumption of dairy point to cheese, butter and yogurt categories driving substantial growth in per capita consumption of dairy, which reached a record high in 2019.

"Since the USDA began tracking per capita dairy consumption in the 1970s, the trend has continued upward for five straight decades, increasing 21% since 1975," said Michael Dykes, D.V.M., president and CEO of the International Dairy Foods Association. "While Americans have always turned to dairy products as fresh, nutritious staples in their diets, they also value the versatility of dairy in new, delicious, and more accessible products.

Thanks to its continued innovation and ingenuity, the dairy industry is poised to continue to grow and deliver nutritious products for Americans."

In the past decade alone: domestic per capita consumption of cheese is up 19%; per capita butter consumption is up 24%; per capita yogurt consumption is up 7%. Ice cream per capita consumption also rebounded in 2019, increasing by a half-percent over 2018. Overall, ERS data show American dairy per capita consumption across products consistently increasing each year, with 2019 up 6% over the past five years, 10% over the past 15 years, and 16% over the past 30 years.

"The product mix in most demand by consumers is changing—we eat more dairy than we drink these days—and dairy on the whole continues to grow," said Dykes.

Register for the tenth annual Antibiotic Symposium

The full agenda is now posted for the tenth annual Antibiotic Symposium on November 2-4, 2020, hosted by the National Institute for Animal Agriculture (NIAA). NIAA will convene leaders from the animal health, human health and environmental health spaces to discuss, learn and collaborate on the latest research and knowledge about responsible antibiotic use and practices to combat antimicrobial resistance.

During the 2020 sessions, participating leaders will explore research and insights with conversations facilitated by the Symposium planning committee. Facilitators include:

- Dr. Andy King, Iowa State University Greenlee School of Journalism and Communication
- Dr. Heather Fowler, National Pork Board
- Dr. Michael Costin, American Veterinary Medical Association
- Dr. Megin Nichols, The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention
- Dr. Paul Plummer, National Institute for Antimicrobial Resistance Research and Education

Dr. Leah Dorman, PhiBro Animal Health
Dr. Eric Moore, Norbrook, Inc.

Humane animal handling training modules available

The National Pork Board has made available a new four-module online training, Humane Animal Handling, developed in response to producers' need for a more in-depth training resource on proper animal handling.

Training module topics include:
Pig Movement
Environment
Animal Handling
Electric Prod Use
The online training module series describes the correct methods of animal handling. Real-life scenarios are used to guide the learner step-by-step through common problems that may arise in handling.

The modules cover reasons that improper handling may occur, such as being in a hurry, becoming frustrated or being distracted. Other actions discussed include using sharp or dangerous tools to move animals, which may lead to unintentional abuse.

The modules can easily fit into established training schedules for onboarding new animal handlers or as part of an annual training refresher for experienced handlers.

By using these modules, producers demonstrate the We Care principles producers proactively follow to become better handlers and caretakers.

Training Objectives:
Clearly define actions that are and are not an act of abuse

Recognize how to prevent and resolve abuse

Recognize how handler actions impact the pig
Understand and anticipate animal response
If you are interested in implementing this training contact info@pork.org.

New Generation Supplements

Cost Effective Protein Supplementation

The most cost effective forage a cow can consume is the forage she can harvest herself. However, protein often times becomes the most limiting nutrient for cattle grazing crop residues and dormant grass pastures. In these situations protein supplementation is required to efficiently harvest energy from these protein deficient forage-based diets.

Studies conducted at Kansas State University would illustrate that NGS protein supplements support both gain and efficiency when fed in conjunction with protein deficient forages. Find out more from your local New Generation Supplements dealer, Key Feeds.

Flavor's secret ingredient – many factors create a good eating experience, but delivery is key

By Abbie Burnett

A thunderstorm rolls in above the parched Great Plains with all the usual effects, but no rain. Disappointment, like a tender steak without flavor.

Just as it takes certain factors to produce a great rainfall, so it goes with flavor. To quell a drought, you need rain. To satisfy consumers, you need flavor. Hint: it's in the marbling.

Texas Tech University meat scientist Jerrad Legako spoke to that point during the American Society of Animal Science conference earlier this year.

"No question, flavor is at least equivalent to tenderness in importance to the overall eating experience, if not a little more," he said. That's partly due to improved beef tenderness since the late 1980s.

But what is flavor, and how do we experience it?

It's a complex combination, said Legako.

More than taste on the tongue, flavor takes in perceptions of texture and mouth feel. It's "olfaction," as the scientist evokes the world of smell, and chemical reactions on the tongue that perceive spiciness. Ambiance and prior experiences complete the impression.

All of these affect perceptions of flavor, but Legako's team looks for a nuanced key to the best beef-eating experiences.

"With the sensitivity of the olfaction system, volatile compounds are incredibly important for our perceptions of flavor," he said.

Volatile because they evaporate at room temperature, the organic compounds start as sugars, amino acids, lipids and thiamines, breaking down in beef's aging, storage and cooking processes.

All but the fats are water-soluble and provide basic tastes like sweet, sour, salty and bitter.

Then cookery enters with its Maillard reaction that reduces sugars and proteins to the volatile compounds like aldehydes we enjoy as a robust flavor profile. It's how such flavors as nutty, roasted, garlicky, whiskey and honey get into browned foods like dumplings, cookies, biscuits, marshmallows—and steaks, of course.

"With time and temperature, you can kind of start to think about this as a chemistry equation," Legako said. "You're driving that reaction at different rates just depending on exposure time and the level of heat."

Lipids, the top contributor, produce flavor through oxidation, he said, citing Australian studies: "Fat is the delivery system." Among beef cuts with varying fat levels, those with the most would always deliver more of the same volatile compounds.

To be clear, the flavor components fat delivers come not from the fat but from the effects of cookery on amino acids and sugars, Legako said.

"Yet they're dissolving in that fat, retained in that high-fat sample and being delivered," he said, "an increased sensory response or a more intense beef flavor through the greater delivery of those volatile compounds."

Basically, fat serves as a reservoir to deliver flavor.

Legako and team tested this reaction across different cookery types, higher degrees of doneness and different grades of beef. The consistent find? The higher the grade, the better the flavor, increasing linearly from Standard to Prime.

"This is at least some support for marbling content in a way influencing volatile compound delivery," Legako said.

For a good thunderstorm, you need moisture, instability and a lifting mechanism. For good flavor, you need aging and heat, but it takes ample marbling to really deliver. That starts on the ranch.

Money does grow on trees

Outdoor activities are almost limitless, and the cycles of nature provide a revolving door, constantly changing to create new and exciting opportunities throughout the year.

Dave Bruton, utilization and marketing forester with the Kansas Forest Service, says one of those opportunities is harvesting black walnut seed.

"Black walnut trees are commonly found throughout Kansas communities and woodlands, particularly in the eastern half of Kansas," Bruton said. "They are great for personal use for making candies, breads, ice cream and holiday treats - but they also present an opportunity to make a little extra money."

But Bruton understands that collecting black walnut seeds can be messy and hard work.

The juice found in the hull of walnuts stains hands. Stooping to collect nuts from the ground can also cause back stress. Bruton suggests using special tools designed to aid in harvesting black walnut.

"Two such products are the Nut Wizard and Bag-A-Nut," he said. "Both work by rolling the respective equipment over the tops of the nuts scattered across the landscape so the tool can pick up the seed."

Bruton said those products work most effectively in areas that are clear of sticks and debris, and where the vegetation is relatively short. While these and other products can readily be found online, they are also becoming more common in local hardware and other outdoor supply stores.

"If you gather more black walnuts than you want or need for your personal use, there is an opportunity to sell the excess," Bruton said.

Bruton said that a Stockton, Missouri-based company - Hammons Products Co. works with individuals across Kansas and ten other states, where black walnut trees are native, to establish hulling and buying stations.

This year, eight such stations are scattered across eastern Kansas. A map of the buying locations can be found on the Kansas Forest Service website under the tab, 'Black Walnut Hulling Stations in Kansas.'

Bruton said the buying season runs from Oct. 1 to Nov. 2 with the price set at 0.16 per hulled pound. Individuals are not responsible for hulling, he said; that is performed at the buying station with equipment specially designed to quickly and efficiently handle large quantities of nuts.

"If you are looking for opportunities to get yourself or kids outside, consider gathering black walnuts and visiting a buying station near you," Bruton said.

In it for the Long Haul

You want your seedstock provider to be thinking long-term, not chasing trends and ignoring what really keeps a cow herd profitable. While we strive for constant improvement, the long haul traits that make a productive herd year-after-year remain the foundation.

We run programs that raise low-input RANGE cattle & do it with the discipline to strictly cull poor fertility, udders, feet. Since we feed cattle too, we know what pays there. We're in it for the LONG HAUL.

Just like you.

Join us Thurs, 11/5 after 3pm to view the cattle & enjoy refreshments.
